GEN. SCOTT ORDERS GUARD MOBILIZATION COMPLETED

Says This is Preliminary to Ordering All Units Now Ready to Take the Field to Proceed Immediately to the Border.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 22.—Orders to report immediately the completion of mobilization were sent to all commanding officers of National Guard divisions by General Hugh L. Scott, chief of staff, at 9 o'clock this morning. General Scott said that this was preliminary to ordering all units that were ready to take the field immediately to proceed to the border.

General Scott said, on arriving from Fort Myer, that he expected a large proportion of the National Guard would be en route to San Antonio or any threatened points before nightfall. The quartermaster's department is arranging transportation.

COMPANY M DRILLING THIS MORNING ON ATHLETIC FIELD.

COMPANY M MAY GO DIRECT TO THE BORDER

Tenth Regiment Will be Among First to Receive Orders, Which May Come at Any Minute---Home Guard Ranks Should be Filled.

The New York National Guard will be among the first to be sent direct to the Mexican border.

The Tenth Regiment, of which Company M is a part, will be among the first regiments to receive orders.

These orders will come as soon as the new Depot Units, (Home Guard Companies), are organized and ready to take over the armories—maybe before that time.

Orders may be received by Company M at any moment.

These are not official statements, but The Freeman has the best of reasons for believing them to be true.

Therefore

Captain Fowler's Depot Unit should have its ranks filled without delay. This Depot Unit is merely a home guard which, according to the terms of enlistment and the oath taken, cannot be called outside the state, unless the recruit enlists under Class A, which he need not do.

Troops On The Border Await Order To Cross

Ready to Cross the Line the Minute War is Declared---Mexicans Look Forward to Giving Hot Reception to "Gringoes."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 22.—Infantry, cavalry and artillery concentrated on both sides of the Rio Grande today awaited the order of their commanders that would send them into battle. On the American side the belief prevailed that if the reports upon Mexican treachery in yesterday's fighting near Carrizal were confirmed, United States troops would advance on Juarez before nightfall, take the historic Mexican town, and continue their march through the desert to Chihuahua City to rescue the Americans taken prisoner in the Carrizal conflict.

According to unofficial advices received here the Mexicans have sentenced to death by hanging the seventeen American soldiers captured at Carrizal. The same reports assert that the Mexicans, while carrying a flag of truce opened fire upon the United States soldiers, causing heavy casualties.

From the yellow banks of the river, where opposing machine guns almost rubbed noses across the international bridge, to the field guns in back of El Paso and Juarez, the ragged soldiers of Carranza and the campaigners of the United States army were ready for action today.

It was as if an immense conflagration awaited the spark to fire the border. The American troops, enraged by the story of barbaric treachery at Carrizal were eager to avenge their fallen comrades of the 10th Cavalry. The Mexicans, jubilant over the reports of victory that were posted in the Juarez plaza, were intoxicated with the visions of another triumph and the possibility of attacking El Paso.

Early today two battalions of the Twenty-seventh Infantry began throwing up sand-bag redoubts along the American bank of the river. Mounted guards patrolled the American side. Machine gun crews slept beside their guns in the camps at strategical points along the twisted course of the river.

In the streets of Juarez Carranzista cavalry was massed all night. Six hundred Mexican troops were marched east along the river before dawn rise. On the west bank a similar force tramped to take positions. On the railway yard five trains were held with steam up under orders of General Francisco Gonzales, commandant at Juarez.

The confidence of the Carranzista officers and men was great. There was no disguising the swagger in their manner as they discussed the Carrizal fighting. No matter what the method, they boasted that they had whipped the hated "gringoes." This was especially marked in the actions of the leaders who are supposed to disguise what they may feel. They took particular pains to convey to the American authorities news of the Carrizal battle. There were those who saw in this action the result of General Trevino's arrogance in ordering General Pershing not to move east, south or west. They saw in it a sneer for President Wilson's statement to Carranza that "The execution of this threat will lead to the gravest consequences."

Officers at Fort Bliss would not discuss in their official capacity the action that would follow Pershing's anxiously awaited report. But since last Friday none of them has been away from his command and all of them are ready for the order that has been so long deferred.

General George Bell, Jr., in command at Fort Bliss, returned early in the day from a long inspection of the soldiers posted about the city.

"We're ready for anything," said General Bell. "I am awaiting orders from General Funston. I have forwarded to him what information I was able to gather of the Carrizal fighting. Now I can do nothing but wait."

Up to the time General Bell made this statement, most of the information about the Carrizal incident had come from Mexican sources. These reports placed the American dead at between 17 and 40, together with the capture of a large number of prisoners. They still placed the blame for the start of the fighting on the Americans. Incidentally, they admitted heavy losses on the Mexican side.

Mexican reports located General Pershing himself at Colonia Dublan and also asserted that his forces had seized Casas Grandes and Neuvas Casas Grandes after violent anti-American demonstrations and after both towns had been evacuated by their garrisons.

Fort Bliss officers think that the troopers of the 10th Cavalry engaged at Carrizal were assigned by Pershing to run down a new bandit outfit. This, of course, would be a tacit answer to General Trevino's demand that Pershing's force move in no direction but north. The Carrizal battle would be Trevino's redemption of his pledge and would leave the next move up to General Pershing. Pershing has intimated rather strongly that his next move would be as convincing as it was harsh. Perhaps, it was suggested early today, by this time he has a new force already on the way to Villa Ahumada, nine miles northeast of Carrizal, and ready to support the action that might come at Juarez.

General Gonzales today refused to discuss the number of troops at Villa Ahumada but for the past few weeks it has been known that a large number of soldiers from the south were being massed there. The possibilities of this place as a military position have interested the Mexcans for some time. Two months ago the International News Service correspondent saw rifle pits being dug there and these have been strengthened by a series of new trenches. These trenches would throw a protecting fringe around the string of adobe houses that run along the side of the railroad track. The houses themselves might easily be shattered by artillery fire, but would make an excellent shelter against rifles.

Juarez also affords such shelter from rifle fire, but the effect of the American 4.7, fired from the mesa behind El Paso, would undoubtedly make the town untenable within a few hours.

That artillery fire will open an engagement here—if such an engagement is ordered—is practically a certainty. One well-directed shot could put out of service the water supply of Juarez and its lighting system. The American officers have not been wasting their time on the border. It is only logical to reason that they have figured out the ranges to a hair's breadth and that the opening of artillery fire will result in the solution of a nicely calculated arithmetical problem. And this solution will be the destruction of Juarez.

This seems so certain that there have been rumors that the Carranzista garrison there is on the point of evacuating without waiting for the first guns to fire. If that had been the intention the victory the Mexicans claim at Carrizal has put out of their minds all thought of retreat before having a chance to kill some more "gringoes."

The Mexicans, too, have artillery, and it would please their gunners immensely to take a few shots at the taller El Paso buildings that offer such a fair shot on the American side.

Whatever the Juarez commander intends to do, the Juarez population does not relish the prospect of American shells dropping into their dusty town. Motley caravans of citizens have been tramping out of the town bound rather vaguely for the hills and desert stretches toward the interior. The sufferings of these refugees can better be imagined when it is understood that food is scare and water scarer in Juarez.

Last night at a dance on the roof of the Paso del Norte Hotel, a report was brought to the gay crowd that the Mexicans were ready to "start something." On the balcony overlooking Juarez hung a crowd of men and women between dances. With the bright lights on the roof, they were occupying perhaps the best target afforded the Mexican artillery.

But they were willing to accept the risk for the chance of seeing the fighting start. Many families have departed from El Paso for the summer, but any suggestion that they left to avoid the difficulties that might arise were indignantly denied. Numbers of the Mexican population of El Paso have left for the other side of the Rio Grande.

There have been numerous reports of clashes between individuals and badly battered Mexicans have limped into the Mexican settlements after unsatisfactory efforts to debate the issues in question on the streets of El Paso.

MEXICAN OFFICIALS ASSUME RESPONSIBILITY

Minister of War Says He Ordered Attack if U. S. Troops Moved South, East or West and General Trevino Reports He Obeyed Orders.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, June 22.—Full responsibility for the attack upon American soldiers at Carrizal is assumed by Minister of War Obregon in an official statement issued at the war department. This says that the Americans were trying to occupy the railway station at Carrizal.

General Carranza has called a meeting of the full cabinet for this afternoon. Then General Obregon will make a complete report on the situation. The statement issued by General Obregon follows:

"The ministry under my charge by the first chief's orders instructed General Jacinto B. Trevino on June 18 that if General Pershing's forces forming the punitive expedition which penetrated our national territory after the Columbus incident, moved southward, eastward or westward from where they were they should be attacked.

"Early this morning (Wednesday) an American force tried to occupy the station of Carrizal on the Mexican Central Railway. General Trevino ordered it to be attacked. The fight that resulted is described in official reports rendered to this ministry by General Trevino as follows:

" 'June 21, 1916.

" 'Headquarters, Chihuahua City, to Minister of War and Navy General Alvaro Obregon.

" 'General Francisco Gonzales reported to me last night from Ciudad Juarez that American forces were arriving at Santo Domingo. Therefore I ordered they be attacked today, and I am informed the fight began at 8 o'clock this morning in Carrizal. I have just been informed that the American forces were repulsed.

" 'General Felix Gomez was seriously wounded. He commanded our forces. We have others killed and wounded.

" 'Seven Americans were taken prisoners, and just now I received another message reporting the death of General Gomez. I am giving the necessary orders.

" 'General in Chief Jacinto B. Trevino.'

" 'Headquarters, Chihuahua City, to General Alvaro Obregon—Urgent.

" 'I have just been informed from Ciudad Juarez that when the forces were reorganized, it turned out that 17 Americans were captured; not seven as stated in the foregoing report. The Americans' interpreter was captured. He confessed that the American leader was responsible for the conflict. I have ordered that the prsoners be brought here. Respectfully,

"General in Chief Jacinto B. Trevino.' "

WASHINGTON AMAZED BY OBREGON STATEMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 22.—Announcement from Mexico City that the de facto government in the person of General Obregon, war minister, accepted full responsibility for the attack upon the Tenth Cavalry was received in official circles today with amazement. It was everywhere accepted as forcing a showdown by the administration. Up to 9 o'clock Secretary of War Baker professed to be without any official word of the fighting. He refused to say what action was being planned in view of the Obregon announcement.

Everywhere in administration circles, however, a declaration of war against Carranza was considered certain should the official reports bear out the information at present available. This is due to the fact that Carranza has precipitated the crisis. In the American note of Tuesday Secretary Lansing wrote: "If the de facto government is pleased to ignore this obligation and believe that 'in case of a refusal to retire these troops there is no further recourse than to defend its territory by an appeal to arms,' the government of the United States would surely be lacking in sincerity and friendship if it did not frankly impress upon the de facto government that the execution of this threat will lead to the gravest consequences."

That is the situation, officials say, and the United States must defend its authority with all of its armed forces.

MEXICANS FALLING BACK FROM JUAREZ

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Juarez, Mex., June 22.—The main force of the garrison here is evacuating the town and entraining for Villa Ahumada, where the Carranzistas are reported preparing to make a stand against American troops, who are said to be moving on that place after the Carrizal fight.

Three troop trains were loaded during the morning and three others had orders to move southward at noon. From present indications only a small force will be left in Juarez to control the situation and they are expected to offer only a brief resistance should the American troops cross from El Paso.

General Bell, commandant at Fort Bliss, is in complete touch with every move of the Mexicans in this vicinity.

SAUGERTIES BOYS AMONG THE FIRST

Recruiting Campaign For Company M Under Way With a Swing—Company Now Leads Third Battalion in Strength.

"'Tenshun Saugerties, front!"

That was the order at the recruiting office of Company M today when the first fruits of the 'round the county campaign for men were enlisted in the persons of Frank Kenney and William J. Wolven, two employes at the paper mill of Martin Cantine. The two boys who thus put Saugerties on the map are employed on the big super-calendering machines at the paper mill and consider themselves expert to put an ivory or blue white finish on any foe of their country.

Inquiries poured in from all villages visited and this afternoon a number of applications are expected. Cars were donated by Charles A. Warren, Contractor Hudler, Frank Humphrey, James E. Canfield and Christian Schwenk. Port Ewen, Eddyville, Flatbush and Saugerties were visited.

Captain Frank L. Meagher was much pleased at this promising response to the call which was carried to all parts of the county Wednesday by khaki-clad men in automobiles who posted notices and otherwise announced their country's need for men. The newspapers, too, came in for praise from the energetic officer, who stated that their assistance is of utmost value in reaching men willing to enlist but ignorant as to the need for their services.

Major Chandler at battalion headquarters today looked over figures on the recruiting, which are not yet satisfactory. Company M stands at the head of the list today with Poughkeepsie running a close second. The figures today are as follows:

|---|---|
| Company M, Kingston | 132 |
| Company K, Poughkeepsie | 124 |
| Company F, Hudson | 120 |
| Company E, Catskill | 100 |

The average number of acceptances has been ten each day at the armory but many rejections are made, bad teeth and feet in bad condition being chief among the deficiencies of applicants.

List of Recruits to Date.

The names of the recruits accepted thus far are as follows:

Frank Kenney.
William J. Wolven.
Roscoe C. Morgan.

Clifford Horsfall.

Marlborough Assessment High?

Charles A. Hartshorn, formerly president of the village of Marlborough, has instituted certiorari proceedings against the village assessors, alleging his assessment is disproportionate. He says that the real value of the property is not more than $10,000 and the assessment is $4,500. He alleges that the average assessment for the section is only 33 1-3 per cent and that the assessors promised to reduce his to $3,750, but failed to do so. James M. H. Wallace is the attorney for the defendant in the case and will defend the action unless his military duties prevent, as they are likely to do.

ADMINISTRATION WAITS FOR OFFICIAL REPORT

No Action on Mexican Reports---Will Wait for Report From Pershing Before Action in Mexico---National Guard to Be Rushed to the Border.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 22.—"We have formulated no plans and will take no action in Mexico on the present information available here. All of the facts available to date regarding the battle at Carrizal are from Mexican sources. We have asked General Funston to make every effort to get a full and complete report from General Pershing. Until it comes we can do nothing. There will be no special cabinet meeting today and President Wilson has no immediate intention of going before congress."

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, following a three-quarter hour conference with President Wilson today, summed up the Mexican situation in the above statement. He we can do nothing. There will be no haste in deciding a course of action. But at the same time, he said, that all of the National Guard now being mobilized will be rushed to the border as soon as the various units are completely equipped.

While every official in Washington from the president down seemed convinced that war with Carranza cannot be avoided in view of the acceptance of responsibility for the attack upon the Americans at Carrizal by General Obregon, Carranza's war minister, there is a strong feeling in official circles that, if possible, responsibility for declaring war should be placed on Carranza. The administration would prefer this way out but many of the congressional leaders believe that Carranza will continue to harrass the American forces without making any formal declaration of war and thus force the hand of the United States.

Consul General Rodgers transmitted to the state department today a copy of the report on the Carrizal fight made public by General Obregon at the war department in Mexico City. It threw no light on the subject other than to emphasize what already was known, that the attack upon the American forces was in accordance with the original Carranza threat that if Pershing's men moved south, west or east they were to be attacked. Rodgers also reported that the American refugee train would leave Mexico City for Vera Cruz today.

It was believed here that the Mexican cabinet, at its session today, might take steps to bring the present crisis to a head. Unofficial reports that the American prisoners taken to Chihuahua City were to be hanged as bandits infuriated army men here. While the report was generally discredited, it was made very plain that any such step by the Carranzista commanders would mean immediate and prompt reprisals. And Consul General Rodgers will make this very plain to both Carranza and Obregon.

Reports were received here today that the Mexican government funds that have been deposited in New York have been moved to Canada during the last 24 hours. If this is so, it indicates that the Mexican authorities see no way out other than war. Ambassador Designate Arredondo denied himself to all callers early in the day, saying there was "no new word from Mexico City."

Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, leader of the Democratic majority in the House, after conferring with a number of associates, said:

"Apparently the limit has been reached, and war cannot be avoided. The president is waiting for complete information. When it comes, he will know what to do."

Kitchin said that he expected the president, when he has all of the facts available, will call for a special session of congress to "present all of the facts and share responsibility."

There was no effort to disguise the serious feeling both in the administrative and legislative branches of the government over the warlike outlook. It is accepted that a call for volunteers, in addition to the National Guard, cannot be long delayed.

FUNSTON WANTS NATIONAL GUARD CAVALRY REGIMENTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Tex., June 22.—Major General Funston today telegraphed to the war department an urgent request to send state troops to the border as rapidly as possible. He is particularly desirous that all available cavalry be furnished immediately in order that the regular cavalry regiments may be sent to reinforce General Pershing.

The militia of California, Missouri and Kansas already ordered to the border, will not increase the cavalry forces now available to any great extent and Funston hopes that the crack cavalry regiments of Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio will be on their way southward soon.

The American commander believes that the Carrizal conflict is only the first of a series of clashes and Fort Sam Houston buzzed with activity today. Arms, ammunition and supplies of all kinds were hurried southward by every train. Preparations are under way for the influx of militia forces that will begin within four days. The state forces are to be assigned from San Antonio.

Funston said today that he had everything along the border in readiness for any eventuality, but declared he would take no further step until he had received an official American version of the Carrizal affair. The general was up with his staff nearly all night getting latest advices from General Bell at El Paso, but during the early forenoon received no word from General Pershing.

Funston made it clear that his statement that no immediate steps would be taken did not mean that the 10th Cavalry would not be avenged if the Mexicans had made a treacherous attack. Pershing has full authority to act; Bell at El Paso is similiarly situated.

"I do not intend to interfere with my brigadier generals except when necessary," said Funston.

Ready to Cross the Line the Minute War is Declared--Mexicans Look Forward to Giving Hot Reception to "Gringoes."

Incidentally, they admitted heavy losses on the Mexican side.

Mexican reports located General Pershing himself at Colonia Dublan and also asserted that his forces had seized Casas Grandes and Nuevas Casas Grandes after violent anti-American demonstrations and after both towns had been evacuated by their garrisons.

Fort Bliss officers think that the troopers of the 10th Cavalry engaged at Carrizal were assigned by Pershing to run down a new bandit outfit. This, of course, would be a tacit answer to General Trevino's demand that Pershing's force move in no direction but north. The Carrizal battle would be Trevino's redemption of his pledge and would leave the next move up to General Pershing. Pershing has intimated rather strongly that his next move would be as convincing as it was harsh. Perhaps, it was suggested earl today, by this time he has a new force already on the way to Villa Ahumada, nine miles northeast of Carrizal, and ready to support the action that might come at Juarez.

MEXICAN OFFICIALS ASSUME RESPONSIBILITY

Minister of War Says He Ordered Attack if U. S. Troops Moved South, East or West and General Trevino Reports He Obeyed Orders.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, June 22.—Full responsibility for the attack upon American soldiers at Carrizal is assumed by Minister of War Obregon in an official statement issued at the war department. This says that the Americans were trying to occupy the railway station at Carrizal.

General Carranza has called a meeting of the full cabinet for this afternoon. Then General Obregon will make a complete report on the situation. The statement issued by General Obregon follows:

"'The ministry under my charge by the first chief's orders instructed General Jacinto B. Three troop trains were loaded during the morning and three others had orders to move southward at noon. From present indications only a small force will be left in Juarez to control the situation and they are expected to offer only a brief resistance should the American troops cross from El Paso.

General Bell, commandant at Fort Bliss, is in complete touch with every move of the Mexicans in this vicinity.

Recruiting Campaign For Company M Under Way With a Swing—Company Now Leads Third Battalion in Strength.

"'Tenshun Saugerties, front!"

That was the order at the recruiting office of Company M today when the first fruits of the 'round the county campaign for men were enlisted in the persons of Frank Kenney and William J. Wolven, two employes at the paper mill of Martin Cantine. The two boys who thus put Saugerties on the map are employed on the big super-calendering machines at the paper mill and consider themselves expert to put an ivory or blue white finish on any foe of their country.

Inquiries poured in from all villages visited and this afternoon a number of applications are expected. Cars were donated by Charles A. Warren, Contractor Hudler, Frank Humphrey, James E. Canfield and Christian Schwenk. Port Ewen, Eddyville, Flatbush and Saugerties were visited.

Captain Frank L. Meagher was much pleased at this promising response to the call which was carried to all parts of the county Wednesday by khaki-clad men in automobiles who posted notices and otherwise announced their country's need for men. The newspapers, too, came in for praise from the energetic officer, who stated that their assistance is of utmost value in reaching men willing to enlist but ignorant as to the need for their services.

Major Chandler at battalion headquarters today looked over figures on the recruiting, which are not yet satisfactory. Company M stands at the head of the list today with Poughkeepsie running a close second. The figures today are as follows:

Company M, Kingston .....132
Company K, Poughkeepsie .....124
Company F, Hudson .....120
Company E, Catskill .....100

The average number of acceptances has been ten each day at the armory but many rejections are made, bad teeth and feet in bad condition being chief among the deficiencies of applicants.

Marlborough Assessment High?

Charles A. Hartshorn, formerly president of the village of Marlborough, has instituted 'certiorari proceedings against the village assessors, alleging his assessment is disproportionate. He says that the real value of the property is not more than $10,000 and the assessment is $4,500. He alleges that the average assessment for the section [illegible] per cent and that the assessors promised to reduce his to $3,750, but failed to do so. James M. H. Wallace is the attorney for the defendant in the case and will defend the action unless his military duties prevent, as they are likely to do.

COMPANY M MAY GO DIRECT TO THE BORDER

Tenth Regiment Will be Among First to Receive Orders, Which May Come at Any Minute--Home Guard Ranks Should be Filled.

The New York National Guard will be among the first to be sent direct to the Mexican border.

The Tenth Regiment, of which Company M is a part, will be among the first regiments to receive orders.

These orders will come as soon as the new Depot Units, (Home Guard Companies), are organized and ready to take over the armories—maybe before that time.

Orders may be received by Company M at any moment.

These are not official statements, but The Freeman has the best of reasons for believing them to be true.

Therefore

Captain Fowler's Depot Unit should have its ranks filled without delay. This Depot Unit is merely a home guard which, according to the terms of enlistment and the oath taken, cannot be called outside the state, unless the recruit enlists under Class A, which he need not do.

ADMINISTRATION WAITS FOR OFFICIAL REPORT

No Action on Mexican Reports—Will Wait for Report From Pershing Before Action in Mexico—National Guard to Be Rushed to the Border.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 22.—"We have formulated no plans and will take no action in Mexico on the present information available here. All of the facts available to date regarding the battle at Carrizal are from Mexican sources. We have asked General Funston to make every effort to get a full and complete report from General Pershing. Until it comes we can do nothing. There will be no special cabinet meeting today and President Wilson has no immediate intention of going before congress."

Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, following a three-quarter hour conference with President Wilson today, summed up the Mexican situation in the above statement. He we can do nothing. There will be no haste in deciding a course of action. But at the same time, he said, that all of the National Guard now being mobilized will be rushed to the border as soon as the various units are completely equipped.

While every official in Washington from the president down seemed convinced that war with Carranza cannot be avoided in view of the acceptance of responsibility for the attack upon the Americans at Carrizal by General Obregon, Carranza's war minister, there is a strong feeling in official circles that, if possible, responsibility for declaring war should be placed on Carranza. The administration would prefer this way out but many of the congressional leaders believe that Carranza will continue to harrass the American forces without making any formal declaration of war and thus force the hand of the United States.

Consul General Rodgers transmitted to the state department today a copy of the report on the Carrizal fight made public by General Obregon at the war department in Mexico City. It threw no light on the subject other than to emphasize what already was known, that the attack upon the American forces was in accordance with the original Carranza threat that if Pershing's men moved south, west or east they were to be attacked. Rodgers also reported that the American refugee train would leave Mexico City for Vera Cruz today.

It was believed here that the Mexican cabinet, at its session today, might take steps to bring the present crisis to a head. Unofficial reports that the American prisoners taken to Chihuahua City were to be hanged as bandits infuriated army men here. While the report was generally discredited, it was made very plain that any such step by the Carranzista commanders would mean immediate and prompt reprisals. And Consul General Rodgers will make this very plain to both Carranza and Obregon.

Reports were received here today that the Mexican government funds that have been deposited in New York have been moved to Canada during the last 24 hours. If this is so, it indicates that the Mexican authorities see no way out other than war. Ambassador Designate Arredondo denied himself to all callers early in the day, saying there was "no new word from Mexico City."

Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, leader of the Democratic majority in the House, after conferring with a number of associates, said:

"Apparently the limit has been reached, and war cannot be avoided. The president is waiting for complete information. When it comes, he will know what to do."

Kitchin said that he expected the president, when he has all of the facts available, will call for a special session of congress to "present all of the facts and share responsibility."

There was no effort to disguise the serious feeling both in the administrative and legislative branches of the government over the warlike outlook. It is accepted that a call for volunteers, in addition to the National Guard, cannot be long delayed.

FUNSTON WANTS NATIONAL GUARD CAVALRY REGIMENTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Tex., June 22.—Major General Funston today telegraphed to the war department an urgent request to send state troops to the border as rapidly as possible. He is particularly desirous that all available cavalry be furnished immediately in order that the regular cavalry regiments may be sent to reinforce General Pershing.

The militia of California, Missouri and Kansas already ordered to the border, will not increase the cavalry forces now available to any great extent and Funston hopes that the crack cavalry regiments of Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and Ohio will be on their way southward soon.

The American commander believes that the Carrizal conflict is only the first of a series of clashes and Fort Sam Houston buzzed with activity today. Arms, ammunition and supplies of all kinds were hurried southward by every train. Preparations are under way for the influx of militia forces that will begin within four days. The state forces are to be assigned from San Antonio.

Funston said today that he had everything along the border in readiness for any eventuality, but declared he would take no further step until he had received an official American version of the Carrizal affair. The general was up with his staff nearly all night getting latest advices from General Bell at El Paso, but during the early forenoon received no word from General Pershing.

Funston made it clear that his statement that no immediate steps would be taken did not mean that the 10th Cavalry would not be avenged if the Mexicans had made a treacherous attack. Pershing has full authority to act; Bell at El Paso is similiarly situated.

"I do not intend to interfere with my brigadier generals except when necessary," said Funston.

BIG GUNS CHANGE METHODS OF WAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, June 22.—"Our successes in the present war are principally due to the superiority of our heavy artillery," said Professor Dr. Rausenberger, the inventor of the giant forty-two centimeter gun, on his recent visit to Sofia in an interview granted to a correspondent.

"The light flat fire field guns have been relegated to the background and will eventually disappear entirely," the German school master who has become famous as the constructer of the most terrible modern war machine, continued.

"The field guns are of little use in trench warfare and will have to be replaced by steep fire ordnance. Trenches, shelters and field fortifications of troops in ninety cases out of every hundred can only be reached by shells fired at a high angle. Only in rare instances it is possible to bombard them effectively with ordinary field pieces."

Asked whether it would be possible to improve the means of defense so as to render even the fire of the heaviest attacking guns ineffective the inventor said:

"The artillery is capable of unlimited development. It is impossible to dig the trenches and shelters deeper, because this would hinder the rapid retreat of the troops in them, if they should be attacked suddenly by numerically superior forces. Even the deepest trenches afford no protection against the shells of our high angle guns and we can reach the enemy with our fire from distances which were not dreamed of before our 'Big Berthas' came into existence.

"We are able to fire across the English Channel and to throw shells three or four miles into England, but the limit is not nearly reached. Without any great difficulty we will be able to construct guns with a much larger range. England is no longer invulnerable and she knows it."

In regard to his own invention the professor said:

"The general staff long ago asked the Krupps to construct a monster gun of certain specified capabilities. The experiments were begun more than ten years ago and we finally solved the problem, but the matter of transportation of the enormous howitzers still bothered us. Only shortly before the outbreak of the war did we succeed in improving the mobility of the great guns. 'Big Berthas' which could be transported and placed into position without especially constructed field railroads were used for the first time in the bombardment of Liege."

From his guns the inventor switched to a discussion of fortresses.

"I do not believe that fortresses like Liege and Antwerp will be rebuilt," he said. "The different countries will of course keep their frontiers fortified, but fortresses with girdles of forts have been made useless by modern artillery. The fortifications of the future will be of an entirely different character."

Finally the professor took up the munitions question.

"The hope of our enemies that we will ever run short of ammunition is futile," he said. "We are able to produce any required quanity of shells and they will always be superior to those of the Allies.

"At the beginning of the war we were not so well prepared. We had to construct an enormous amount of machinery and built many factories before we could fully supply the demands of our army. During the early stages of the war we were compelled to cast most of our shells, but now they are all made of pressed steel and their quality is unsurpassable.

"The British with the rich resources at their disposal have been very successful in the production of munitions. The production of Russia is also far larger and better than the general public knows. The industrial strength of the Russians must not be underestimated.

"I know the Putiloff Works and their capability. With the aid of England, Japan and the United States, Russia will manage to get enough ammunition for her armies.

"The quality of the American munitions was very poor at first, but it is becoming much better lately. The United States will undoubtedly more than double the production of shells during the next six months, but we can await the further developments of the war without anxiety, because we will always outclass our enemies in the production of ammunition, as we do in artillery."

1642—Ladies' house dress, with sleeve in either of two lengths.

As here shown, blue and white checked gingham was used, with white linene for trimming. In gray striped seersucker, figured lawn or plain linen, this style would be equally effective. The band trimming could be omitted.

The pattern is also nice for serge, wash silk, taffeta, gabardine or voile, in which materials it will surely make a serviceable business or afternoon dress.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7¼ yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3¾ yards at the foot.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

CULINARY KINKS.

Make my mortal dreams come true
With the work I fain would do;
Clothe with life the weak intent;
Let me be the thing I meant.
—John G. Whittier.

Place a heel of a loaf of French bread, rubbed with a slice of onion or a clove of garlic in the salad bowl and heap the salad over it.

A Spanish onion scooped out makes a pretty salad dish; also a cabbage head hollowed and filled with a salad garnished with nasturtiums placed on the chop plate with the cabbage.

Beautiful and wonderfully attractive are the salads for a wedding served in the cups of a white rose, garnished with rosebuds and twigs and leaves. The white meat of chicken would seem to be the only appropriate salad for such an elysian feast.

Fish salads are usually marinated, while it is not necessary to do so with meat salads.

Warm gingerbread, cottage cheese and apple sauce are delicious together.

Cut celery in 2½-inch pieces and split in narrow strips, cut nearly to the center, from both ends. Throw into cold water and let them curl. Use these as a garnish for a whole tomato salad.

A tablespoonful of butter makes butter pats of good size.

Garnish butter pats with sorrel, clover or buttercups.

Fresh fruit served with a pyramid of powdered sugar in the center of the dish is a most attractive arrangement. The powdered sugar may be molded in a small glass, by pressing it, then carefully unmold.

Popovers may be used as shells for entrees of various kinds.

Lardoons are easiest threaded if cut from the pork next the rind.

Sweetbreads should be parboiled in water with a bit of lemon juice or vinegar.

Mustard seed and nuts are a nice change of flavor in chicken salad.

Never pack dressing into a fowl; it should be put in lightly. Always salt the fowl well on the inside before stuffing. Draw the sinews from the legs with a skewer and make that piece much more delicate.

Partly ripened tomatoes seasoned with salt and pepper and dredged with flour and fried are good with beefsteak.

ank Trustees Adopt Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Board of use on the 20th day of June, 6, the following minute was read l adopted as an expression of the lings of the Board of Trustees on death of George W. Washburn.

Death has again entered our le and removed another valued mber of our Board of Trustees.
George W. Washburn became a stee of the bank on its reorganiza-n in 1891. He was chosen at that e on account of his ackowledged egrity, his high reputation in his n town and in the county at large an experieced man of business
l one accustomed to large affairs l the confidence placed in his gment by all who knew him, and general belief that it was to men his character and ability that im-tant public trusts should be com-ted.

That the choice then made was a e one has been amply demonted by the record of Mr. Wash-n as a member of this board.
appreciated perfectly the im-
tance of the function which he l undertaken to discharge, he was entive to the affairs of this inution and was assiduous in his endance on the meetings of the rd until later years his physical lth precluded his business ivity. He always took a lively erest in promoting the well-being the bank and his business judg-nt was frequently sought and atly relied upon by his associates its management.

Our intercourse with Mr. Wash-n was uniformly pleasurable and shall miss him not alone in a siness but also in a social way.
cannot but feel that in his death have lost one whose counsels not easily be replaced and that not nity is the poorer for his going.

ELLENVILLE.

Ellenville, June 22—The officers of the Ellenville High School Alumni Association feel very glad to announce that they have a rare treat by way of entertainment for the annual banquet to be held on Thursday eveing, June 29, at the Wayside Inn. Upon invitation Poultney Bigelow, M. A. F. R. G. S. of Malden, has very kindly consented to be present and address the association members and guests that evening. Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow will be present at the banquet and following Mr. Bigelow will speak. This bit of news will delight many who are arranging to be present at the banquet.. Mrs. O. B. Sarre at Yama Farms Inn will entertain Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow, who are of our own Ulster county people.

The Ellenville Chapter O. E. S. Monday evening received upon their official visit to the chapter R. W. Sister, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Frear, D. D. G. M. and R. W. Brother Lewis R. Magee A. G. L. of the Eleventh Eastern Star District. It was a very happy occasion. There were one hundred members and visitors in attendance. The rooms were made attractive by the beautiful floral decorations and the ladies all in their white gowns had its usual charm to the occasion. Very able addresses were delivered by the visiting officials, which were well received. The ceremony of initiation was conferred upon two candidates. Mrs. Frances L. Pierce of Ellenville, and Mrs. Persis Heidrick of Kerhonkson. A beautiful gold knife was presented to A. G. L. Brother Magee and to D. D. G. M. Mrs Frear, Past Matron pins. The gifts were from the local chapter and accepted, each responding with well chosen words fitting for the occasion. Following the session a very fine banquet was served and enjoyed by all present. Among the visitors were R. W. Brother Samuel Scudder, P. A. G. L., Acting Grand Master, R. W. Sister Grace, V. Merhitt, P. D. D. G. M., Acting Grand Conductress, R. W. Sister Alice B. B. Seaman, P. D. D. M., all of the 11th District.

Invitations have been issued for the thirteenth annual banquet of the Ellenville High School Alumni Association at the Wayside Inn, Thursday evening, June 29, at 8 o'clock.

The meeting in the interest of Woman Suffrage held at the Wayside Inn Tuesday evening was enjoyed to the profit of the large number of ladies and gentlemen in attendance. Rev. W. S. Maines was chairman of the meeting and presided most acceptably. The speakers of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Laidlaw, well known people of New York. It was a pleasure and rare treat afforded or accorded Ellenville people to be privileged to hear the speakers who know what they are talking about and they certainly captivated the audience. There certainly can be no more posted or greater authorities than Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw on the subject of woman suffrage in its economic, sociologic and political aspects. The several questions asked were well answered. At the close of the meeting a reception was held and those in attendance had the pleasure of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Laidlaw through the hostesses, Mrs. O. O. Krause, Mrs. Holman, Mrs. Louis A. Hoornbeek, Mrs. B. C. Eaton, Mrs. Henry Horton, Mrs. J. C. Ewing and Mrs. B. C. Taylor. A meeting was appointed for the ladies at the home of Mrs. Taylor Wednesday afternoon to meet Mrs. Morgan, who desires to organize a Suffrage Club in Ellenville. The ladies served refreshments and this was coupled with a pleasant social hour.

There will be horse racing on the Driving Park grounds on the Fourth of July. The committee who have the matter in charge announce the following purses: In the free for all 2:25, 2:30 class a purse of $75. In the 3 minute class $50. Much interest is manifested by the local men and good racing is promised.

Mrs. Ben Gardiner of Centerville Station has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Lauber, cousins on Market street.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Coons are on a week's auto trip which extends to Middletown, Conn., where Mr. Coons will attend the annual reuninon of his class at Wesleyan University.

FRICTION BETWEEN MRS. ASTOR AND MOTHER OVER MARRIAGE DENIED.

Bar Harbor, June 22.—At Mrs. Madeline Force Astor's home here it is denied that there was any friction between Mrs. Astor and her mother, Mrs. William H. Force, over the coming marriage of Mrs. Astor to William K. Dick. It was rumored that Mrs. Force was opposed to the match and had tried to persuade her daughter to give up the marriage without success.

It is said that while Mrs. Force did not object to Mr. Dick as a son-in-law, she objected to her daughter's marriage in the abstract.

GLOBES IN NATURE

Why Raindrops and the Planets and Suns Are Round.

THE FORCES OF ATTRACTION.

As a Crowd Gathers In a Circle Around an Object of Interest, So Molecular and Gravitational Impulses In Matter Act Toward a Center.

Falling rain forms into spherical drops for the same reason that the earth has become a globe—namely, because that is the shape in which the internal forces of attraction attain a balance. In the case of a very large and massive body like the earth it is the attraction of gravitation that controls the form, but in that of a small body like a raindrop it is the molecular attraction of the infinitesimal particles.

The intensity of molecular attraction, which is the force that holds the components of bodies together, is far greater than that of the attraction of gravitation, but it is exercised over a comparatively insignificant distance. In each case, however, the resultant of all the attractions between the individual particles is a force directed toward the center of mass.

But by the principle of inertia time is always required for any force or combination of forces to set matter in motion. The larger the volume of matter concerned the longer will be the time needed for the internal forces to group all the particles symmetrically around their common center of mass.

It is upon this principle that the old fashioned shot towers are operated. Molten lead is dropped from a great elevation after passing through a sieve to facilitate its separation into small masses, and during their downward flight these masses are rounded into little spheres by the mutual attraction of their molecules, which group themselves around a common center.

With very large bodies not broken up into small portions the gravitational force plays the principal part in shaping them, because gravitation is effective at great distances and throughout vast masses, while cohesion, or molecular attraction, is extremely limited with regard to the space over which it acts.

Each molecule attracts a little group of other molecules close around it, and these in turn attract their immediate neighbors. Within the space occupied by a raindrop the molecular attraction is the master force and quickly shapes the mass into a sphere.

And just as a spoonful of water thrown from a high tower will descend in the form of one or more round drops owing to the resultant pull of all its molecules toward a common center so the entire ocean if it were flung out into open space would become a gigantic ball of water rounded into that shape by the gravitational attraction acting throughout its whole mass.

It is by no accident that all the planets are spherical. They have taken that shape as inevitably as a loose stone rolls down a steep hill. Their forms are not perfect spheres, because they have been subjected to outside disturbing forces, such as the centrifugal effects of their rotation on their axes and the deformations produced by the attraction of other planets and of the sun. Even the heads of comets are spheroidal, although they are believed to consist of swarms of small bodies like meteors.

This tendency of masses, whose component parts or particles are free to move among one another, to assume a globular outline, is curiously illustrated even by crowds or swarms of sentient beings. Thus a swarm of bees when it gathers close becomes spherical or spheroidal, since that form is best suited to inclose the greatest number of individuals.

A human crowd certainly would take a spherical form if its members were able to choose their positions as freely in up and down as in horizontal space. Being confined to one level, they arrange themselves in a circle, which is the section of a sphere.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

Political Chances.

"I see when a man runs for office he has to put himself in the hands of his friends."

"Yes, my dear."

"If a woman ran would she have to put herself in the hands of her woman friends?"

"I suppose so."

"Well, I do not imagine many women will run. Think of taking such chances!"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Not a Bad Error.

She (with newspaper)—Here's a funny mistake in the report of that affair last night. It says that Mrs. Swellman appeared in a handsome "ampere" gown, instead of "empire." He—Well, "ampere" isn't very far off; her gown was a bit shocking.—Boston Transcript.

A Pleasure.

"I put through a big financial deal last week," remarked Mr. Dustin Stax.

"I thought you said you were going on a pleasure trip."

"Could there be any pleasure greater than putting through a big financial deal?"—Washington Star.

Obliging.

pique, the waist closing in two scallops buttoned. The only trimming is a dash of hand embroidery on the front and back of the belt.

SHADOW EMBROIDERY.

How to Make This Fascinating Work on Blouse Fronts.

Not for many years has shadow embroidery been in favor, but this season one sees it here and there on many organdie and voile frocks. When the work is done in colors it is most effective.

As the name indicates, the work is done on the wrong side of the material, and in order for its shadow to be visible on the right side the material must necessarily be thin and sheer. A practical idea if you intend to do the work in colors is to hold different shades of the color or colors you intend to use beneath your material. You can then tell how the finished work will look.

The work done on the wrong side of the material is nothing more than the herringbone stitch. Learn how to do this. Practice on a sample of material before actually doing the work. To make the directions clear just imagine you are working on a long, narrow leaf. To make the herringbone stitch put the needle through at the left hand end of the lower line, slant the silk obliquely upward across the space to the upper line and take a short stitch from right to left on the upper line. With the same slant cross the silk to the lower line and take a second short stitch from right to left. Proceed in this manner across the space, keeping the slant true and the length of the stitch even.

Now there is just one difference in the herringbone stitch and the stitch used for the shadow embroidery. That is that the stitches are placed closer together, so that a solid effect is gained on the right side. Aim to let the work on the right side show lines of little forward stitches of uniform size and exactly on the lines of the design.

If you desire to insert veins in the leaves these should be worked before the petal is covered on the wrong side. For the veins use the back stitch.

French knots placed within the leaves and petals of a flower add materially to the effect of the shadow work.

Individuality In Dress.

The "magpie" effect, as it has come to be called, does not by any means imply a harsh and emphatic contrast of dead black and white, though this contrast is often used very effectively in tailored effects and in sport wear. There are any number of soft gradations of tone produced by veiling white with black lace or net, weaving white and black threads together, and the like. A well known French actress adheres rigidly to a particular color scheme in dress, and she wears nothing but black, white, blue and green, yet it is amazing how much variety there is in her wardrobe. Pearl, jet, silver, airy black tulle, rich black velvet, scintillating weaves of green and silver, white flowers with black or silver leaves—all these give her frocks and wraps a variety of color that is so entrancing that one never misses the pinks, yellows and lavenders worn by other women.

When Baking Cake.

The richer a cake the more easily it is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and become a light brown color the heat should be lessened by shutting off the drafts a little or opening a cold air draft. Then continue to bake the cake until a pointed skewer or broom straw can be stuck into the middle and withdrawn without uncooked paste sticking to it.

BIG GUNS CHANGE METHODS OF WAR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, June 22.—"Our successes in the present war are principally due to the superiority of our heavy artillery," said Professor Dr. Rausenberger, the inventor of the giant forty-two centimeter gun, on his recent visit to Sofia in an interview granted to a correspondent.

"The light flat fire field guns have been relegated to the background and will eventually disappear entirely," the German school master who has become famous as the constructer of the most terrible modern war machine, continued.

"The field guns are of little use in trench warfare and will have to be replaced by steep fire ordnance. Trenches, shelters and field fortifications of troops in ninety cases out of every hundred can only be reached by shells fired at a high angle. Only in rare instances it is possible to bombard them effectively with ordinary field pieces."

Asked whether it would be possible to improve the means of defense so as to render even the fire of the heaviest attacking guns ineffective the inventor said:

"The artillery is capable of unlimited development. It is impossible to dig the trenches and shelters deeper, because this would hinder the rapid retreat of the troops in them, if they should be attacked suddenly by numerically superior forces. Even the deepest trenches afford no protection against the shells of our high angle guns and we can reach the enemy with our fire from distances which were not dreamed of before our 'Big Berthas' came into existence.

"We are able to fire across the English Channel and to throw shells three or four miles into England, but the limit is not nearly reached. Without any great difficulty we will be able to construct guns with a much larger range. England is no longer invulnerable and she knows it."

In regard to his own invention the professor said:

"The general staff long ago asked the Krupps to construct a monster gun of certain specified capabilities. The experiments were begun more than ten years ago and we finally solved the problem, but the matter of transportation of the enormous howitzers still bothered us. Only shortly before the outbreak of the war did we succeed in improving the mobility of the great guns. 'Big Berthas' which could be transported and placed into position without especially constructed field railroads were used for the first time in the bombardment of Liege."

From his guns the inventor switched to a discussion of fortresses.

"I do not believe that fortresses like Liege and Antwerp will be rebuilt," he said. "The different countries will of course keep their frontiers fortified, but fortresses with girdles of forts have been made useless by modern artillery. The fortifications of the future wil be of an entirely different character."

Finally the professor took up the munitions question.

"The hope of our enemies that we will ever run short of ammunition is futile," he said. "We are able to produce any required quanity of shells and they will always be superior to those of the Allies.

"At the beginning of the war we were not so well prepared. We had to construct an enormous amount of machinery and built many factories before we could fully supply the demands of our army. During the early stages of the war we were compelled to cast most of our shells, but now they are all made of pressed steel and their quality is unsurpassable.

"The British with the rich resources at their disposal have been very successful in the production of munitions. The production of Russia is also far larger and better than the general public knows. The industrial strength of the Russians must not be underestimated.

"I know the Putiloff Works and their capability. With the aid of England, Japan and the United States, Russia will manage to get enough ammunition for her armies.

"The quality of the American munitions was very poor at first, but it is becoming much better lately. The United States will undoubtedly more than double the production of shells during the next six months, but we can await the further developments of the war without anxiety, because we will always outclass our enemies in the production of ammunition, as we do in artillery."

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Splendid Style For Morning or Home Wear.

1642—Ladies' house dress, with sleeve in either of two lengths.

As here shown, blue and white checked gingham was used, with white linene for trimming. In gray striped seersucker, figured lawn or plain linen, this style would be equally effective. The band trimming could be omitted.

The pattern is also nice for serge, wash silk, taffeta, gabardine or voile, in which materials it will surely make a serviceable business or afternoon dress.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 7¼ yards of 36 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures about 3⅜ yards at the foot.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

CULINARY KINKS.

Make my mortal dreams come true
With the work I fain would do;
Clothe with life the weak intent;
Let me be the thing I meant.
—John G. Whittier.

Place a heel of a loaf of French bread, rubbed with a slice of onion or a clove of garlic in the salad bowl and heap the salad over it.

A Spanish onion scooped out makes a pretty salad dish; also a cabbage head hollowed and filled with a salad garnished with nasturtiums placed on the chop plate with the cabbage. Beautiful and wonderfully attractive are the salads for a wedding served in the cups of a white rose, garnished with rosebuds and twigs and leaves. The white meat of chicken would seem to be the only appropriate salad for such an elysian feast.

Fish salads are usually marinated, while it is not necessary to do so with meat salads.

Warm gingerbread, cottage cheese and apple sauce are delicious together.

Cut celery in 2½-inch pieces and split in narrow strips, cut nearly to the center, from both ends. Throw into cold water and let them curl. Use these as a garnish for a whole tomato salad.

A tablespoonful of butter makes butter pats of good size.

Garnish butter pats with sorrel, clover or buttercups.

Fresh fruit served with a pyramid of powdered sugar in the center of the dish is a most attractive arrangement. The powdered sugar may be molded in a small glass, by pressing it, then carefully unmold.

Popovers may be used as shells for entrees of various kinds.

Lardoons are easiest threaded if cut from the pork next the rind.

Sweetbreads should be parboiled in water with a bit of lemon juice or vinegar.

Mustard seed and nuts are a nice change of flavor in chicken salad.

Never pack dressing into a fowl; it should be put in lightly. Always salt the fowl well on the inside before stuffing. Draw the sinews from the legs with a skewer and make that piece much more delicate.

Partly ripened tomatoes seasoned with salt and pepper and dredged with flour and fried are good with beefsteak.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 22, 1916.

In the abundance of a visible supply, the people of the United States have become wasteful, and for generations waste has been condemned by other nations as an American fault. Not until the rapidly decreasing supply of timber caused prices to rise abrupply was there any movement toward forest conservation. Coal prices have risen on account of increases in wages to the operatives, although the increase has not been proportionate, the consumer paying more than enough to make up the wage increases. The law of supply and demand has been responsible for other increases in cost, and the European war undoubtedly is responsible for some increases. But in spite of increasing cost, America remains wasteful. Necessity has caused other nations to be frugal, especially in the matter of foodstuffs, whose supply in America has been so large that Americans today must be considered the best-fed nation on the earth. Particularly since the European war began has America become impressed with the fact that it is a land literally flowing with milk and honey and all other sorts of foods. Germany's practice of frugality prepared her people for the stringent measures which have been adopted there in regulating the distribution of food. England, by maintaining the freedom of the seas, has been enabled to live without suffering a food shortage, although war conditions resulted naturally in increased prices. Now the Russian Douma has adopted a bill calling for abstention from eating meat four days in each week. All these restrictions indicate the degree to which each country is dependent on other countries for its daily food. While the United States is a great producing country, it should not be forgotten that not only are we eating a large part of what we produce, besides exporting a considerable quantity of food, but that we import more than we export in this line.

In the four years from 1880 to 1884 the United States imported foodstuffs amounting to $503,000,000 and exported foodstuffs amounting to $956,000,000. In the five years ending June 30, 1914, conditions changed materially, and during that period our imports of foodstuffs more than doubled, the amount imported being $1,016,000,000, while our exports decreased more than forty per cent and amounted only to $642,000,000. The increase in our own population is responsible in part for this change. As our population has increased we have consumed more of our own products and there has been a demand for products of the soil from which a part of our citizenry has been recruited. It is safe to assume, however, that such food products which are demanded by palates which long for the old country dishes form only an inconsiderable part of the food imports, most of which have been of raw products which have not been prepared in any way except to preserve them in their natural state for their journey to American shores. In fact, we are reasonably certain that by far the largest part of our imports of foodstuffs have represented live stock and agricultural products. In producing these elemental foodstuffs the United States has not kept pace with the demand. Agriculture everywhere is being neglected. The big farms of the west are the great producers for our country, but gradually there has been an abandonment of small farming, with the result that foodstuffs come from greater distances than formerly and the consumer naturally is compelled to pay bigger prices because of the added expense of freight and middlemen's profits. A few years ago a movement began intended to people abandoned farms, and it was successful in a way in that it procured occupants for some really good farms which had been neglected and allowed to run down, but it was found that in most cases the farms had been abandoned because the soil was of such an unproductive character and market facilities were so meagre that no owner ever had been able to make them pay.

Land generally in the Eastern part of the United States is not cultivated to the full limit of its productive power. Ignorance is responsible for part of this failure, added to which is a disinclination to work farms unless there is a profitable market for the product. There are many people owning and living on a few acres who by careful thought and the expenditure of a small amount of money and energy could add considerably to their net income and gain health. Instead of allowing their lands to lie idle or covering them with velvety but unproductive lawns, such people could raise enough supplies to save a large part of the income derived from other sources which now goes to the butcher, the grocer and the gardener. Chicken raising contains all the elements of a game of chance, but generally a few fowls well cared for and kept in accordance with well-settled principles will pay for themselves and show a profit if it is considered that the fowls used for cooking and the eggs consumed at the table would be bought by the householder in the same quantity as when used direct from the henhouse. Summer vegetables are raised by almost everyone who has any sort of a vegetable garden, but there is a disposition not to raise a sufficient supply or variety to last the household through the winter, with the result that their place is taken during the winter months either by canned goods or meat products. Garden-farmers on a small scale generally find their household expenses far less when a good supply is laid away for winter use, and although there may not be a surplus sufficient to sell at a profit which will swell the bank account to pleasing proportions, an actual profit over all expenses will result if sales are made among neighbors, who would be pleased to buy products which they knew were fresh. The back-to-the-soil movement has not been as successful as people anticipated because the work planned by most of the returned sons was on too large a scale; expectations were too great. They failed to learn the lesson that life is made up of little things.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"What does her husband do when she asks him to foot her bills" "Kicks about it."—Baltimore American.

"Is the water you get at your boarding house pure?" "No, we frequently find traces of coffee and other substances in it."—Boston Transcript.

"When we were married we thought our tastes were congenial!" says she. "Well," answered he, "they are. We both like to argue."—Washington Star.

He—"The trouble with the average married woman is that she hasn't enough to do to keep her busy." She—"No, not unless she has married a man to reform him."—Judge.

Jones—"Could you give Smith a job in the street department? He's a good, conscientious fellow, and thoroughly understands street-paving." Political Boss—"I could only for that!"—Judge.

Seedy individual (Stopping pedestrian)—"Pardon me, but you look very much like a man I know." Pedestrian—"Indeed! Well, you look like a man I don't want to know. Good-day!"—Boston Transcript.

The Egoist—Mistress—Don't you think, James, you would like to join Lord Kitchener's army?" Peaceful Footman—"Thank you, mum, but I don't see as 'ow I'd be bettering myself. Wars for them as likes it, which I never did."

Glorious Kansas.

William Allen White, the editor and author, was praising Kansas.

"You can't smoke cigarettes in Kansas," he said, "and you can't buy a drink there even in a drug store."

We don't hold in Kansas with the heckler at the temperance lecture.

"'Friends, oh, friends,' the lecturer shouted, 'how can we stop the sale of liquor?'

"Yer only chance, boss, is ter give it away," roared the heckler from a back seat.—Washington Post.

Our Profit.

Senator Wadsworth said at a dinner, apropos of the record American exports:

"Few of us Americans are traveling abroad these days."

He smiled and added:

"Yet, since the war began we've been 'doing' Europe steadily."—Washington Times.

Try Anything Once.

During the hearing of ex-parte matters in Judge Donlan's court one day last week some of the lawyers tried to hurry Billy Meyer in some business he had on hand. The sedate young attorney took his time, and made it as long as possible.

"Don't get in a rush," he cautioned the others. "You fellows remind me of Miss Matilda Snowball; you've heard about her, haven't you?"

"No; what about her?" Attorney Waugh asked.

"Why, a friend of Matilda's called her up on the 'phone and said, 'Miss Matilda, I got a very important question to ax you. Will you marry me?'

"'Yes, suh, I will,' said Matilda; 'who is it, please?'

"Now, you fellows just wait till I get through here—don't be so precipitate, like Matilda."—Anaconda Standard.

Getting at His Motive.

"Will you have my seat?" he inquired politely.

"On the ground that I am aged and decrepit" the woman asked.

"No, indeed, madam."

"That I am young and beautiful and possibly not averse to a flirtation?"

"Certainly not. That is——"

"Then it must be because you are a gentleman, in this respect differing from the fat person on the left and the scrawny specimen at the right. I am glad to learn your principles, sir, but here is my street. Good day."—Boston Transcript.

A Hero.

Gil Anderson, winner of the Astor cup said at an automobilists' banquet in New York: "There is nothing more showy and attractive than skilful automobile driving. In fact, I heard the other day about a foreign lady of title who has just jilted one of the Kaiser's most successful generals in order to elope with a Weehawken chauffeur who can drive a 60 horsepower car with one hand and roll a cigarette with the other!"

The injury to Heinie's shoulder, however, will keep him out of the game for the best part of a week.

Pershing with 3,000 men has arrived at a point near Villa Ahumada and has sent an ultimatum to General Jacinto Trevino, the Mexican commander, threatening to attack the Mexican army concentrated at Villa Ahumada unless the troopers captured in the battle near there yesterday are given up.

The foregoing information was contained in a despatch received by the Cusi Mining Company from its agent in Cuihuirachi, State of Chihuahua. The agent stated that he had been unable to confirm the report but believed it true.

Villa Ahumada is the Carranzista base 80 miles south of Juarez. Trevino is believed to be there.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs. James E. Connelly of 65 W. O'Reilly street entertained a number of friends at pinochle last evening in honor of Miss Carrie Derenbacher's birthday. Prizes were awarded to Miss Derrenbacher and Miss Gertrude Kegler.

Recital By Young Violinists.

The younger violin pupils of Ford Hummel, together with some of the advanced musicians of his large class gave a very creditable recital at the First Presbyterian Church, last evening. The first half of the program was played by the younger pupils, all of whom played with confidence and showed the result of careful study and instruction. These young musicians played the following numbers:

a. Three German Folk Songs.
b. A Swiss Folk Song .....
—Willard Sahloff
Romance ..... Joseph Bloch
—Stanley Hummel
Pastorale ..... Hans Sitt
Lillian Leventhal.
Tarantella ..... Hans Sitt
Vincent Van Bramer.
Remembrance ..... Joseph Bloch
Cahin Cody, Malden, N. Y.

Somewhat more elaborate than the foregoing was the "Revery," by A. Wheux, played very nicely by Miss Jennie Hogeboom Miss Frances Weed of Catskill, played the "Slumber Song," by Weitzel, with much of grace and artistic effect. Two "muted" numbers, "Berceuse No. 1," and "Berceuse No. 2," both by Felix Renard, were played respectively by Alphonsus Schmid, and Miss Helen Kniskern, and both performers showed considerable musicianship; playing smoothly and phrasing well. One of the best numbers of the evening was the "Romance in F," by Beethoven, played by John Schmid. There was clear-cut virility, yet grace and excellent technique exhibited, and withal an excellent interpretation. Gustave Cook played the well known and always delightful "Humoreske" by Dvorak, admirably, the harmonic passages being particularly good. The "Serenade" by Drdla was a particularly musical, flowing yet slight composition, as played by Miss Winifred Wardle of Catskill, while the "Stille Sicherheit," by Robert Franz, as played by Miss Wardle was a real musical gem. The program closed with the "Meditation," from "Thais," by Massenet, played with excellent technical ability and expression by Miss Katherine Van Buren.

On Wednesday evening of next week, the more advanced of Mr. Hummel's pupils, assisted by Gordon Burhans, 'cellist, and Mrs. Hummel, pianist, will give the second and last of the violin recitals for this season, at the First Presbyterian Church.

As It Used to Be.

Mildmay is a philosopher in his way. The other evening Mrs. M. gave him a scolding that would have made almost any other man crazy. But Mildmay said never a word in reply. He only murmured to himself:

"And that is the woman I used to hold on my knee and call my little tootsy wootsy!"

BREAKING THE ICE

By ALAN HINSDALE

My cousin Polly was a witch—at least there was a witchery about her that drew men to her as flowers draw bees. I called her a flirt, not doubting that she purposely exercised this fascination upon men in some such spirit as a fisherman decoys trout.

One day when we were sitting at a table looking over a book of pictures together Polly drew closer to me than was necessary for her to see the pictures, and some loose strands of her hair grazed my cheek. I turned upon her and said:

"None of that, Pol. You and I are cousins. We have been brought up together like brother and sister. If you throw a spell over me you'll spoil it all."

She seemed hurt. Her only reply was a reproachful look through those expressive eyes of hers. I considered it one of her wiles, and it irritated me.

"Do you know what you're trying to do? You're bent on scooping me in as you have so many other fellows. You want me to be soft on you for awhile; then, when I get beside myself with love for you, you'll say, 'What a pity that you should have so misunderstood me!' All our cousinly friendship will be gone, and there will be nothing to take its place."

She listened to me, looking as if she were about to cry, till I had finished, then said in an injured tone:

"You have no right to assume that I have ever treated any man dishonorably. Men have sought my society, and, since girls like the companionship of the opposite sex, I have encouraged them to be friends. But I deny that I have encouraged them to be lovers."

With this she walked out of the room, keeping her back to me, evidently to hide a dampness in the eyes.

I was puzzled. Was this a part of her method of enticing a man for the purpose of refusing him, or was she speaking the truth? Whether it was her game or whether she wanted me, I was at a loss to decide. If she wanted me it seemed likely that she had made a move to break through the ordinary friendliness of my treatment of her, which would be perfectly legitimate in any girl toward any fellow she desires to be on lover-like terms with.

Whichever of these propositions was true the effect was the same. Polly had inoculated me. With what? I don't know. Was it curiosity? That was an ingredient. Was it a realization that I had not before experienced that I wanted her? Possibly. Whatever it was it had got into my blood and had produced that fever which accompanies love.

While before this episode it had not occurred to me to trouble myself about how many fellows Polly had turned down, I now began to dread that the next man who was attentive to her she would accept. Then it occurred to me that she might have felt an incipient love for me which I had nipped in the bud. A bud destroyed will never bud again. The thought was maddening. I wanted to go to Polly and undo what I had done.

But supposing she had simply been tempted to try her fascinations upon me? If I went to her with a serious and sorrowful face she would laugh at me. At any rate, what I had said to her about breaking up our cousinly status was true. When next we met there would be something that had never existed before between us—constraint. She would be shut up like an oyster. I like a clam.

And so we were. There was no more "Hello, Pol!" "Morning, Bob!" then an interchange of chaff, in which I usually got worsted. Polly seemed distrustful of looking at me. And I was glad of it, for if I caught her eye I wouldn't know what to express in mine. I remarked that it was a very disagreeable, damp morning, and she replied, "Very," in a tone that indicated the conditions between us were more disagreeable than the morning. Then she took up a book and pretended to read. I looked out through a window. Presently I tired of the situation and nerved myself to break it.

"You seem very much interested in your book," I remarked.

"It's quite interesting," without taking her eyes off it.

Silence for awhile, at the end of which I said, "I presume I owe you an apology."

She looked away from the book, but not at me. She was evidently ready to listen.

"I should not have accused you," I went on, "of drawing fellows in to throw them over."

"Oh, that's nothing. The fellow must look out for himself."

What marvelous consistency! Quite worthy of a woman. Nevertheless there was a telltale look in her eye that belied her words. I drew my chair nearer. She did not move away.

"Pol," I said, "I believe I would like to feel those stray hairs graze my cheek."

No reply. I drew my chair close beside hers and looked at the book she was reading. It was upside down. In order to see the better I placed my cheek so near hers that they touched.

The ice was broken—that is, if a kiss can be spoken of as ice. Then I talked a lot of what I now call balderdash, though Pol pronounced it "very sweet." If she had referred to the kiss the words would have been something approaching a description of what it was.

The Flowers That Bloom.

Cousin Ann—Mamie has been out riding with Jack every night for a week, and it's putting roses in her cheeks. Aunt Sue—Yes, and if it doesn't put orange blossoms in her hair I'll miss my guess.—Browning's Magazine.

MODEL FROM LONDON.

A Frilly Gown Like Those Englishwomen Are Wearing.

Black ninon ruffled into five flounces over net builds up this fluffy skirt, each flounce being bound with black taffeta. The surplice waist is made with folds over the shoulders, the inner one being net over white georgette crape. The pendant is a jeweled Russian cross.

THE JEWELRY CRAZE.

Dirty Ornaments Not Attractive, So Polish Up Your Treasures.

All jewelry that is constantly worn should be washed every month or six weeks. It is not a difficult matter either. All you have to do is to make a soapy lather and add a few drops of ammonia. Take an old toothbrush and brush all the dirt out of the crevices. When quite clean take the jewelry out of the water and rub perfectly dry with a chamois leather or ordinary tissue paper.

When cleaning an article that is set with stones, such as a ring, be more gentle with the toothbrush, for if you brush too vigorously you may easily loosen a stone. A pendant set with emeralds, rubies or diamonds is better immersed in a little eau de cologne than water.

If you happen to be the lucky possessor of any pearls remember they must never be put in soapy water, though sea water is good for them. Pearls that are shut away and seldom worn lose their beautiful sheen, so if you have such a necklace wear it regularly, even if under your waist. The contact with the skin will keep pearls a good color.

Turquoise are best washed with warm water and a little ammonia, but no soap. Soap is apt to turn their pretty blue into a green. When you are cleaning opals be careful not to drop them, for they are brittle and chip with alarming ease. In fact, they have earned a name for being unlucky simply because they are so fragile.

When you are not wearing jewelry do not leave it lying about or in a drawer knocking against other ornaments. Keep it either in a piece of leather or in cotton wool. Steel ornaments should always be wrapped up carefully in tissue paper, for the air will quickly spoil their beauty.

For Convalescents.

Orange Omelet.—One yolk of egg, a teaspoonful powdered sugar, a tablespoonful orange juice, the white of an egg. Beat the yolk and add the sugar and the orange juice, fold in the stiffly beaten white and cook as directed for omelettes, fold, turn on a warm dish and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve immediately.

French Chops.—Trim off the fat and skin from a rib chop and scrape the bone clean, leaving only the lean meat at one end. Prepare and broil over a medium flame.

Chicken Custard.—Half cup of chicken broth, one-half cup cream, an egg yolk, salt to taste. Heat the broth to boiling point, add the cream to beaten yolk, add the broth and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Strain and serve cold.

Edging on Handkerchiefs.

To crochet a narrow edging on a handkerchief or small doily the work will be made easier if the article is stitched on the machine without having any thread in the needle. Small holes are thus made close to the edge into which the crochet hook can be put, and the holes will serve as a guide to keep the stitches an even distance apart.

Orange Fruit Cup.

Three large navel oranges, two bananas (not too ripe), one-half can pineapple or whole of a ten cent can, cup of the juice, juice of a lemon, three-quarters cupful of sugar. Cut oranges in small bits, cut pineapple about the same, put juice of lemon over it. Add sugar. Just before serving slice in the bananas. This is a "feast for the gods."

Substitute.

Mother—Miss Scroggins is going away now, Willie. Come and kiss her goodby.

Willie—I'm awfully busy just now, mother. Let father do it, please.—Puck.

Sad Faced Thinkers.

A patron of the library observes that the people who browse in the fiction department look happy and peaceful and contented, while the people who frequent the technical room look miserable. The phenomenon may be thus explained: The people in the technical room are engaged in thinking, and thinking is the most violent work that the human being does. A football player plunging through the line does not look happy. A runner winning a race wears a look of anguish. A man thinking is engaged in a more strenuous undertaking than football or foot racing. Of course he looks wretched.—Newark News.

Identified.

At a very fashionable and equally expensive tailor shop about town a certain middle aged out of town customer discovered that he lacked sufficient change to pay for his humble purchase, a pair of gray gloves.

"May I charge them?" he asked. "I find I haven't my checkbook with me."

"What was the name?" demanded the rather displeased tailor in peremptory manner.

He was told the name and address.

"Oh, that's all right, sir," exclaimed the tailor, now beaming with exaggerated affability. "Your son trades here."—Yale Record.

Mean Suggestion.

"Do you mean in her manners or face enamel?"—Baltimore American.

U.S GUNBOAT ANNAPOLIS

CLASH BETWEEN U. S. SAILORS AND MEXICANS.

A clash between sailors from the U. S. Gunboat Annapolis at Mazatlan, Mexico, has led to a declaration of war on the United States by the Mexican governor of the state of Sinaloa, according to a despatch received by Commander Arthur Kavanaugh, ranking officer aboard the Annapolis.

In his despatch Commander Kavanaugh says Ensign O. O. Kessing and Assistant Paymaster Andrew Mowat were sent ashore with a boatload of bluejackets to parley wit hthe governor.

As the cutter was being made fast alongside one of the Mazatlan wharves a group of Mexican soldiers opened fire. Boatswain's Mate I. M. Laughter, who was acting coxwain of the cutter, fell mortally wounded at the first volley. Ensign Kessing then ordered the bluejackets to return the fire. Six Mexican soldiers were killed and wounded before the firing ceased.

The naval officer then carried out his instructions and went to the fortress to see the governor. He was promptly arrested, but later released when, it is believed, Commander Kavanagh threatened to turn the guns of the Annapolis upon the town.

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM SING SING DEATH HOUSE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ossining, June 22.—Orreste Shillitani, the first man to escape from the Sing Sing prison death house since 1892, was recaptured early today after he had shot two guards in his flight. Shillitani is under sentence to die in the electric chair on June 30 for the murder of a fellow gangster in New York city.

Shortly after midnight the prisoner, by feigning illness induced a guard to open his cell door. Shillitani produced a revolver and shot the guard in the stomach. Another guard was shot in the arm. The prisoner fled discarding his prison suit in his flight. Shortly afterward he was recaptured in the Ossining Hospital, where he had applied for shelter.

Bank Trustees Adopt Resolutions.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Ulster County Savings Institution, held at the Banking House on the 20th day of June, 1916, the following minute was read and adopted as an expression of the feelings of the Board of Trustees on the death of George W. Washburn.

Death has again entered our circle and removed another valued member of our Board of Trustees.

George W. Washburn became a trustee of the bank on its reorganization in 1891. He was chosen at that time on account of his ackowledged integrity, his high reputation in his own town and in the county at large as an experienced man of business and one accustomed to large affairs and the confidence placed in his judgment by all who knew him, and the general belief that it was to men of his character and ability that important public trusts should be committed.

That the choice then made was a wise one has been amply demonstrated by the record of Mr. Washburn as a member of this board. He appreciated perfectly the importance of the function which he had undertaken to discharge, he was attentive to the affairs of this institution and was assiduous in his attendance on the meetings of the board until later years his physical health precluded his business activity. He always took a lively interest in promoting the well-being of the bank and his business judgment was frequently sought and greatly relied upon by his associates in its management.

Our intercourse with Mr. Washburn was uniformly pleasurable and we shall miss him not alone in a business but also in a social way. We cannot but feel that in his death we have lost one whose counsels cannot easily be replaced and that not only this bank but the entire community is the poorer for his going.

We extend our heartiest sympathy to the family to whom his death is so grievous a blow, and we direct this minute to be incorporated in the records of the bank.—Advertisement

MRS WILLIAM H FORCE

FRICTION BETWEEN MRS. ASTOR AND MOTHER OVER MARRIAGE DENIED.

Bar Harbor, June 22.—At Mrs. Madeline Force Astor's home here it is denied that there was any friction between Mrs. Astor and her mother, Mrs. William H. Force, over the coming marriage of Mrs. Astor to William K. Dick. It was rumored that Mrs. Force was opposed to the match and had tried to persuade her daughter to give up the marriage without success.

It is said that while Mrs. Force did not object to Mr. Dick as a son-in-law, she objected to her daughter's marriage in the abstract.

GLOBES IN NATURE

Why Raindrops and the Planets and Suns Are Round.

THE FORCES OF ATTRACTION.

As a Crowd Gathers in a Circle Around an Object of Interest, So Molecular and Gravitational Impulses in Matter Act Toward a Center.

Falling rain forms into spherical drops for the same reason that the earth has become a globe—namely, because that is the shape in which the internal forces of attraction attain a balance. In the case of a very large and massive body like the earth it is the attraction of gravitation that controls the form, but in that of a small body like a raindrop it is the molecular attraction of the infinitesimal particles.

The intensity of molecular attraction, which is the force that holds the components of bodies together, is far greater than that of the attraction of gravitation, but it is exercised over a comparatively insignificant distance. In each case, however, the resultant of all the attractions between the individual particles is a force directed toward the center of mass.

But by the principle of inertia time is always required for any force or combination of forces to set matter in motion. The larger the volume of matter concerned the longer will be the time needed for the internal forces to group all the particles symmetrically around their common center of mass.

It is upon this principle that the old fashioned shot towers are operated. Molten lead is dropped from a great elevation after passing through a sieve to facilitate its separation into small masses, and during their downward flight these masses are rounded into little spheres by the mutual attraction of their molecules, which group themselves around a common center.

With very large bodies not broken up into small portions the gravitational force plays the principal part in shaping them, because gravitation is effective at great distances and throughout vast masses, while cohesion, or molecular attraction, is extremely limited with regard to the space over which it acts.

Each molecule attracts a little group of other molecules close around it, and these in turn attract their immediate neighbors. Within the space occupied by a raindrop the molecular attraction is the master force and quickly shapes the mass into a sphere.

And just as a spoonful of water thrown from a high tower will descend in the form of one or more round drops owing to the resultant pull of all its molecules toward a common center so the entire ocean if it were flung out into open space would become a gigantic ball of water rounded into that shape by the gravitational attraction acting throughout its whole mass.

It is by no accident that all the planets are spherical. They have taken that shape as inevitably as a loose stone rolls down a steep hill. Their forms are not perfect spheres, because they have been subjected to outside disturbing forces, such as the centrifugal effects of their rotation on their axes and the deformations produced by the attraction of other planets and of the sun. Even the heads of comets are spheroidal, although they are believed to consist of swarms of small bodies like meteors.

This tendency of masses, whose component parts or particles are free to move among one another, to assume a globular outline, is curiously illustrated even by crowds or swarms of sentient beings. Thus a swarm of bees when it gathers close becomes spherical or spheroidal, since that form is best suited to inclose the greatest number of individuals.

A human crowd certainly would take a spherical form if its members were able to choose their positions as freely in up and down as in horizontal space. Being confined to one level, they arrange themselves in a circle, which is the section of a sphere.—Garrett P. Serviss in New York Journal.

pique, the waist closing in two scallops buttoned. The only trimming is a dash of hand embroidery on the front and back of the belt.

SHADOW EMBROIDERY.

How to Make This Fascinating Work on Blouse Fronts.

Not for many years has shadow embroidery been in favor, but this season one sees it here and there on many organdie and voile frocks. When the work is done in colors it is most effective.

As the name indicates, the work is done on the wrong side of the material, and in order for its shadow to be visible on the right side the material must necessarily be thin and sheer. A practical idea if you intend to do the work in colors is to hold different shades of the color or colors you intend to use beneath your material. You can then tell how the finished work will look.

The work done on the wrong side of the material is nothing more than the herringbone stitch. Learn how to do this. Practice on a sample of material before actually doing the work. To make the directions clear just imagine you are working on a long, narrow leaf. To make the herringbone stitch put the needle through at the left hand end of the lower line, slant the silk obliquely upward across the space to the upper line and take a short stitch from right to left on the upper line. With the same slant cross the silk to the lower line and take a second short stitch from right to left. Proceed in this manner across the space, keeping the slant true and the length of the stitch even.

Now, there is just one difference in the herringbone stitch and the stitch used for the shadow embroidery. That is that the stitches are placed closer together, so that a solid effect is gained on the right side. Aim to let the work on the right side show lines of little forward stitches of uniform size and exactly on the lines of the design.

If you desire to insert veins in the leaves these should be worked before the petal is covered on the wrong side. For the veins use the back stitch.

French knots placed within the leaves and petals of a flower add materially to the effect of the shadow work.

Individuality In Dress.

The "magpie" effect, as it has come to be called, does not by any means imply a harsh and emphatic contrast of dead black and white, though this contrast is often used very effectively in tailored effects and in sport wear. There are any number of soft gradations of tone produced by veiling white with black lace or net, weaving white and black threads together, and the like. A well known French actress adheres rigidly to a particular color scheme in dress, and she wears nothing but black, white, blue and green, yet it is amazing how much variety there is in her wardrobe. Pearl, jet, silver, airy black tulle, rich black velvet, scintillating weaves of green and silver, white flowers with black or silver leaves—all these give her frocks and wraps a variety of color that is so entrancing that one never misses the pinks, yellows and lavenders worn by other women.

When Baking Cake.

The richer a cake the more easily it is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and become a light brown color the heat should be lessened by shutting off the drafts a little or opening a cold air draft. Then continue to bake the cake until a pointed skewer or broom straw can be stuck into the middle and withdrawn without uncooked paste sticking to it.

KINGSTON MEN IN NAVY AND ARMY

Just at present Kingston is greatly aroused over the imminent departure of Company M for Camp Whitman and perhaps for the Mexican border, and the community is justly proud of the fine showing that her men are making and will make. But there are others of her sons already making a name for themselves and their home town in the regular navy and army, where they are serving with distinction. Among the number are Lieutenant Andrew S. Hickey, engineer officer and second lieutenant of the Battleship Pennsylvania; Lieutenant David A. Scott of the Asiatic Squadron; First Lieutenant Girard L. McEntee of the Twelfth Infantry stationed at Manilla; Major Leroy Eltinge of the Eighth Cavalry, now stationed on the Mexican border about 28 miles from El Paso; and Raymond Marsh of the Sixth Field Artillery, Battery B, now doing border duty in New Mexico.

QUARTERS OF MAJOR ELTINGE ON THE RIO GRANDE.

Maj. Leroy Eltinge, Eighth U. S. Cavalry, is now stationed about 28 miles from El Paso in the camp shown above. Captain Eltinge's quarters are in the building in the left foreground of the picture. The captain is the son of Mrs. Lamont Eltinge of this city.

Lieutenant Hickey.

Andrew Samuel Hickey, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hickey of Broadway, graduated from Annapolis in 1906, and served on the Maine during her trip around the world. He was detached at San Francisco, and sent to the Phillipines for a time. Lieutenant Hickey took part in the engagement which exterminated the bandits of the South Zulu Seas. For two years he served on The Dolphin, the ship of the secretary of the navy. At the time of our recent occupation of Vera Cruz, Lieutenant Hickey was in charge of a landing party of two hundred, whose duty was the protection of the harbor light house. As navigator and ex-officer of the Neptune, just returned from Panama, Lieutenant Hickey is now engineer officer and second lieutenant of the Battleship Pennsylvania, the biggest dreadnaught in the world, which is now in commission at Norfolk, Va.

Lieutenant Scott.

David Alexander Scott, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Scott of this city, second lieutenant and commander of the Torpedo Boat Destroyer Monterey, of the Asiatic Squadron, is now in the Phillipine waters, having charge of the American interests at Manilla. Lieutenant Scott graduated from Annapolis in the September (first) section of the class of 1907. Six years ago, Lieutenant Scott saw active service in Mexico, where he landed, and was in charge of a body of midshipmen. While on this expedition Lieutenant Scott came actually into the firing line, being shot at and returning the shot.

Lieutenant McEntee.

At the Garrison at Manilla, First Lieutenant Girard L. McEntee, who has probably received his promotion to Captain by this time, is serving with the Twelfth Infantry, having been there for over a year. Lieutenant McEntee, son of the late Girard L. McEntee, received his appointment as second lieutenant, in 1901 from President Roosevelt, and has seen active service for the past fifteen years.

Major Eltinge.

The one Kingston man right in the thick of the present disturbance is Captain Leroy Elting of the Eighth Cavalry, U. S. A., stationed on the Rio Grande river, about 28 miles from El Paso. Graduated from West Point in 1896, Captain Eltinge, son of the late Lamont Eltinge and Mrs. Eltinge, entered the Post Graduate College at Fort Leavenworth and after graduating, became an instructor in advanced tactics. Later he was stationed for some two years at Fort Myer, Arlington, and then went to El Paso, from which position he was relieved in order that he might be sent back to the college where he continued as instructor until the college was closed at the beginning of actual trouble in Mexico, when Captain Eltinge became again an active member of the Eighth Cavalry. At present he is in the camp pictured where the community numbers some 800 Mexican inhabitants. The Rio Grande river was just beyond the range of the camera, being beyond and to the left. The curious brush-like fence around the camp, Captain Eltinge's quarters being in the immediate left foreground, is a sort of sand break, to protect the camp from the shifting, blowing sands which envelope everything. On one occasion recently, he wrote that his cot and other belongings were at the time of writing under nearly a quarter inch of sand, and as he wrote he had to blow off the sand every few lines in order to continue writing. When Captain Eltinge last wrote his mother, who now makes her home on Green street, in this city, the weather was clear and hot, but he said that there were signs of the approach of the rainy season. That meant heavy thunder showers each day, of about an hour's duration; plenty of mud, great heat, and between showers, during the day, very bright sunshine. At the time of writing Captain Eltinge had just sent to El Paso, (Gen Bliss's headquarters) for 25 remounts. He said that he had with him, 34 raw recruits and 19 men who had seen less than a month's service, and 37 green (untrained) horses. "Wouldn't that make a fine outfit with which to go into Mexico?" said Captain Eltinge. Since this article was prepared, word has been received that Captain Elting has been promoted to the office of major.

Lieutenant Marsh.

Probably the youngest Kingston man seeing actual service in the regular army, is Raymond Marsh, son of Vincent Marsh of New York city, who graduated from West Point in 1915. After being stationed at Fort Douglas, Arizona, for a time, Marsh was sent with the Sixth Field Artillery, Battery B, into Mexico, this body of men being the first to enter Mexico, forming a sort of flank to Gen. Pershing's expedition. They went some 300 miles into Mexico. At present Marsh is in New Mexico doing border duty. It will be remembered that at the time of his graduation from West Point, his former associates in the Rondout National Bank, presented the young man with a fine sword.

At War Schools.

Looking to the future, Robert Hasbrouck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jansen Hasbrouck of this city, is now at West Point and will graduate in 1918, while Frank Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Taylor of John street, Kingston, has just entered Annapolis.

Attending Synod Meeting.

The annual meeting of the New York and New England Synod of the Lutheran Church opened on Tuesday in the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church at Elmira with about two hundred pastors and delegates in attendance. Fred J. Walter of this city is treasurer of the Synod and the Elmira Advertiser prints a fine cut of him in its Wednesday's issue. The sessions are of extreme interest to the members of the Lutheran Church.

Two Firemen Hurt at Highland.

The bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Colyer on Vineyard avenue, Highland, was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday. A defective flue is thought to have caused the blaze. The loss is estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000 and is covered by insurance. P. Traver Schantz and Elliott Thompson were injured by falling brick, the former receiving a bad cut on the head while the latter was knocked unconscious.

Kingston Spends a Quiet Night.

Hot Water Piped Into Your House

YOU can buy hot water service exactly as you buy gas service—economically—no trouble—you never think of it. Simply turn the faucet as you turn on the gas, and the hot water—steaming hot—comes instantly. A cupful or a thousand gallons—it makes no difference.

You can have hot water for shaving or the morning bath—even if the family is away for the summer and you are alone in the house. You can make coffee or tea, or boil eggs right from the faucet. You can heat the baby's milk at night or have hot water for sudden sickness. Hot water is always ready for the laundress.

Sounds like a dream, doesn't it?

This miracle of communal service is wrought by the Ruud Automatic Water Heater.

All you do is to tell us to put it in just as you would order a telephone put in. After that, you'll hardly know it's in the house.

It might as well be at our central office for all the trouble it will cause you.

The Ruud is simply a connecting link between gas service and water service—it translates both into Hot Water Service.

As to the matter of expense—a Ruud gives you the cheapest hot water service you can buy. Mind you, we don't say lukewarm-water service or hot-water-now-and-then-when-you-do-not-need-it service. At that, the Ruud will make no appreciable addition to your housekeeping costs.

All of which we shall be very glad to demonstrate. We are making this a special hot water week and have a Ruud actually working at our main office with a demonstrator in charge.

Don't worry about the first cost—you can take care of that in small payments if you wish.

You really owe it to yourself to learn all about the Ruud, so please drop in sometime during the week—today if possible.

"Mr. A," said the manager.

"A great man, a very great man," said Elliston. "He threatened to kick me, the lessee of Drury Lane. Such a man as that must go to London. He mustn't waste his energies here." And he engaged the actor on the spot for Drury Lane.

The tribunes in ancient Rome represented the people in much the same way that the house of commons does in England and the house of representatives in this country. For a long time the patricians or aristocrats of Rome had everything their own way. But when the plebeians (or, as we would say, the "plain people") got their tribune the reckless tyranny of the patricians ceased. The tribune had great power. He could veto almost any act and nullify almost any law passed by the Romans. Liberty among the Romans dates from the time they first secured their tribunes.—New York American.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 22.—This evening the Dorcas Society of the Reformed Church will be entertained at the home of Miss Flossie Post on Broadway.

Mid-week prayer and praise service will be held in the Reformed and Methodist Churches this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Captain Hiram Van Wort and wife have arrived home from Boston. Captain Van Wort has retired from going to sea. He was employed almost 32 years by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad on their large boats. He was the first captain to take the first barge going to sea for them and stayed with them until they sold their fleet of boats to another company. The Avondale, the large steel vessel he commanded last, was built in Newburgh 12 years ago and is now getting fitted to go to Charleston, N. C., to load sugar to go abroad to France. The last trip she made was from Jacksonville, Fla., with a load of lumber for Boston.

The Ever Ready Club were delightfully entertained at the home of one of its members, Miss Ruth Cookingham, at Rhinebeck, N. Y., Tuesday, June 20, 1916. At half after twelve a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. During the afternoon the party visited the Astor Memorial Home, (Holiday Farm), also several other places of interest. Red carnations were the souvenirs of the day. At five o'clock the party left for Port Ewen, all voting Miss Cookingham and her mother, Mrs. Welch, royal entertainers.

On Friday evening the Brotherhood of the Reformed Church will hold a social meeting in the Sunday school room, beginning at 8 o'clock, at which time every member is requested to be present. Music will be rendered, addresses made, refreshments served, and a general good time had. A large attendance is looked for.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, June 22.—The Children's Day exercises held in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning was commented upon as being the best Children's Day exercises held in that church for many years Those in charge of the training of the children are to be congratulated in their success. The church was nicely decorated and the children and grown ups entertained the large congregation finely. The church was crowded to its capacity, many visitors being also present.

The long continuance of the rain is hindering the farmers of this vicinity in cultivating their crops and also delaying the ripening of berries. But let us say with Riley:

"It ain't no use to grumble and complain,
It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice;
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,
Why rain's my choice."

Mrs. Walter Bush and children of Fishkill, N. Y., spent Sunday with her parents.

Kingston Defeated Indians.

The fast Kingston baseball team defeated the Carlisle Indians at baseball at the Athletic Field on Tuesday afternoon by a score of 6 to 0. Kingston with "Dick" Williams in the box had no difficulty in annexing the scalps of the visitors. Princess Hiawatha did not pitch for the visitors as expected, and it was probably just as well for her that she did not for the Kingston had on their batting togs.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends who extended their aid and sympathy in the sad loss of husband, father and grandfather.

BROWN THRASHER

Length, about eleven inches. Brownish red above, heavily streaked with black below.

Range: Breeds from the gulf states to southern Canada and west to Colorado, Wyoming and Montana; winters in the southern half of the eastern United States.

Habits and economic status: The brown thrasher is more retiring than either the mocking bird or catbird, but like them is a splendid singer. Not infrequently, indeed, its song is taken for that of its more famed cousin, the mocking bird. It is partial to thickets and gets much of its food from the ground. Its search for this is usually accompanied by much scratching and scattering of leaves; whence its common name. Its call note is a sharp sound like the smacking of lips, which is useful in identifying this long-tailed, thicket-haunting bird, which does not much relish close scrutiny. The brown thrasher is not so fond of fruit as the catbird and mocker, but devours a much larger percentage of animal food. Beetles form one-half of the animal food, grasshoppers and crickets one-fifth, caterpillars, including cutworms, somewhat less than one-fifth, and bugs, spiders, and millipeds comprise most of the remainder. The brown thrasher feeds on such coleopterous pests as wireworms, May beetles, rice weevils, rose beetles, and figeaters. By its destruction of these and other insects, which constitute more than 60 per cent of its food, the thrasher much more than compensates for that portion (about one-tenth) of its diet derived from cultivated crops.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 22, 1916.

In the abundance of a visible supply, the people of the United States have become wasteful, and for generations waste has been condemned by other nations as an American fault. Not until the rapidly decreasing supply of timber caused prices to rise abruptly was there any movement toward forest conservation. Coal prices have risen on account of increases in wages to the operatives, although the increase has not been proportionate, the consumer paying more than enough to make up the wage increases The law of supply and demand has been responsible for other increases in cost, and the European war undoubtedly is responsible for some increases. But in spite of increasing cost, America remains wasteful. Necessity has caused other nations to be frugal, especially in the matter of foodstuffs, whose supply in America has been so large that Americans today must be considered the best-fed nation on the earth Particularly since the European war began has America become impressed with the fact that it is a land literally flowing with milk and honey and all other sorts of foods Germany's practice of frugality prepared her people for the stringent measures which have been adopted there in regulating the distribution of food. England, by maintaining the freedom of the seas, has been enabled to live without suffering a food shortage, although war conditions resulted naturally in increased prices. Now the Russian Douma has adopted a bill calling for abstention from eating meat four days in each week. All these restrictions indicate the degree to which each country is dependent on other countries for its daily food. While the United States is a great producing country, it should not be forgotten that not only are we eating a large part of what we produce, besides exporting a considerable quantity of food, but that we import more than we export in this line.

In the four years from 1880 to 1884 the United States imported foodstuffs amounting to $503,000,000 and exported foodstuffs amounting to $956,000,000. In the five years ending June 30, 1914, conditions changed materially, and during that period our imports of foodstuffs more than doubled, the amount imported being $1,016,000,000, while our exports decreased more than forty per cent and amounted only to $642,000,000. The increase in our own population is responsible in part for this change As our population has increased we have consumed more of our own products and there has been a demand for products of the soil from which a part of our citizenry has been recruited. It is safe to assume, however, that such food products which are demanded by palates which long for the old country dishes form only an inconsiderable part of the food imports, most of which have been of raw products which have not been prepared in any way except to preserve them in their natural state for their journey to American shores. In fact, we are reasonably certain that by far the largest part of our imports of foodstuffs have represented live stock and agricultural products. In producing these elemental foodstuffs the United States has not kept pace with the demand Agriculture everywhere is being neglected. The big farms of the west are the great producers for our country, but gradually there has been an abandonment of small farming, with the result that foodstuffs come from greater distances than formerly and the consumer naturally is compelled to pay bigger prices because of the added expense of freight and middlemen's profits. A few years ago a movement began intended to people abandoned farms, and it was successful in a way in that it procured occupants for some really good farms which had been neglected and allowed to run down, but it was found that in most cases the farms had been abandoned because the soil was of such an unproductive character and market facilities were so meagre that no owner ever had been able to make them pay.

Land generally in the Eastern part of the United States is not cultivated to the full limit of its productive power. Ignorance is responsible for part of this failure, added to which is a disinclination to work farms unless there is a profitable market for the product. There are many people owning and living on a few acres who by careful thought and the expenditure of a small amount of money and energy could add considerably to their net income and gain health. Instead of allowing their lands to lie idle or covering them with velvety but unproductive lawns, such people could raise enough supplies to save a large part of the income derived from other sources which now goes to the butcher, the grocer and the gardener. Chicken raising contains all the elements of a game of chance, but generally a few fowls well cared for and kept in accordance with well-settled principles will pay for themselves and show a profit if it is considered that the fowls used for cooking and the eggs consumed at the table would be bought by the householder in the same quantity as when used direct from the henhouse. Summer vegetables are raised by almost everyone who has any sort of a vegetable garden, but there is a disposition not to raise a sufficient supply or variety to last the household through the winter, with the result that their place is taken during the winter months either by canned goods or meat products. Garden-farmers on a small scale generally find their household expenses far less when a good supply is laid away for winter use, and although there may not be a surplus sufficient to sell at a profit which will swell the bank account to pleasing proportions, an actual profit over all expenses will result if sales are made among neighbors, who would be pleased to buy products which they knew were fresh. The back-to-the-soil movement has not been as successful as people anticipated because the work planned by most of the returned sons was on too large a scale; expectations were too great. They failed to learn the lesson that life is made up of little things

Glorious Kansas.

William Allen White, the editor and author, was praising Kansas.

"You can't smoke cigarettes in Kansas," he said, "and you can't buy a drink there even in a drug store"

We don't hold in Kansas with the heckler at the temperance lecture

Try Anything Once.

During the hearing of ex-parte matters in Judge Donlan's court one day last week some of the lawyers tried to hurry Billy Meyer in some business he had on hand. The sedate young attorney took his time, and made it as long as possible.

'Don't get in a rush," he cautioned the others. "You fellows remind me of Miss Matilda Snowball; you've heard about her, haven't you?"

'No; what about her?" Attorney Waugh asked.

"Why, a friend of Matilda's called her up on the 'phone and said, 'Miss Matilda, I got a very important question to ax you. Will you marry me?"

"'Yes suh, I will,' said Matilda; 'who is it, please?'

"Now, you fellows just wait till I get through here—don't be so precipitate, like Matilda."—Anaconda Standard.

Getting at His Motive.

"Will you have my seat?" he inquired politely.

"On the ground that I am aged and decrepit " the woman asked.

"No, indeed, madam."

"That I am young and beautiful and possibly not averse to a flirtation?"

"Certainly not. That is——"

A Hero.

Gil Anderson, winner of the Astor cup said at an automobilists' banquet in New York: "There is nothing more showy and attractive than skilful automobile driving. In fact, I heard the other day about a foreign lady of title who has just jilted one of the Kaiser's most successful generals in order to elope with a Weehawken chauffeur who can drive a 60 horsepower car with one hand and roll a cigarette with the other!"

COMPANY M STILL NEEDS 20 MORE MEN

Men With Good Feet and Good Teeth are Needed to Fill the Ranks to War Strength Before the Company Leaves---Only One Applicant in Three Has Proved Aceptable.

Company M needs at least 20 more men to bring it up to war strength and it should have them NOW, before it leaves town, so that it may reach camp with full ranks.

The Busy Street Liar has circulated rumors that no more men are needed, citing in proof that men are being turned away.

The men turned away are those who fail to pass the physical examination, and less than one in three applicants passes.

Teeth and feet seem to be the stumbling blocks to acceptance, the examining surgeons say. A surprising number of flat-footed men are found among applicants.

Another reason for rejection is lack of parental consent. Most of the applicants are under the age of 21 years and the consent of parent or guardian must be given before a minor can be sworn in. This is often refused.

The Regular Army examination is being made by Captain Cranston, the examining surgeon, and Major Chandler, who is aiding him.

Minimum Physical Requirements.

Here are the minimum physical requirements for enlistment:

Height, five feet four inches.

Chest measurement, 32 inches.

Weight, 120 pounds.

Good teeth.

Good feet.

General physical condition good.

When the company is at full war strength any additional men who have been accepted will be added to other companies in Major Chandler's battalion that may need them.

OSBORNE ELECTED HEAD OF H. V. V. F. A.

At the Annual Convention in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday—Andrew J. Murphy of This City is Elected Treasurer—Big Parade Today.

The Hudson Valley Volunteer Firemen's Association in session at Poughkeepsie Wednesday elected the following officers: President, James B. Osborne, Poughkeepsie: first vice president, Frank E. Wiley, Suffern: second vice president, Harry Arnold, Staatsburg: secretary, P. J. McCarthy, Hudson: treasurer, Andrew J. Murphy, Kingston: director for five years, Samuel Fowler, Rensselaer: delegate to the state firemen's convention, Roscoe Irwin of Kingston.

The 1917 convention will be held in Rensselaer.

The election of officers and the designation of the next convention city closed the business sessions of the convention and Wednesday afternoon the 600 delegates at the sessions enjoyed a big clam bake at Kohlanaris park, given by the Poughkeepsie firemen.

The last day of the convention, today, was marked by the big parade in which over fifty companies took part. Kingston was represented by Weiner Hose Company and Cordts Hose Company. Chief Chipp and Mayor Canfield also took part in the parade riding in the chief's car, while Kingston's motor truck came in for its share of attention. The Kingston fire boys made a fine appearance in the parade.

The Fearless Caught Fire.

The Fearless, a gasoline boat used by the Nitro Powder Company in carrying dynamite, caught fire from an unknown source on Wednesday evening shortly after seven o'clock while she lay in the creek at the Cornell Steamboat Company's dock. An alarm was turned in from box 25 to which the fire companies responded. Workmen along the dock extinguished the fire with the use of the fire hose of the Cornell line. The fire was confined to the cabin of the boat. It was stated there were no explosives on board at the time of the fire. The damage is covered by insurance.

Mr. Mulqueen had come to Kingston last Thursday on business, and Sunday evening telephoned his wife that he was starting for home in an automobile. When he did not reach home his wife became alarmed and in company with her son came to Kingston on Tuesday and registered at Fischer's Hotel on the Strand, while she searched for her husband. She was notified that evening of his being located. Mr. Mulqueen's illness was not of a serious nature.

HOT WATER NEEDED IN COUNTY JAIL

Also Prisoners Should Work and Board Should Not be Paid by the Day as at Present, Latest Inspection Report Says.

The latest report of an inspection of the Ulster county jail is by E. R. Cass, employed by the Prison Association of New York, and is as follows:

Ulster County Jail, Kingston. Inspected May 16, 1916, by E. R. Cass. Sheriff E. T. Shultis.

Recommendations.

1. Increased bathing facilities and a better hot water supply should be provided. This need has undoubtedly been misunderstood by the residents of Ulster county. It matters little whether the men bathe by means of an ordinary bath tub of a shower bath. The point is, that they should be made to bathe at least once a week, in order that the cleanliness of the jail can be preserved and that they themselves can be made to live up to the standards of civilized beings. The present equipment consists of two shower baths, which are inadequately supplied with hot water from a 40 or 50 gallon boiler located in the basement. Because of the inadequate supply of hot water, prisoners are reluctant to use the shower baths with only cold water. There is no reason why they should not decline to do so. Warm water is necessary for the cleansing of the skin. A hot water heater needs to be located in the basement. This will give at very small cost a satisfactory supply of hot water throughout the jail. Any equipment which will promote the personal cleanliness of human beings should not be looked upon as an unnecessary luxury.

2. The unsatisfactory condition of the bases of the toilet niches should be remedied. The members of the board are cautioned against the use of enamel ware toilet equipment. A heavy porcelain toilet bowl in one corner of the cell will permanently remedy the unsatisfactory existing condition.

3. A matron should be employed, first to insure the protection of female prisoners, and secondly, to protect the management from embarrassing allegations. Unless in the company of the jailer's wife female prisoners should always be kept under lock and key so that male persons cannot have easy access to the female quarters.

4. The system of paying the sheriff twenty-five cents per diem for the board of each inmate should be discontinued. This undesirable system has been discontinued in practically every county in this state and a more satisfactory system has replaced it. The following system is recommended: The food supplied should be purchased by the sheriff or a committee appointed by the board of supervisors, and the bills for the foodstuffs should be submitted for ratification to a committee appointed by the board, and then paid by the county treasurer.

5. The prisoners should be regularly exercised in the outside corridors of the jail. This practice will help to work off the surplus energy of men living under unnatural conditions and thus make them less restless and thereby minimize the problem of discipline and order.

Progress Made.

1. A beginning has been made in remedying the unsatisfactory toilet conditions. In our reports these conditions have been always severely criticised.

2. The labor of some of the sentenced prisoners is used to the advantage of the county. Our reports have always advocated the ultilization of inmate labor.

General Report.

Population, 14.
1 woman adult serving sentence.
1 adult male for the grand jury.
11 adult males serving sentence.
1 adult male awaiting trial.

It was extremely gratifying to find all parts of the jail satisfactorily clean. At the time of this inspection and the previous one, it was evident that much care is now exercised to have a high standard of cleanliness prevail throughout the jail.

The sheriff and the inspector found a key in the door leading to the female section. This key operated the lock and therefore it would have been easy for anyone to go up the stairs. There was one woman serving sentence, and access to the section in which she was confined was not obstructed. The sheriff was asked whether the doorway leading to the female section was always unlocked or had the key in it and he said "No." However, the inspector recalls that at the time of his inspection on February 24, 1916, the key was in the door but there were no females committed to the jail.

The unsatisfactory condition of the toilet niches still remains, but it was encouraging to find that in one of the toilet niches in the basement an enameled ware base has been installed for trial. The attention of the board of supervisors is called to the fact that enamel ware chips and after chipping a rough iron surface is exposed, which easily rusts and thereby repeats the previous unsatisfactory condition. In Cattaraugus county the authorities have abolished the niche type of toilet and are installing in one corner of each cell a heavy porcelain bowl. While the porcelain bowls cost more money in the beginning, they give much better service than any other form of toilet equipment now in use.

There is no established form of employment for the prisoners. The sheriff has been using them in grading some of the county grounds adjacent to the jail. The number of prisoners serving sentence usually averages between 10 and 15, thus making a small working unit. However, many of these prisoners are sentenced for long periods, and therefore an extreme hardship is imposed upon them when they must spend days and months within the close confinement of the jail without an opportunity for physical exercise. Other counties throughout the state have satisfactorily employed their prisoners on highways and on county jail farms. If Ulster county does not see its way clear to follow the example set by these counties, it should not be willing to confine long term prisoners in its jail under abnormal conditions. It would be preferable of course to establish some form of employment but if this cannot be done, prisoners serving long periods should be sent to the penitentiary.

ATWOOD.

Loughran Co. Gets Contract.

The B. Loughran Company has been awarded the contract for the plumbing, heating and metal work for the new building of W. R. Harrison & Company on Field Court and has commenced work on the installation of the same.

Captain Van Wagner Operated On.

Captain Albert Van Wagner of Highland is a patient at St. Luke's Hospital, Newburgh, where he underwent an operation this week for intestinal trouble. His condition is said to be improved.

CONSIDER HOME SOLDIERS FIRST

There was a very largely attended meeting of the Circles of Meury held this morning at the Y. M. C. A., and the meeting was as enthusiastic as it was large. Mrs. George Hutton, chairman of the organization, called the meeting to order and stated that the questions to be considered as of most importance were whether or no the Circles of Mercy, representing all who had been helping in any way in the making of the surgical dressings, should continue to send supplies to the allies across the water, or keep them for home use if necessary. The other question was as to the advisability of continuing the meetings at the Y. M. C. A. during the month of July.

After full and careful discussion, it was voted to hold, for at least a month, not only those surgical dressings which have been kept in reserve for possible need at hime, but such as shall be made in the intervening time. If, as all hoped, there was then no need of such home aid, the original plan of sending the dressings abroad would be carried out. It was also decided to continue the meetings on the Thursday mornings during July, at the same hour, 10 o'clock, and at the same place, the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Chandler's appeal for aid for the families of soldiers of Company M, should such need arise, was next considered and it was unanimously voted that the Circles of Mercy hold themselves in readiness to co-operate with Mrs. Chandler in such aid whenever necessary.

During the forenoon, Major Chandler visited the meeting and showed the women present just what style of dressings would be most needed in case of actual warfare in Mexico. In order to at once make up such a supply of dressings, three things are greatly needed: Old counterpanes, washed well, and old quilts, also washed, and money for the purchasing of surgical gauze of a specified quality, etc., all to be used in making pads and rest pillows of larger sizes. Of course, all clean old cotton cloth is useful, but the special need just now is for the quilts, counterpanes and money.

From now on, more helpers will be needed each Thursday morning, and every woman who can do so is urged to assist in this work. It is not necessary to belong to the Circles of Mercy to help.

The Agitation of David Mawes

His Ambition to Serve Is Given the Right Course

By EDWARD BOLTWOOD

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

When the address was finished David Mawes did not join in the perfunctory handclapping, but remained motionless on a rear seat in the hall, staring blankly at the speechmaker of the evening.

David's meek face was paler even than usual, and he kept rubbing in a dazed sort of fashion a shabbily gloved finger across his unobtrusive chin. The officers of the Civic Betterment club were talking on the platform steps with the speaker, a tall, lean man, gray at the temples. David did not know him.

Dr. Kellogg, the treasurer of the club, waddled along the aisle and touched David's shoulder.

"Anything wrong with you, Mawes?" he asked, with a professional glance.

"Thanks—nothing—nothing at all!" hesitated David, rising stiffly. "Who is that man on the platform, doctor? I was too late to hear the introduction. Is that Mr. Scott?"

"No, Scott couldn't come, so he sent that man as a substitute at the last minute." The doctor frowned and twirled the heavy watch chain on his capacious waistcoat. "We are greatly disappointed," continued Kellogg. "That man's name is John Tyack. I believe he runs a mission in the slums down in New York. We have got to put him up tonight at the hotel."

"So Mr. Tyack will be here tomorrow morning, will he, doctor?" David asked.

"Guess so," grumbled the doctor. "But the sooner we ship him out of the village the better, I say. Why, the fellow's an agitator—a rank agitator! We don't want such troublesome folks here in Shornhill."

"That's right—an agitator," assented David thickly.

The cool night air somewhat revived Mawes. He gazed wistfully for a moment in the direction of the hotel. Soon, however, he shook his head. His craving to meet and talk with John Tyack was almost a physical need, but David decided to try to wait until the morning, when he might find Tyack disengaged.

Although the quiet village street was empty, David's fevered imagination peopled it as he walked along the sidewalk. He was like one who after a lifetime's blindness suddenly and miraculously sees. To David's disordered vision the roadway was thronged with gaunt men, bent by labor; with weary, patient women; with joyless children born to poverty. John Tyack had said that these plodders must be helped, and every flaming word he had spoken seemed calculated to fire the sensitive soul of David Mawes.

"Whose life," groaned David, "has been so useless as mine to mankind?

SHE GAVE TYACK THE ROSE FROM HER BREAST.

Whose life so narrow? What good have I ever done?" He paused with a hand on the latch of his gate. "And who is more free than I," he added, "to serve among the helpers under John Tyack? I'll do it! He has made me understand at last! I'll do it!"

David scowled thoughtfully at the two storied wooden house beyond the gate. The house lacked repainting, but around it a flowering garden made a brave show in the summer. David Mawes and his sister Angela had inherited this little property from their grandfather, and they lived there together. Neither of them had ever married.

In the morning when David came down to breakfast after a sleepless night he looked soberly out of the open window at Angela in the garden.

"I'm ready, Angela!" he called, rather unsteadily, for since the kindling of his great resolve he had not seen her until now.

"Yes, yes, dear; I'm coming!"

Angela's voice was always bright, although her sweet face was grave and placid as a nun's. She was only a year younger than David, who was forty. Nevertheless, her figure was still girlish and slender in her simple lavender gown.

"And how was the meeting, Davie?" questioned Angela, pouring the coffee. "Was the famous Mr. Scott as interesting as his books?"

"Well, Scott didn't turn up. But he sent a substitute—a marvelous speaker." David nervously crinkled the tablecloth. "His name was Tyack—a marvelous man!"

"Tyack!"

"Yes; Mr. Tyack, the most marvelous"—

"Why!" broke in Angela, with gentle confusion. "How strange! I once knew a family of that name. It was in the south, when I was teaching school there."

"Oh, yes—when you were teaching school," he repeated absently.

She gave him a brief smile and fingered the single rose at her breast.

"You are wretchedly pale, Davie. You mustn't worry so. Don't forget that we'll have not the slightest cause to worry in a little while when the mortgage is paid. We're certain to pay it in a little while; I can actually count the months. And everything will be easy for us then, here together, until we die."

"I suppose that's true," muttered David, pushing back his chair.

"You'd better order our winter coal today," said Angela briskly. "It's cheapest just now, you know."

He glanced down at her with abrupt apprehension, wondering if he ought to accept this excellent chance of telling her that next winter they would need no coal at all in the old house; that he would be in the New York slums, and that she—but David faltered. So he kissed Angela, according to their custom, and walked out.

The landlord advised him that Mr. Tyack was not in the hotel at present.

"He's gone for a tramp, David. Yes, sir, this Mr. Tyack, he said that he didn't get to the country often and that he wanted to make the most of it. He reckons to take the 4 o'clock express."

David scribbled a short note, begging for an interview at noon. Then he climbed the stairs to Tibbard's office and unlocked the door, for the last time, as he hoped.

He leaned back in his chair and his thoughts flew again to Tyack and Tyack's noble crusade.

Would the leader enlist him in the ranks? Why not? He was ready to follow the banner of such a hero, even on hands and knees. David scrutinized the clock eagerly. His mood was approaching the hysterical.

His eyes happened to fall on a memorandum slip which was nearly hidden by the blotting pad. The memorandum referred to a document which David, jumping up with a start, recollected that he had left on his dressing table. Horrified by this carelessness, he snatched his hat and locked the office door.

Noontime was only half an hour away. David, in his agitation over the imminence of the interview at the hotel, did not wish to encounter Angela. He glided like a ghost up the front stairs of the Mawes house and perceived the document on the table by his bedroom window. But when he reached the window David staggered and grabbed the flimsy curtain, aghast and staring.

John Tyack was sitting beside Angela on a bench in the garden.

In spite of his amazement, David was able to note that his sister had rarely seemed so charming. The garden bench was backed by a vine covered trellis, and against the deep green of the vines Angela's tenderly smiling face blushed like a radiant flower. David believed that he had never seen such color in her face.

Tyack bent close to her as if talking softly and earnestly. Once she raised her hand with a pretty gesture of yielding protest; a minute afterward she gave Tyack the rose from her breast.

Mawes tremulously supported himself against the window frame. He recalled Angela's confusion when he mentioned Tyack's name at breakfast. A wild, overpowering suspicion dizzied him.

The notion that Angela could ever have a love affair was practically new to David. He had not dreamed of such a thing since her girlhood. Her later life always had appeared to be contentedly rooted and complete—in the care of the old house and the garden, in her tranquil village activities, in her profound affection for her brother. But now David felt, with desperate certainty, that he could not mistake the meaning of the picture beneath the window.

"Confound him!" moaned David. "And he has a persuasive tongue, too! I remember that. Somehow I remember that!"

He remembered it very indistinctly. A hot spasm of jealousy had scorched his mind quite bare of everything except a sickening dread of losing Angela forever.

David turned from the window and went hesitantly down the stairs toward a side door which opened on the garden. His better nature began to assert itself. He tried to think only of his sister's happiness.

"At the cost of my own happiness hers must be made sure," he tried to think, but as he crossed the parlor he imagined the cozy room without the overflowing workbasket and the little rocking chair, and his heart failed.

"Ah, here's Davie!" pleasantly exclaimed Angela. "Come, Davie, and know John Tyack. You see, he is one of my Charleston Tyacks, after all."

David shook hands, mumbled something, and seated himself on a camp stool.

"Miss Angela and I, sir, were good friends in the south—I dare not tell how long ago," said Tyack. "You can't fancy my delight when I met her in the street just now, and when I saw that time has so courteously passed her by."

"Oh, dear me!" laughed Angela.

"These southerners! He has already given me the most outrageous flattery, Davie, and I have nothing to pay him for it with except a rose."

Tyack smiled expectantly at David, as if waiting for a word from him. David inwardly condemned his own surliness, but said nothing.

"I shall let you judge, sir, whether it was flattery," offered Tyack. "I'll repeat for your benefit the account of my morning. I started for a walk and happened to find your cottage hospital. Such things appeal to me, and one can always learn a trick or two, you understand. So I introduced myself.

"The matron had once been a district nurse on our east side, and she was kind enough to say that she had heard of me. She showed me around. Isn't it a cheery, homelike place, Mr. Mawes?"

"I've never seen it," responded David lamely. "I don't know much about it."

"Well, it is quite unique in my experience of charitable hospitals," went on Mr. Tyack, "because of the countless bright touches which make it cheery and homelike. I complimented the matron for them.

"'Oh, those are all due to Miss Angela!' she said; and that is how I discovered that your sister was living in Shornhill.

"I'M GOING TO TELEPHONE AN ORDER FOR THE WINTER COAL," SAID DAVID.

"But the matron didn't stop there. She told me"—

"Please, please!" interposed Angela, flushing.

"The matron told me more," Tyack pursued. "Told me of the inspiration of Miss Angela's daily presence in the place; told me how, for her, poor men and women whisper awkward, humble blessings from their pillows.

"'And it is not only in the hospital that the poor bless Miss Angela,' said the matron to me. 'Go to almost any house where there is poverty and illness in the village and you will find that Miss Angela has been ahead of you in her quiet fashion—sensible, efficient and kind.'"

"I'm afraid that Miss Holleston is a flatterer, too," murmured Angela.

"Well, Miss Holleston was unaware that I was your friend," retorted Tyack, "and she's a seasoned expert in charity work, mind you, not given to enthusiasms. Perhaps an outsider, like Miss Holleston, can estimate what is going on here more justly than any one else."

"Yes, you're right," said David. "I, for instance, didn't appreciate—didn't quite guess"—

His voice thinned away to a distressed silence. He reasoned sadly that it must have been this very trait of Angela's which had revived John Tyack's love for her.

Angela examined her watch.

"John is lunching with us, Davie," she announced. "Therefore I'm off to the kitchen."

"And I to the hotel for ten minutes," said Tyack, putting on his hat. "I have to send a telegram. I'll arrive late in New York tonight, and my wife will be anxious."

"Your what?" gasped David inaudibly.

For a moment David was almost stunned by his deliverance. When he raised his head he saw that Mr. Tyack was at the garden gate alone. David, happy and voluble, moved along the path.

"Mr. Tyack, wait!" he entreated.

The visitor halted.

"I want to—to thank you," avowed David, stammering with relief, "for—for what you said about Angela, that is. It was something that I hardly realized. I'm so tied down by work that I hardly"—

"That's quite natural," remarked Tyack. "You do well to work for such a woman, Mr. Mawes, if you'll allow me to say so. Were it not for you would all Shornhill be helped by her in this fine way? I think not. It is your privilege to set the pearl. By working for Miss Angela you are nobly serving your kind. I believe, with reverence, that you are serving God." And then, as if ashamed of his earnestness, Tyack hurried off.

David's eyes filled. He stumbled across the lawn. On the piazza steps he turned to look with gratitude at Tyack's retreating figure.

"Why, I clean forgot my note at the hotel!" he mused suddenly. "Lucky that Mr. Tyack can never guess—will never know—what it meant."

The telephone hung under the front stairs, and he went toward it. But he stopped at the parlor, and his hand caressed lovingly the back of the little rocking chair.

"What are you doing, Davie, dear?" called Angela in the distance.

"I'm going to telephone an order for the winter coal," said David.

Political Secrets.

Lord Morley tells a story of how a great political secret was kept by three poor Irish journalists. During the preparation of the home rule bill of 1886 Parnell asked Lord Morley for a draft of its main provisions for submission to half a dozen of his confidential colleagues. The draft was given, duly returned, and not a word leaked out. "Three of the men to whom I showed the draft were newspaper men," said Parnell, "and they were poor men, and any newspaper would have given them £1,000 for it. No wonderful virtue you may say. But how many of your house of commons would believe it?"—London Answers.

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

Early Stories of Its Amazing Sights Were Not Believed.

The first recorded visit to Yellowstone park was made by John Colter in 1810. He was a trapper and adventurer who took refuge there from hostile Indians. His story of its wonders was discredited. The next recorded visit was by a trapper named Joseph Meek in 1829, who described it as "a country smoking with vapor from boiling springs and burning with gases issuing from small craters." From some of these craters, he said, "issued blue flame and molten brimstone," which, of course, was not true, though doubtless Meek fully believed it to be the truth.

Between 1830 and 1840 Warren Angus Ferris, a clerk in the American Fur company, wrote the first description of the Firehole Geyser basin, but it was not until 1852 that the geyser district was actually defined and the geysers precisely located. This was done by Father de Smet, the famous Jesuit missionary.

It remained for a government expedition, sent out in 1859 under command of Captain W. F. Reynolds, to first really explore and chart the region. Several private explorers followed, but so great was public incredulity as to the marvels they described that they did not dare tell their experiences before any general audiences.

The large exploring expedition under Governor Henry D. Washburn, surveyor general of Montana, in 1870 finally established the facts to the public belief and led to the creation of the Yellowstone National park.

A fashionable semi-sport hat is shown here, developed in white novelty Panama with dented crown and drooping brim bound with rose hemp. The stencil work in the form of a bird is a distinctive and attractive detail. This type of trimming is one of the many novelty ideas in color work popular this season.

The Nautical Idiom.

In "Glimpses of East Africa" Mrs. Ethel Younghusband tells an amusing story of a venerable Parsee who was on board a big liner going to England. Some one wishing to make himself agreeable went up to him and said, "I hope, sir, you are a good sailor."

"Sailor, indeed!" said the indignant Parsee. "Why, I am a first cabin passenger!"

PERSHING DEMANDS THAT MEXICANS LIBERATE HIS MEN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., June 22.—According to an unconfirmed report received here this afternoon Brigadier General John J. Pershing with 3,000 men has arrived at a point near Villa Ahumada and has sent an ultimatum to General Jacinto Trevino, the Mexican commander, threatening to attack the Mexican army concentrated at Villa Ahumada unless the troopers captured in the battle near there yesterday are given up.

The foregoing information was contained in a despatch received by the Cusi Mining Company from its agent in Cuihuirachi, State of Chihuahua. The agent stated that he had been unable to confirm the report but believed it true.

Villa Ahumada is the Carranzista base 80 miles south of Juarez. Trevino is believed to be there.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mrs James E. Connelly of 65 W. O'Reilly street entertained a number of friends at pinochle last evening in honor of Miss Carrie Derrenbacher's birthday. Prizes were awarded to Miss Derrenbacher and Miss Gertrude Kegler.

Recital By Young Violinists.

The younger violin pupils of Ford Hummel, together with some of the advanced musicians of his large class gave a very creditable recital at the First Presbyterian Church, last evening. The first half of the program was played by the younger pupils, all of whom played with confidence and showed the result of careful study and instruction. These young musicians played the following numbers:

a. Three German Folk Songs.
b. A Swiss Folk Song ..... —Willard Sahloff

—Stanley Hummel

Fostorale ..... Hans Sitt
Lillian Leventhal.

Tarantella ..... Hans Sitt
Vincent Van Bramer.

Cahin Cody, Malden, N. Y.

Somewhat more elaborate than the foregoing was the "Revery," by A Tavieux, played very nicely by Miss Jennie Hogeboom Miss Frances Weed of Catskill, played the "Slumber Song," by Weitzel, with much of grace and artistic effect. Two "muted" numbers, "Berceuse No. 1," and "Berceuse No. 2," both by Felix Renard, were played respectively by Alphonsus Schmid, and Miss Helen Kniskern, and both performers showed considerable musicianship; playing smoothly, and phrasing well. One of the last numbers of the evening was the "Romance in F," by Beethoven, played by John Schmid. There was a clear-cut virility, yet grace and excellent technique exhibited, and withal an excellent interpretation. Gustave Cook played the well known and always delightful "Humoreske" by Dvorak, admirably, the harmonic passages being particularly good. The "Serenade" by Didla was a particularly musical, flowing yet bright composition, as played by Miss Winifred Wardle of Catskill, while the "Stille Sicherheit," by Robert Franz, as played by Miss Wardle was a real musical gem The program closed with the "Meditation," from "Thais," by Massenet, played with excellent technical ability and expression by Miss Katharine Van Buren.

On Wednesday evening of next week the more advanced of Mr. Hummel's pupils, assisted by Gordon Buchans 'cellist and Mrs. Hummel, pianist will give the second and last of the violin recitals for this season, at the First Presbyterian Church.

BREAKING THE ICE

By ALAN HINSDALE

My cousin Polly was a witch—at least there was a witchery about her that drew men to her as flowers draw bees. I called her a flirt, not doubting that she purposely exercised this fascination upon men in some such spirit as a fisherman decoys trout.

One day when we were sitting at a table looking over a book of pictures together Polly drew closer to me than was necessary for her to see the pictures, and some loose strands of her hair grazed my cheek. I turned upon her and said:

"None of that, Pol. You and I are cousins. We have been brought up together like brother and sister. If you throw a spell over me you'll spoil it all."

She seemed hurt. Her only reply was a reproachful look through those expressive eyes of hers. I considered it one of her wiles, and it irritated me.

"Do you know what you're trying to do? You're bent on scooping me in as you have so many other fellows. You want me to be soft on you for awhile; then, when I get beside myself with love for you, you'll say, 'What a pity that you should have so misunderstood me!' All our cousinly friendship will be gone, and there will be nothing to take its place."

She listened to me, looking as if she were about to cry, till I had finished, then said in an injured tone:

"You have no right to assume that I have ever treated any man dishonorably. Men have sought my society, and, since girls like the companionship of the opposite sex, I have encouraged them to be friends. But I deny that I have encouraged them to be lovers."

With this she walked out of the room, keeping her back to me, evidently to hide a dampness in the eyes.

I was puzzled. Was this a part of her method of enticing a man for the purpose of refusing him, or was she speaking the truth? Whether it was her game or whether she wanted me, I was at a loss to decide. If she wanted me it seemed likely that she had made a move to break through the ordinary friendliness of my treatment of her, which would be perfectly legitimate in any girl toward any fellow she desires to be on lover-like terms with.

Whichever of these propositions was true the effect was the same. Polly had inoculated me. With what? I don't know. Was it curiosity? That was an ingredient. Was it a realization that I had not before experienced that I wanted her? Possibly. Whatever it was it had got into my blood and had produced that fever which accompanies love.

While before this episode it had not occurred to me to trouble myself about how many fellows Polly had turned down, I now began to dread that the next man who was attentive to her she would accept. Then it occurred to me that she had given me an incipient love for me which I had nipped in the bud. A bud destroyed will never bud again. The thought was maddening. I wanted to go to Polly and undo what I had done.

But supposing she had simply been tempted to try her fascinations upon me? If I went to her with a serious and sorrowful face she would laugh at me. At any rate, what I had said to her about breaking up our cousinly status was true. When next we met there would be something that had never existed before between us—constraint. She would be shut up like an oyster. I like a clam.

And so we were. There was no more "Hello, Pol!" "Morning, Bob!" then an interchange of chaff, in which I usually got worsted. Polly seemed distrustful of looking at me. And I was glad of it, for if I caught her eye I wouldn't know what to express in mine. I remarked that it was a very disagreeable, damp morning, and she replied, "Very," in a tone that indicated the conditions between us were more disagreeable than the morning. Then she took up a book and pretended to read. I looked out through a window. Presently I tired of the situation and nerved myself to break it.

"You seem very much interested in your book," I remarked.

"It's quite interesting," without taking her eyes off it.

Silence for awhile, at the end of which I said, "I presume I owe you an apology."

She looked away from the book, but not at me. She was evidently ready to listen.

"I should not have accused you," I went on, "of drawing fellows in to throw them over."

"Oh, that's nothing. The fellow must look out for himself."

What marvelous consistency! Quite worthy of a woman. Nevertheless there was a telltale look in her eye that belied her words. I drew my chair nearer. She did not move away.

"Pol," I said, "I believe I would like to feel those stray hairs graze my cheek."

No reply. I drew my chair close beside hers and looked at the book she was reading. It was upside down. In order to see the better I placed my cheek so near hers that they touched.

The ice was broken—that is, if a kiss can be spoken of as ice. Then I talked a lot of what I now call balderdash, though Pol pronounced it "very sweet." If she had referred to the kiss the words would have been something approaching a description of what it was.

with folds over the shoulders, the inner one being net over white georgette crape. The pendant is a jeweled Russian cross.

THE JEWELRY CRAZE.

Dirty Ornaments Not Attractive, So Polish Up Your Treasures.

All jewelry that is constantly worn should be washed every month or six weeks. It is not a difficult matter either. All you have to do is to make a soapy lather and add a few drops of ammonia. Take an old toothbrush and brush all the dirt out of the crevices. When quite clean take the jewelry out of the water and rub perfectly dry with a chamois leather or ordinary tissue paper.

When cleaning an article that is set with stones, such as a ring, be more gentle with the toothbrush, for if you brush too vigorously you may easily loosen a stone. A pendant set with emeralds, rubies or diamonds is better immersed in a little eau de cologne than water.

If you happen to be the lucky possessor of any pearls remember they must never be put in soapy water, though sea water is good for them. Pearls lose their beautiful sheen, so if you have such a necklace wear it regularly, even if under your waist. The contact with the skin will keep pearls a good color.

Turquoise are best washed with warm water and a little ammonia, but no soap. Soap is apt to turn their pretty blue into a green. When you are cleaning opals be careful not to drop them, for they are brittle and chip with alarming ease. In fact, they have earned a name for being unlucky simply because they are so fragile.

When you are not wearing jewelry do not leave it lying about or in a drawer knocking against other ornaments. Keep it either in a piece of leather or in cotton wool. Steel ornaments should always be wrapped up carefully in tissue paper, for the air will quickly spoil their beauty.

For Convalescents.

Orange Omelet.—One yolk of egg, a teaspoonful powdered sugar, a tablespoonful orange juice, the white of an egg. Beat the yolk and add the sugar and the orange juice, fold in the stiffly beaten white and cook as directed for omeletes, fold, turn on a warm dish and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve immediately.

French Chops.—Trim off the fat and skin from a rib chop and scrape the bone clean, leaving only the lean meat at one end. Prepare and broil over a medium flame.

Chicken Custard.—Half cup of chicken broth, one-half cup cream, an egg yolk, salt to taste. Heat the broth to boiling point, add the cream to beaten yolk, add the broth and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until mixture thickens. Strain and serve cold.

Edging on Handkerchiefs.

To crochet a narrow edging on a handkerchief or small doily the work will be made easier if the article is stitched on the machine without having any thread in the needle. Small holes are thus made close to the edge into which the crochet hook can be put, and the holes will serve as a guide to keep the stitches an even distance apart.

Orange Fruit Cup.

Three large navel oranges, two bananas (not too ripe), one-half can pineapple or whole of a ten cent can, cup of the juice, juice of a lemon, three-quarters cupful of sugar. Cut oranges in small bits, cut pineapple about the same, put juice of lemon over it. Add sugar. Just before serving slice in the bananas. This is a "feast for the gods."

Substitute.

Mother—Miss Scroggins is going away now, Willie. Come and kiss her goodby.

Sad Faced Thinkers.

A patron of the library observes that the people who browse in the fiction department look happy and peaceful and contented, while the people who frequent the technical room look miserable. The phenomenon may be thus explained: The people in the technical room are engaged in thinking, and thinking is the most violent work that the human being does. A football player plunging through the line does not look happy. A runner winning a race wears a look of anguish. A man thinking is engaged in a more strenuous undertaking than football or foot racing. Of course he looks wretched.—Newark News.

Identified.

At a very fashionable and equally expensive tailor shop about town a certain middle aged out of town customer discovered that he lacked sufficient change to pay for his humble purchase, a pair of gray gloves.

"May I charge them?" he asked "I find I haven't my checkbook with me."

"What was the name?" demanded the rather displeased tailor in peremptory manner.

He was told the name and address.

"Oh, that's all right, sir," exclaimed the tailor, now beaming with exaggerated affability. "Your son trades here."—Yale Record.

CLASH BETWEEN U. S. SAILORS AND MEXICANS.

A clash between sailors from the U. S. Gunboat Annapolis at Mazatlan, Mexico has led to a declaration of war on the United States by the Mexican governor of the state of Sinaloa, according to a despatch received by Commander Arthur Kavanaugh, ranking officer aboard the Annapolis.

In his despatch Commander Kavanaugh says Ensign O. O. Kessing and Assistant Paymaster Andrew Mowat were sent ashore with a boat-load of bluejackets to parley with the governor.

As the cutter was being made fast alongside one of the Mazatlan ferries a group of Mexican soldiers opened fire. Boatswain's Mate I. M. Laughter, who was acting coxwain of the cutter, fell mortally wounded at the first volley. Ensign Kessing then ordered the bluejackets to return the fire. Six Mexican soldiers were killed and wounded before the firing ceased.

The naval officer then carried out his instructions and went to the fortress to see the governor. He was promptly arrested, but later released when, it is believed, Commander Kavanagh threatened to turn the guns of the Annapolis upon the town.

Western Union Gives Half Pay.

When it became likely that the National Guard might be called on to patrol the Mexican border, the Western Union Telegraph Company issued instructions that any of its employes, members of the National Guard, called out by the president for duty on the Mexican border who have been in the company's service for a year or more will be entitled to half pay while in the service of the government unless such half pay plus the government pay exceeds their full salary, in which case they will be entitled to whatever amount will, added to the government pay, bring their total compensation up to the level of their full salary.

TIGER WRECKING CREW

Harry Heilman Quits Editor's Desk to Join Detroits.

Preferred Writing Sporting News to Playing Baseball Until He Made Hit on Coast—Now Glad He Made the Change.

Almost every red-blooded American kid would jump at the chance to join Detroit's wrecking crew and rub elbows with Tyrus Raymond Cobb, yet one of the present members of the Bengal slugging combine had other ambitions until four years ago, writes Harold Johnson in Chicago Evening Post.

Harry Heilman preferred the commonplace career of a sporting editor, and, what's more, he had a paper of his own until one day after a sand-lot game in which he participated he spied his name in the headlines describing a ball game. Then he weakened.

Harry was a member of the United Amateur Press association around San Francisco, made up of amateur editors whose papers are official organs of some sort of organization. He could see nothing greater in all the world than his name on the sporting page as an author of an article.

He ran his publication, called Pacifico, in Frisco and played amateur ball. Then he was grabbed by the Coast league, and when he saw his name in big type in the papers he decided it was better than for him to put someone else's name where he now was appearing. So he dropped his first ambition and decided to stick to the national pastime.

Heilman was drafted by Detroit, later returned to Frisco and was recalled this spring. His work has been a feature of the Tiger playing, and the wrecking crew now consists of Cobb, Crawford, Veach, and Heilman.

OUTFIELDER FLACK TO STAR

Combines Desired Slugging Faculty With the Willie Keeler Style of Hitting Bunts.

One Chicago critic is of the belief that Max Flack, Cub outfielder, late of the Chifeds, will outshine Kauff. Flack, it appears, combines the desired slugging faculty with the Willie Keeler style of hitting.

He may rattle the boards in one bat effort, then, with the opposition set for another slam, he is likely to drop a tap along the base lines and race ahead of the ball to first base. His booster says he can run exceptionally fast, field a la Carey, bat .300 and throw with the best.

Advocate of Clean Sport.

Manager Donovan of the New Yorks is an advocate of clean sport. As a player, he behaved himself on the diamond and as a manager he believes in gentlemanly conduct. The New Yorks, therefore, will not be permitted to browbeat umpires or to indulge in quarrels with their opponents. Donovan wants to win fairly and squarely or not at all.

HUTTON'S BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

Big Brickyard Barn Wiped Out by Flames—Thought to Have Been Set on Fire by a Boy.

The big brickyard barn of the Hutton Company on North street was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon and but for the quick work of the firemen several of the houses occupied by laborers on the yard would have been wiped out by the flames. From what could be learned it is thought that a boy playing around the barn set fire to it. The barn was an old wooden structure and burned like tinder. At least one horse was destroyed by fire. It is thought the other horses were all out on yard at work. It was said that the oss is covered by insurance.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM.

Cavities Holding Pus, It Is Claimed, Breed the Dread Ailment.

In the American Magazine is an article on rheumatism by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, who says:

"The cause of rheumatism is pus formed and imprisoned in some part of the body. It gets into the circulation and is carried by it to the region affected. These pus places may be in spots more or less closed up, so they are not easily drained. They may be located about the teeth, at the end of the roots of dead or diseased teeth, in the crypts of the tonsils, in some of the sequestered places in the nostrils, in the bony sinuses of the head. They may be in the bladder, the kidney, the gall ducts or other places. The pus producing spot may be as small or smaller than a pea or it may be larger. Its existence is frequently unknown to the patient, especially if it be hidden in soft tissue like the tonsil. It may even exist in the bony socket of a tooth without giving pain.

"Several different organisms produce pus, and any or all may produce rheumatism when transferred to the joints or the heart.

"The physician today seeks for the pus cavity when he meets a patient with rheumatism, and he endeavors to clean it up. Rheumatic pains have been stopped with magical promptness by simply extracting the offending tooth. It is not always easy to find the pus places in the hidden parts of the body. The X ray shadowgraph is essential in locating the trouble. It shows definitely and accurately all trouble about the roots of the teeth, and its use is therefore of the first importance in ferreting out the pus in the deep structures."

Duncan Smoked In Church.

Sir Walter Scott in his "Heart of Midlothian" refers to one Duncan of Knockdunder, an important personage, who smoked during the whole of the sermon from an iron pipe tobacco borrowed from other worshipers. We are told that at the end of the discourse he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, replaced it in his sporran, returned the tobacco pouch to its owner and joined in the prayer with decency and attention.

Domestic Strategy.

Husband—I am not ready to go out yet. Wife—But I am, and we must go immediately. Husband—But, my dear, your hat is not on straight. Wife—Dear me! Isn't it? Wait a minute till I go to my room and put it right.

Exit wife for half an hour, and her shrewd husband completes his work.

Argentina.

If the country has the same average potentiality for producing food as land similarly situated in North America or Europe, it would seem that Argentina can support 100,000,000 people easily, as only small parts of it lie outside the temperate zone.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section fifteen hundred and ninety-four of the code of civil procedure is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 1594. The people of the state may be made a party defendant to an action for the partition of real property, in the same manner as a private person. In such a case the summons must be served upon the attorney-general who must appear in behalf of the people, but where the people of the state of New York are made a party defendant, as herein provided, the complaint shall set forth, in addition to the other matters required to be set forth by the code of civil procedure detailed facts showing the nature and extent of the interest in or lien on the said real property of the people of the state of New York and the reason for making the people a party. Upon failure to state such facts, the complaint shall be dismissed, as to the people of the state of New York. The commissioners of the land office, whenever they deem it for the best interests of the state, may order the treasurer on the warrant of the comptroller to pay off and cancel any mortgage, tax, or other encumbrance, or any amount due thereon, or to acquire any undivided interest, adverse to the state, existing on any lands belonging to the state, or in which the state has an interest, to perfect in the state a title to any such lands or to protect the state's interest therein, and the plaintiff shall not be entitled to costs in an action wherein the people of the state are made a party defendant, unless the commissioners of the land office, after a full presentation of the facts to them shall have determined before the action of partition is brought against the state that the interests of the state did not warrant their making an order for the payment or cancellation of said mortgage, lien or encumbrance, or any amount due thereon, or for the acquisition of any outstanding undivided interest adverse to the state, or unless the commissioners of the land office shall have failed to make such determination within three months after such full presentation of facts shall have been made to them by a verified statement in writing, and filed with the secretary of said commissioners at his office in the city of Albany, nor unless a certified copy of the commissioners' report of partition, and of the referee's or sheriff's report of sale, in case of a sale, filed in the action shall have first been duly served upon the attorney-general; nor in any event shall an additional allowance under sections thirty-two hundred and fifty-two or thirty-two hundred and fifty-three of this act be made to the plaintiff, in an action wherein the people of the state of New York are made a party defendant.

§ 2. This act shall take effect September first, nineteen hundred and sixteen.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 332.

AN ACT to amend the tax law, in relation to collector's returns of unpaid taxes.

Became a law April 27, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section eighty-one of chapter sixty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to taxation, constituting chapter sixty of the consolidated laws," as amended by chapter two hundred and forty of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 81. Fees of collector. On all taxes paid within thirty days from the date of notice that he has received the roll, the collector shall be entitled to receive, if the aggregate amount shall not exceed two thousand dollars, two per centum, and otherwise one per centum, in addition thereto. On all taxes collected after the expiration of such period of thirty days, the collector shall be entitled to receive five per centum in addition thereto. The collector shall be entitled to receive from the county treasurer two per centum as fees for all taxes returned to the county treasury as unpaid. In Suffolk county no fees shall be paid by the county treasurer on returned taxes.

§ 2. Section eighty-two of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 82. Return by collector of unpaid taxes. Each collector shall immediately upon the expiration of his warrant make and deliver to the county treasurer an account of unpaid taxes, upon the tax-roll annexed to his warrant, which he shall not have been able to collect, verified by his affidavit, that the sums mentioned therein remain unpaid, and that he has not, upon diligent inquiry, been able to discover any personal property out of which the same could be collected by levy and sale, and upon the verification of the said account by the county treasurer he shall be credited by the county treasurer with the amount of such account. In making such return of unpaid taxes, the collector shall add thereto five per centum of the amount thereof. In case such tax is uncollected upon lands assessed to a resident he shall also state the reason why the same was not collected. In the county of Suffolk such return shall consist of the tax-roll and warrant together with the affidavit of the collector known also as the receiver of taxes that the taxes therein appearing, not marked paid, remain unpaid and that he has not upon diligent inquiry been able to discover any personal property out of which the same could be collected by levy and sale, together with a statement of the total amount of such unpaid taxes, and that he has in an appropriate column in said tax-roll, opposite the tax levied upon each separate parcel, or person therein named or described, inserted five per centum of the amount of the unpaid tax, and no separate copy or account of such unpaid taxes shall be made or required of collectors, or receivers in such county. Any collector who has heretofore failed in making such return of unpaid taxes, may make such return, whether his term of office has expired or not, verified by his affidavit, to the county treasurer any time within eight years after such failure and before the lands against which said taxes are assessed are advertised for sale pursuant to this chapter, and in case any collector shall heretofore or hereafter fail to add said five per centum the county treasurer shall add the same. Such return shall be indorsed upon or attached to said roll, and shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be in the form to be prescribed by the state board of tax commissioners. Such tax and percentage may be paid to the county treasurer at any time before a return is made to the comptroller, or in the county of Suffolk such tax, percentage and interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum computed from the first day of February after the same was levied may be paid to the county treasurer at any time before the first day of August succeeding the date of the warrant and thereafter at any time before the sale of the land for such unpaid tax upon the payment of such tax, percentage and interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum, computed from the first day of February after the same was levied and the cost of advertising the land for sale for such unpaid taxes as apportioned by the county treasurer among the several parcels liable to be sold. The county treasurer in counties in which lands are sold by him for the nonpayment of taxes, is hereby authorized to incur and pay for such expenses as he may deem necessary for the examination of collector's returns and descriptions of property to be sold pursuant to this chapter, and the procurement of proper collector's returns and the examinations and procurement of matters and facts as he may deem necessary to make a valid tax sale hereunder, but such expense shall not exceed the amount of the five per centum added as aforesaid.

§ 3. Section eighty-nine of such chapter, as amended by chapter six hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and thirteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 89. Unpaid taxes on resident real property to be reassessed. When the tax on any real property, not assessed as nonresident, is returned as unpaid and so remains, the county treasurer shall, unless such tax shall have been rejected as provided by section eighty-eight-a, immediately deliver a transcript thereof to the supervisor of the tax district in which such tax is assessed. Such supervisor shall, if in his power, within thirty days thereafter, cause an accurate description of such real property to be made and returned to said treasurer, with the correct amount of taxes thereon, each kind of tax being stated separately, and if necessary, he may cause a survey and map of any of said real property to be made, and the expense of such survey and map on or for each lot or parcel shall be returned to said treasurer, and be a legal charge upon such real property and be collected with the taxes thereon. The amount of such tax shall bear interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum from the first day of February until paid, or until the sale of such property to satisfy such tax by the county treasurer, or if the property is located in a county embracing a portion of the forest preserve, until the return of such unpaid tax to the comptroller. And such real property and the tax thereon shall be regarded for all purposes of assessment, collection and sale as nonresident, and subject to all the provisions of the tax law in relation to nonresident real property and nonresident taxes.

§ 4. Section one hundred and fifty-two of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 152. Redemption. The owner, occupant or any other person having an interest in any real estate sold for taxes as aforesaid may redeem the same at any time within one year after the last day of such sale, by paying to the county treasurer of the county, for the use of the purchaser, the sum mentioned in his certificate, together with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum per annum, to be computed from the date of such certificate, and any tax which the holder of said certificate shall have paid between the days of sale and redemption, provided such purchaser shall have notified the county treasurer thereof immediately upon the payment of such tax, together with the share of the expense of the publication of notices to redeem the real estate sold in such county for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the county treasurer to the real estate so redeemed, which expense shall be in the first instance a county charge and shall be at the same rate as that provided for the publication of notices of tax sales. In case any parcel of real estate mentioned in such notice to redeem shall not be redeemed within the one year allowed by law for such redemption then and in that event the share of the expense of the publication of notices to redeem such unredeemed real estate sold in any such county for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the county treasurer, together with interest thereon for one year at the rate of ten per centum per annum, shall be laid before the board of supervisors of such county for reassessment as are other taxes and shall be by such board of supervisors reassessed upon the assessment roll of the current year against such real estate and shall be a lien thereon.

§5. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 333.

AN ACT to amend the tax law, in relation to the franchise tax on corporations.

Became a law April 27, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section one hundred and eighty-two of chapter sixty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to taxation, constituting chapter sixty of the consolidated laws," as amended by chapter three hundred and seventeen of the laws of nineteen hundred and fifteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 182. Franchise tax on corporations. For the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises in this state every domestic corporation, joint stock company or association, and for the purpose of doing business in this state, every foreign corporation, joint stock company or association, shall pay to the state treasurer annually, in advance, an annual tax to be computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock, employed during the preceding year within this state, and upon each dollar of such amount. The measure of the amount of capital stock employed in this state shall be such a portion of the issued capital stock as the gross assets employed in any business within this state bear to the gross assets wherever employed in business. For purposes of taxation, the capital of a corporation invested in the stock of another corporation shall be deemed to be assets located where the physical property represented by such stock is located. If the dividends upon the capital stock amount to six, or more than six per centum upon the par value of the capital stock, during any year ending with the thirty-first day of October, the tax shall be at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per centum of dividends made or declared upon the par value of the capital stock during said year. If such dividend or dividends amount to less than six per centum of the par value of the capital stock, and

(1) The assets do not exceed the liabilities, exclusive of capital stock, or

(2) The average price at which such stock sold during said year did not equal or exceed its par value, or

(3) If no dividend was declared,

Then each dollar of the amount of capital stock employed in this state, determined as hereinbefore provided, shall be taxed at the rate of three-fourths of one mill. If such dividend or dividends amount to less than six per centum on the par value of the capital stock, and

(1) The assets exceed the liabilities, exclusive of capital stock, by an amount equal to or greater than the par value of the capital stock, or

(2) The average price at which such stock sold during said year is equal to or greater than the par value.

Then the amount of capital stock, determined as hereinbefore provided to be employed in this state, shall be taxed at the rate of one and one-half mills on each dollar of the valuation of the capital stock employed in this state, but such valuation shall not be less than

(1) The par value of such stock,

(2) The difference between the assets and liabilities, exclusive of capital stock,

(3) The average price at which such stock sold during said year.

If such corporation, joint stock company or association shall have more than one kind of capital stock, and upon one of such kinds of stock a dividend or dividends amounting to six or more than six per centum upon the par value thereon, has been made or declared, and upon the other no dividend has been made or declared, or the dividend or dividends made or declared thereon amount to less than six per centum upon the par value thereof, then the tax shall be at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per centum of dividends made or declared upon the capital stock the par value of which the dividend or dividends made or declared amount to six or more than six per centum, and in addition thereto a tax shall be charged upon the capital stock

(1) Upon which no dividend was made or declared, or

(2) Upon which the dividend or dividends made or declared did not amount to six per centum upon the par value.

At the rate as hereinbefore provided for the taxation of capital stock upon which no dividend was made or declared, or upon which the dividend or dividends made or declared did not amount to six per centum on the par value.

All corporations not taxable under the preceding paragraphs of this section shall be taxed in an amount not less than would be produced by an assessment of one and one-half mills on each one dollar of the actual value of its capital stock, determined to be employed in this state as hereinbefore provided, or one and one-half mills upon each dollar of such capital stock at the average price at which said stock sold during the said year.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 334.

AN ACT to amend the tax law, in relation to the assessment of special franchises.

Became a law April 27, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section forty-three of chapter sixty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to taxation, constituting chapter sixty of the consolidated laws," as amended by chapter two hundred and seventy-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, chapters seven and four hundred and fifty-eight of the laws of nineteen hundred and ten and chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 2. Section forty-four of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 44. Special franchise report to tax commission. Every person, copartnership, association or corporation subject to taxation on a special franchise, shall, within thirty days after such special franchise is acquired, make a written report to the tax commission containing a full description of every special franchise possessed or enjoyed by such person, copartnership, association or corporation, a copy of the special law, grant, ordinance or contract under which the same is held, or if possessed or enjoyed under a general law, a reference to such law, a statement of any condition, obligation or burden imposed upon such special franchise, or under which the same is enjoyed, together with any other information relating to the value of such special franchise, required by the tax commission. The tax commission may require an annual report and from time to time a further or supplemental report from any such person, copartnership, association or corporation containing information and data upon such matters as it may specify. Every report required by this section shall have annexed thereto the affidavit of the president, vice-president, secretary of treasurer of the association or corporation, or one of the persons or one of the members of the copartnership making the same, to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. Such commission may prepare blanks to be used in making the reports required by this section. Every person, copartnership, association or corporation failing to make the report required by this section, or failing to make any special report required by the tax commission within a reasonable time specified by it, shall forfeit to the people of the state the sum of one hundred dollars for every such failure and the additional sum of ten dollars for each day that such failure continues, and shall not be entitled to review the assessment by certiorari, as provided by section forty-six of this chapter. Acknowledgment of receipt of blank reports which contain the penalty provisions of this section shall be deemed sufficient notice of such penalties.

§ 3. Section forty-five of such chapter, as amended by chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 4. Such chapter is hereby amended by inserting therein a new section to be section forty-five, to read as follows:

§ 45. Special franchise; full valuation and equalization by tax commission. The tax commission shall annually fix and determine the full and actual valuation of each special franchise subject to assessment in each city, town or village; shall inquire into and ascertain as near as may be the percentage of the full and actual value at which other real property in the city, town or village for which full valuation has been made, is being assessed, and by the rate of equalization so established fix and determine the equalized valuation of each special franchise subject to assessment.

§ 5. Section forty-five-a of such chapter, as added by chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 6. Such chapter is hereby amended by inserting therein six new sections, to be sections forty-five-a to forty-five-f, inclusive, to read, respectively, as follows:

§ 45-a. Hearing on special franchise valuations; notice. On determining the full and actual valuation of a special franchise and the rate of equalization thereof the tax commission shall immediately give notice in writing to the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected, and to each city, town or village in which such special franchise is subject to assessment, stating in substance that such determinations have been made and the total full and actual valuation and the rate of equalization thereof in each city, town and village, and that the commission will meet at its office in the city of Albany on a day specified in such notice, to hear and determine any complaint concerning such full valuation and the rate of equalization. Such notice must be served at least ten days before the day fixed for the hearing; and it may be served on a copartnership, association or corporation by mailing a copy thereof to it at its principal office or place of business and on a person, either personally or by mailing it to him at his place of business or last known place of residence. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of such special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. In the city of New York said statement shall be filed with the department of taxes and assessments. Such statement shall be filed with the clerk of the village not later than the first day of October and with the clerk of the city, or the department of taxes and assessments in the city of New York, not later than thirty days before the final completion, verification and filing of the assessment-roll. The statement of special franchise valuations in towns shall be made in duplicate, one copy to be filed with the town clerk not later than August first, and the other copy with the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county not later than September first.

Each city clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of the equalized valuations of a special franchise as fixed by the tax commission, deliver a copy of such statement certified by him to the assessors or other officers charged with the duty of making local assessments in said city. Each town clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of equalized valuations, deliver copies of such statement certified by him to the supervisor of the town, and to the assessors of the town for which the assessments have been made.

The final equalized valuation of every special franchise in a city, town or village as so fixed and determined by the tax commission shall be entered by the assessors or other officers thereof in the proper part of the assessment-roll before the final revision and certification of such roll by them and become a part thereof with the same force and effect as if such assessment had been originally made by such assessors.

§ 45-d. Special franchise; certification of final valuations to owners. The tax commission, on filing said statement of the final equalized valuation of a special franchise, shall give to the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected written notice thereof, which notice shall contain a statement of the full and actual value of such special franchise as finally fixed and determined and the amount to which it has been equalized. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of each special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. Such notice may be served on a copartnership, association or corporation affected by mailing a copy thereof to it at its principal office or place of business, and on a person either personally or by mailing it to him at his place of business or last known place of residence.

§ 45-e. Special franchise assessments subject to all taxes. The final equalized valuation of every special franchise as fixed and determined by the tax commission shall be the assessed valuation on which all taxes, based on such special franchise for state, county, city, town, village, school, highway or other district purposes shall be levied for the ensuing year.

§ 45-f. Information by local assessors. The assessors or other taxing officers, or other local officers in any city, town or village or district, or any state or county officer, shall on demand furnish to the tax commission any information required by them for the purpose of determining the full and equalized value of a special franchise.

§ 7. Section forty-six of such chapter, as amended by chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 46. Certiorari to review assessment. An assessment of a special franchise by the tax commission may be reviewed in the manner prescribed by article thirteen of this chapter, and that article applies so far as practicable to such an assessment, in the same manner and with the same force and effect as if the assessment had been made by local assessors; a petition for a writ of certiorari to review the assessment in a city or village must be presented within fifteen days after the final completion and filing of the assessment-roll, and the first posting or publication of the notice thereof as required by law, and in towns within thirty days after the final revision of the roll by the county board of supervisors and the annexation of their warrant thereto. Such writ must run to and be answered by said tax commission and no writ of certiorari to review any assessment of a special franchise shall run to any other board or officer unless otherwise directed by the court or judge granting the writ. In cities a copy of said writ and the petition for same shall be furnished to the corporation counsel or other law officer. An adjudication made in the proceeding instituted by such writ of certiorari shall be binding upon the local assessors and any ministerial officer who performs any duty in the collection of the taxes levied upon said assessment in the same manner as though said local assessors or officers had been parties to the proceeding.

§ 8. Section forty-six-a of such chapter, as added by chapter eight hundred and seventy-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 9. Section forty-seven of such chapter, as amended by chapter four hundred and seventy-one of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven and chapter one hundred and thirty-four of the laws of nineteen hundred and thirteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 47. Tax commission to appear by counsel; employment of experts. In any proceeding for the review of an assessment of a special franchise made by the state board of tax commissioners or the tax commission, said tax commission is authorized to appear by counsel to be designated by the attorney-general. The attorney-general or such counsel may employ experts and the compensation of such counsel and experts and their necessary and proper expenses and disbursements, incurred or made in such proceeding, and upon any appeal therein, shall when audited and allowed as are other charges against such tax district, be a charge upon the tax district upon whose rolls appears the assessment sought to be reviewed. Where, in one proceeding, there is reviewed the assessment of a special franchise in more than one tax district, separate accounts shall be rendered for said costs, expenses and disbursements to the proper officer of each of said tax districts and audited and allowed by him as aforesaid. For the purposes of this section, the city of New York shall be deemed one tax district. If provision shall not have been made for the payment of such expense in any year, then the officers who are empowered by law to make such provisions in any county, city, town or other political subdivision of the state, are hereby authorized and directed to raise money to such an amount as may be necessary, in any manner provided by law for meeting expenses in anticipation of the collection of taxes and to pay such expense therefrom. The amount so raised shall be included in the amount to be raised by tax in the ensuing year.

§ 10. Section forty-nine of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 49. Tax on special franchise not to affect other taxes. The imposition or payment of a tax on a special franchise as provided in this chapter shall not relieve any association, copartnership or corporation from the payment of any organization tax or franchise tax or any other tax otherwise imposed by article nine of this chapter, or by any other provision of law; but tangible property situated upon, under or above any street, highway, public place or public waters, subject to tax as special franchise as described in subdivision six of section two, shall not be taxable except upon the assessment made as herein provided by the tax commission.

§ 11. Apportionments in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen of special franchise assessments by local assessors under section forty of this chapter shall be based on the final equalized valuations certified in said year by the state tax commission, or if none shall have been so certified, upon the equalized valuations of the preceding year.

§ 12. This act shall take effect January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,
Secretary of State.

KINGSTON TO SEE SOLDIERS PARADE

Rondout is to have a look at Company M in full strength tonight when, in response to the request of residents, Captain Meagher will march his men down Broadway from the armory to Ferry street, around the block made by Hasbrouck avenue and the Strand back to Broadway to the armory. This will be at 7:30 o'clock. With the company will march the new men for whom arms have not yet been secured.

Owing to the fact that the band is at the firemen's convention in Poughkeepsie, there will be no music tonight but Friday night the business men of the uptown section will, it is understood, furnish music to accompany the guardsmen as they parade from the Armory up Broadway, around the uptown section from Albany and Clinton avenues to North Front and Wall streets, to Main and thence to Clinton and Albany avenues back to Broadway.

As the march will be made each evening, alternatng for each section of the city, it has been suggested that residents so inclined decorate their homes or place of business as an exhibition of patriotism.

On Sunday afternoon on the Athletic Field there will be a brief ceremoney at 4:30 o'clock when evening parade will be held including the escort to the colors. Setting up exercises may precede this ceremony. There will be no parade around the city.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

William Miller, of Miller's Taxi and Cab Service, has recently purchased two new touring cars, one a five-passenger Ford, the other a handsome seven-passenger car from the factory of one of the largest manufacturers in the country. The larger car is a veritable beauty, commodious and apointed with every new convenience, while its body lines are sure to delight the eye of every auto enthusiast. Mr. Miller now has six fine cars in his service, all of which are busy night and day. The acquisition of the two new machines speaks well for the growth of Mr. Miller's business.

Not as He Imagined It.

"When you bought your motor car I dare say you thought it would give you a great deal of pleasure?" "Oh, yes," replied the unhappy motorist. "I was deceived by a smooth-tongued salesman. I have since discovered that it forces me to contribute generously to the incomes of a large number of people for whom I have no affection whatever."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Sword of the Bronze Age.

The Giant's Staircase.

One of the most widely known geological curiosities in the vicinity of Cork is a series of knobs or knots projecting from the face of a cliff. There are sixteen of these huge projections altogether, all regularly set in the face of the cliff, one above the other, forming a series of such uniformity as to give it the general appearance of a stairway. Since time out of memory this queer ascent and its projecting "steps" have been known as the Giant's staircase.

"Sure. What's the matter with yours?"

"Well?"

"He's sitting in my room now, and I hate to have him watch my face when my wife tells me what she thinks of the proposition." — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 22.—The news of the clash between American and Mexican troops published this morning induced general selling from many quarters at the opening of the stock market today. Losses of a point or more were numerous in the first few minutes, with the sharpest declines in stocks which are not directly influenced by the Mexican developments. In fact, Mexican Petroleum, after declining ¼ to 96¾, rose to 97¼, American Smelting yielded only ¼ to 92¾ and Southern Pacific ½ to 96¼. Greene Cananea was exceptionally weak and declined 1½ to 40½. The war order stocks were in free supply at concessions, Baldwin Locomotive dropping 1⅜ to 83½, and Crucible Steel 1⅜ to 79. Butte and Superior lost 2 points to 76. American Zinc was steady, advancing ½ to 43½, but lost this gain in the next few minutes. Steel Common was in good demand and although some large lots changed hands, it declined only ¼ to 83½. Marine Preferred receded 1⅞ to 90½. At the end of the first 15 minutes the market showed pronounced improvement and recoveries were then in progress.

Many stocks were in urgent demand at advancing prices in the late forenoon, while others were offered freely at moderate concessions. Most attention was attached to the trading in New Haven, which rose over 2 points to 63½. Third Avenue was active and strong and rose 1¼ to 66. Maxwell Motor, after selling down to 83½, advanced to 85. Rock Island declined a point to 23¾, while Steel Common advanced to 83⅞. The coppers showed a rallying tendency, Anaconda advancing from 81⅛ to 82⅝ and Inspiration from 48⅛ to 48¾. The zinc issues were heavy, Butte and Superior declining 3¼ to 65¾, followed by a rally to 67, and American Zinc, after selling at 42½, advanced to 43. Money loaning at 3 per cent.

Strength was shown in many issues in the late afternoon, with most interest attached to the buying of Union Pacfic and several other railway stocks. Union Pacific advanced to 137, a gain of 1⅝ points in all for the day. A strong tone was also shown in Reading, Lehigh Valley and New York Central. Third Avenue was in good demand, reflecting accumulation, and advanced to 68.

The closing tone was weak. Industrial Alcohol was the feature of the last hour, falling six points to 146½. Other issues generally dropped from fractions to around a point. Third Avenue reacted to 67¾, after touching 68½. Baldwin Locomotive fell 3 points to 80. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

In the Days of Superstition.

The earliest record of a witch being burned to death is dated 1275, the witch confessing that she fed her offspring the flesh of babies. At Toulouse, in 1335, 63 persons were accused of being witches, eight of whom were burned and the others imprisoned for life. In 1324 Petronilla de Midia was burned at Kilkenny, Ireland, by orders of the bishop of Ossory. Some 75 years later there were wholesale witch prosecutions at Berne, Switzerland.

KINGSTON MEN IN NAVY AND ARMY

Just at present Kingston is greatly aroused over the imminent departure of Company M for Camp Whitman and perhaps for the Mexican border, and the community is justly proud of the fine showing that her men are making and will make. But there are others of her sons already making a name for themselves and their home town in the regular navy and army, where they are serving with distinction. Among the number are Lieutenant Andrew S. Hickey, engineer officer and second lieutenant of the Battleship Pennsylvania; Lieutenant David A. Scott of the Asiatic Squadron, First Lieutenant Girard L. McEntee of the Twelfth Infantry stationed at Manilla, Major Leroy Eltinge of the Eighth Cavalry, now stationed on the Mexican border about 28 miles from El Paso; and Raymond Marsh of the Sixth Field Artillery, Battery B, now doing border duty in New Mexico.

Lieutenant Hickey.

Andrew Samuel Hickey, son of Mr and Mrs. T J. Hickey of Broadway, graduated from Annapolis in 1906, and served on the Maine during her trip around the world. He was detached at San Francisco, and sent to the Phillipines for a time. Lieutenant Hickey took part in the engagement which exterminated the bandits of the South Zulu Seas. For two years he served on The Dolphin, the ship of the secretary of the navy At the time of our recent occupation of Vera Cruz, Lieutenant Hickey was in charge of a landing party of two hundred, whose duty was the protection of the harbor light house. As navigator and ex-officer of the Neptune, just returned from Panama, Lieutenant Hickey is now engineer officer and second lieutenant of the Battleship Pennsylvania, the biggest dreadnaught in the world, which is now in commission at Norfolk, Va.

Lieutenant Scott.

David Alexander Scott, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Scott of this city, second lieutenant and commander of the Torpedo Boat Destroyer Monterey, of the Asiatic Squadron, is now in the Phillipine waters, having charge of the American interests at Manilla. Lieutenant Scott graduated from Annapolis in the September (first) section of the class of 1907. Six years ago, Lieutenant Scott saw active service in Mexico, where he landed, and was in charge of a body of midshipmen. While on this expedition Lieutenant Scott came actually into the firing line, being shot at and returning the shot

Lieutenant McEntee.

At the Garrison at Manilla, First Lieutenant Girard L. McEntee, who has probably received his promotion to Captain by this time, is serving with the Twelfth Infantry, having been there for over a year. Lieutenant McEntee, son of the late Girard L. McEntee, received his appointment as second lieutenant, in 1901 from President Roosevelt, and has seen active service for the past fifteen years.

Major Eltinge.

The one Kingston man right in the thick of the present disturbance is Captain Leroy Elting of the Eighth Cavalry, U. S. A., stationed on the Rio Grande river, about 28 miles from El Paso. Graduated from West Point in 1896, Captain Eltinge, son of the late Lamont Eltinge and Mrs. Eltinge, entered the Post Graduate College at Fort Leavenworth and after graduating, became an instructor in advanced tactics. Later he was stationed for some two years at Fort Myer, Arlington, and then went to El Paso, from which position he was relieved in order that he might be sent back to the college where he continued as instructor until the college was closed at the beginning of actual trouble in Mexico, when Captain Eltinge became again an active member of the Eighth Cavalry At present he is in the camp pictured where the community numbers some 800 Mexican inhabitants. The Rio Grande river was just beyond the range of the camera, being beyond and to the left. The curious brush-like fence around the camp, Captain Eltinge's quarters being in the immediate left foreground, is a sort of sand break, to protect the camp from the shifting, blowing sands which envelope everything. On one occasion recently, he wrote that his cot and other belongings were at the time of writing under nearly a quarter inch of sand, and as he wrote he had to blow off the sand every few lines in order to continue writing. When Captain Eltinge last wrote his mother, who now makes her home on Green street, in this city, the weather was clear and hot, but he said that there were signs of the approach of the rainy season. That meant heavy thunder showers each day, of about an hour's duration; plenty of mud, great heat, and between showers, during the time of writing Captain Eltinge had just sent to El Paso, (Gen Bliss's headquarters) for 25 remounts. He said that he had with him, 34 raw recruits and 19 men who had seen less than six month's service, and 37 green (unbroken) horses "Wouldn't that make a fine outfit with which to go into Mexico?" said Captain Eltinge Since this article was prepared, word has been received that Captain Elting has been promoted to the office of major.

QUARTERS OF MAJOR ELTINGE ON THE RIO GRANDE.

Lieutenant Marsh.

Probably the youngest Kingston man seeing actual service in the regular army, is Raymond Marsh, son of Vincent Marsh of New York city, who graduated from West Point in 1915. After being stationed at Fort Douglas, Arizona, for a time, Marsh was sent with the Sixth Field Artillery, Battery B, into Mexico, this body of men being the first to enter Mexico, forming a sort of flank to Gen Pershing's expedition They went some 300 miles into Mexico At present Marsh is in New Mexico doing border duty. It will be remembered that at the time of his graduation from West Point, his former associates in the Rondout National Bank, presented the young man with a fine sword.

At War Schools.

Looking to the future, Robert Hasbrouck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jansen Hasbrouck of this city, is now at West Point and will graduate in 1918, while Frank Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Taylor of John street, Kingston, has just entered Annapolis.

Attending Synod Meeting.

The annual meeting of the New York and New England Synod of the Lutheran Church opened on Tuesday in the Holy Trinity Lutheran Church at Elmira with about two hundred pastors and delegates in attendance. Fred J. Walter of this city is treasurer of the Synod and the Elmira Advertiser prints a fine cut of him in its Wednesday's issue. The sessions are of extreme interest to the members of the Lutheran Church.

Two Firemen Hurt at Highland.

The bungalow of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Colyer on Vineyard avenue, Highland, was totally destroyed by fire on Wednesday. A defective flue is thought to have caused the blaze. The loss is estimated at between $4,000 and $5,000 and is covered by insurance. P. Traver Schantz and Elliott Thompson were injured by falling brick, the former receiving a bad cut on the head while the latter was knocked unconscious.

Kingston Spends a Quiet Night.

Hot Water Piped Into Your House

YOU can buy hot water service exactly as you buy gas service—economically—no trouble—you never think of it. Simply turn the faucet as you turn on the gas, and the hot water—steaming-hot—comes instantly. A cupful or a thousand gallons—it makes no difference.

You can have hot water for shaving or the morning bath—even if the family is away for the summer and you are alone in the house. You can make coffee or tea, or boil eggs right from the faucet. You can heat the baby's milk at night or have hot water for sudden sickness. Hot water is always ready for the laundress.

Sounds like a dream, doesn't it?

This miracle of communal service is wrought by the Ruud Automatic Water Heater.

All you do is to tell us to put it in just as you would order a telephone put in. After that, you'll hardly know it's in the house.

It might as well be at our central office for all the trouble it will cause you.

The Ruud is simply a connecting link between gas service and water service—it translates both into Hot Water Service.

As to the matter of expense—a Ruud gives you the cheapest hot water service you can buy. Mind you, we don't say lukewarm-water service or hot-water-now-and-then-when-you-do-not-need-it service. At that, the Ruud will make no appreciable addition to your housekeeping costs.

All of which we shall be very glad to demonstrate. We are making this a special hot water week and have a Ruud actually working at our main office with a demonstrator in charge.

Don't worry about the first cost—you can take care of that in small payments if you wish.

You really owe it to yourself to learn all about the Ruud, so please drop in sometime during the week—today if possible

"I was presented at a ball," said Jones, "to a young lady whose proportions were anything but meager. After the accustomed manner, I asked her to honor me with a dance. She replied with a desolate air:

"'I am only free for the cotillion, and I cannot pledge myself for that, because I am not certain whether my people will not be leaving before it comes off.'"

The Test of Greatness.

When Elliston, the theatrical manager, went from London to his own theater at Birmingham he was known to scarcely a member of his own company. On reprimanding one of them sharply the irate actor threatened to kick him off the stage. He rushed to the stage manager and asked who that man was.

"Mr. A." said the manager.

"A great man, a very great man," said Elliston. "He threatened to kick me, the lessee of Drury Lane. Such a man as that must go to London. He mustn't waste his energies here." And he engaged the actor on the spot for Drury Lane.

The Roman Tribune.

The tribunes in ancient Rome represented the people in much the same way that the house of commons does in England and the house of representatives in this country. For a long time the patricians or aristocrats of Rome had everything their own way. But when the plebeians (or, as we would say, the "plain people") got their tribune the reckless tyranny of the patricians ceased. The tribune had great power. He could veto almost any act and nullify almost any law passed by the Romans. Liberty among the Romans dates from the time they first secured their tribunes.—New York American.

He has twice been laid up with a broken leg, also sustaining other painful injuries which have kept him on the hospital list. A year ago last winter he got over a severe attack of pneumonia. He was in excellent shape when the present season opened but for some unknown reason he found that he couldn't bat with the usual success. Evers's lame arms is the last straw.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, June 22.—Lee Magee's failure with the bludgeon so far this season has added to the surprise list. In 1915 he was a demon with the mace among the Feds; he was a clubber without a weakness. High or low, wide or close, curving or straight, Magee could plunk the offerings—and plunk them to the far corners of the lot. But this season he is having an awful lot of trouble trying to keep his average above the .200 mark.

Magee's flivvering, in our opinion, does not mean that he has gone back or that he doesn't measure up to the American League standard. Lee sizes up as one of the greatest ball players in the game. He is fast, brainy, a wonderful fielder, a grand wing man, and a real hitter—when not handicapped. But he has been handicapped doubly so far.

One of the reasons for Magee's fizzling so far has been that the breaks are against him. A dozen times he has whanged the ball for a distance that seemed certain to result in a double or a triple but in practically every instance he has been robbed by some sensational catch. Rival outfielders seem to wait until Magee comes around before they pull off amazing grabs. Furthermore, Lee has been called out on infield hits at least a dozen times when it seemed to the folks in the stands that he had beaten the heave.

Over-Anxiety Handicaps.

"I'd saw off a leg if it would please Captain Huston and Colonel Ruppert," Magee often has told us. "They paid a big bunch of money to get me and they are paying me a big salary. They are princes to work for, and I want to make good just to show them that their confidence in me has not been misplaced. But things don't seem to break right for me."

Magee's statement above explains his second handicap. So anxious is he to please his employers that it has developed into over-anxiety—and that always is a detriment to a ball player. It somewhat warps his better judgment. He reaches for pitchers which, in his calmer moments, he would permit to float past.

But Magee's slump, although it has lasted for two months, is temporary only. Sooner or later he will begin to hit. He may not climb above the .300 mark this year, because of his poor start, but he surely will climb. He can hit—and hard and often. He has a fine judgment, and he's fast.

And when Magee starts the upward movement there will be a chorus of hurrahs from all sections of the land, because Lee Magee is one of the finest fellows in the game, with thousands of well wishers in every town that ever has heard his praises sung.

Dave Robertson Starring.

Gothamites are touting Dave Robertson as the greatest right fielder in the game. After glancing over the 1916 showing of the southerner, it would seem that no one justly can dispute the claim. Dave is fielding in magnificent style, he is a wonderful thrower, as fast on the bases as any man in the National League—and gosh, how he is hitting.

Robertson was a pitcher once upon a time. He came to the Giants some years ago for a twirling tryout. He failed and was shooed off to the bushes. There he hurt his pitching wing. He had about decided to quit baseball, when his manager, realizing that he had great batting skill, influenced him to linger and to try for an outfield berth.

Robertson came back to the Giants last season as a gardener. He was given repeated trials and showed flashes of brilliancy. But McGraw became discouraged because Dave didn't seem to throw his heart into his work. His parents are wealthy and he has enough money of his own to enable him to loaf for the rest of his days. But he likes to play the game, yet he used to play it more in the spirit of fun than in the serious way necessary for big leaguers.

"Dave Robertson is as good a ball player as he wants to be" McGraw said last year. "He will be a star of the first magnitude at any time he really makes up his mind to throw himself into the work."

During the winter Robertson busted some bone in the neighborhood of his hip. Every one immediately declared that he was through forever and ever, amen, as a big leaguer. Dave remained in dry-dock until late in the spring. Then he reported to the Giants.

In the meantime, McGraw bought Eddie Rousch to play right field for the Giants. When Robertson turned up McGraw told him that he didn't think he would be able to use him in any other but utility roles. That piqued Mr. Robertson.

"That bone fracture is all mended" he told McGraw. "And I'm ready to play. Put me in that game now and I'll play baseball like I never played it before."

Eventually Robertson got his chance. The rest is history too recent to need repeating.

The Swedish Almanac.

The Swedish name almanac differs from English almanacs in giving, besides the usual information, a Christian name for each sex for every day of the year. The names set forth have to receive the approval of the king. The object aimed at is to secure a greater choice of names for parents and to avoid the endless repetition of a dozen or so names. A similar name almanac is issued under royal authority in one of the German states.—London Graphic.

(By Frank G. Menke).

The battle for first place is on today. Cleveland and Detroit are tied for the lead. The Phillies are four points behind the Dodgers. These teams play against each other. Washington, in third place is only five points behind in the American.

George Foster is a new king in the hall of fame. He retired the Yankees without a hit. And Home Run Baker was in the line-up too.

Fielder Jones had his Browns going at top speed against the White Sox. The colorless hosiery brigade lost a double header.

The Reds jumped ahead of the Cubs when they walloped them in both games of the double header.

The Senators were lucky yesterday. With the score 3 to 1 in favor of the Athletics, rain stopped the battle in the third.

CURIOUS CORDOBA.

This Spanish Town Is So Compact It Looks Like One Building.

Cordoba is scheduled on the European itinerary as a half day stand. Those who go from Seville to Granada and those who go from Granada to Seville take Cordoba on their way. Fifteen minutes for the cathedral, five for the alcazar, an hour for luncheon and on to further discoveries—that is the Cordoba program. The hotels of Cordoba are, in consequence, unpalatial, a circumstance in itself which endears the little town to the judicious. I do not believe there is a lift in all Cordoba, and if your wife wishes for any reason to buy a new hat she must go out of the hotel for it, and then it will be three years old.

At night all the tourists are gone to Seville or Granada, and you and the Cordobans and the stars share the amenities of Cordoba's one boulevard, of which everybody is very proud, because it is much superior to anything that Paris or even Madrid can show. It was a lucky chance which caused them to build Cordoba so handily between Seville and Granada. It has provided a still little backwater for the traveler's repose, a spot where he may forget that American bars exist, eat his meals untroubled by the squeaking of a tango band and adventure himself among the mysteries of a bill of fare jelly printed in blue and illegible Spanish.

You could put your hat over Cordoba, and very little would protrude. It is the compactest little town. From the tower of the cathedral it all looks like one building. You can hardly perceive the streets, so closely do they wriggle among the houses. The roofs are yellow, brown, gray, red; the walls and their shadows every color in the world. Among the buildings the green of palms, orange trees, lemon trees, chestnuts, soothe the glare struck eye. The Guadalquivir snakes through its rich plains from the faraway flat hills (red, gray brown, yellow), and over all are the great sky of the south and the huge sun of the south, which imposes silence on the world till night shall set the guitars a-buzzing.—William Caine in Century.

Her Next Move.

"Let me see," mused the young wife as she picked up the cookbook, "I have mixed the batter for the angel cake. Now what do I do next?"

"Telephone for the doctor," answered the heartless husband, who happened along in time to overhear her.

Varied Views of Marriage.

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, June 22.—This evening the Dorcas Society of the Reformed Church will be entertained at the home of Miss Flossie Post on Broadway.

Mid-week prayer and praise service will be held in the Reformed and Methodist Churches this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Captain Hiram Van Wort and wife have arrived home from Boston. Captain Van Wort has retired from going to sea. He was employed almost 32 years by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad on their large boats. He was the first captain to take the first barge going to sea for them and stayed with them until they sold their fleet of boats to another company. The Avondale, the large steel vessel he commanded last, was built in Newburgh 12 years ago and is now getting fitted to go to Charleston, N. C., to load sugar to go abroad to France. The last trip she made was from Jacksonville, Fla., with a load of lumber for Boston.

The Ever Ready Club were delightfully entertained at the home of one of its members, Miss Ruth Cookingham, at Rhinebeck, N. Y., Tuesday, June 20, 1916. At half after twelve a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. During the afternoon the party visited the Astor Memorial Home, (Holiday Farm), also several other places of interest. Red carnations were the souvenirs of the day. At five o'clock the party left for Port Ewen, all voting Miss Cookingham and her mother, Mrs. Welch, royal entertainers.

On Friday evening the Brotherhood of the Reformed Church will hold a social meeting in the Sunday school room, beginning at 8 o'clock, at which time every member is requested to be present. Music will be rendered, addresses made, refreshments served, and a general good time had. A large attendance is looked for.

PLATTEKILL.

Plattekill, June 22.—The Children's Day exercises held in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning was commented upon as being the best Children's Day exercises held in that church for many years. Those in charge of the training of the children are to be congratulated in their success. The church was nicely decorated and the children and grown ups entertained the large congregation finely. The church was crowded to its capacity, many visitors being also present.

The long continuance of the rain is hindering the farmers of this vicinity in cultivating their crops and also delaying the ripening of berries. But let us say with Riley:

"It ain't no use to grumble and complain,
It's just as cheap and easy to rejoice;
When God sorts out the weather and sends rain,
Why, rain's my choice."

Mrs. Walter Bush and children of Fishkill, N. Y., spent Sunday with her parents.

Miss Cossie Rockefeller is declining rapidly, there being no hopes for her recovery.

Harry Greenfield is spending the week in Newburgh, where he will take high school examinations.

Mrs. Abram Wager and Veonard Wager went to Cottekill Thursday to see Mrs. Mrs. Wager's sister, Mrs. Fred Haines, who is very ill at Mrs. Garton Keator's.

Mrs. M. Overfield has gone to Pennsylvania with her daughter, Mrs. Max Goresback.

Miss Bessie Baxter, who is at Mrs. Pope's near Newburgh, spent Monday evening visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Baxter.

A number of Plattekill people attended the play, "Where Are My Children," at the Newburgh Academy last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Soule entertained company at their home last week.

The crushed stone which has been put on the roads is a great improvement which has been needed greatly and will be appreciated by the community when it has worn off enough to travel on with ease.

Norman Tremper has a new motorcycle.

It is reported that Mrs. Alvah Hartshorn is very ill at her home.

Dorothy Fowler, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fowler of New Paltz, is visiting her cousin, Frances Gerow.

Mrs. Harry Thompson and daughter, Myrtle, and Miss Harris, spent Tuesday at Mrs. William Baxter's.

R. Morrison and daughter, Emily, of New York city, are boarding at Mrs. F. Garrison's.

The hat shop has opened at Newburgh again, where Charlie Comine is employed.

D. R. Gerow and family and Mrs. William Fowler and daughter motored to Ashokan dam and other places near there last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Dayton of Ohioville visited relatives here last Sunday.

Kingston Defeated Indians.

The fast Kingston baseball team defeated the Carlisle Indians at baseball at the Athletic Field on Tuesday afternoon by a score of 6 to 0. Kingston with "Dick" Williams in the box had no difficulty in annexing the scalps of the visitors. Princess Hiawatha did not pitch for the visitors as expected, and it was probably just as well for her that she did not for the Kingston had on their batting togs.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends who extended their aid and sympathy in the sad loss of husband, father and grandfather.

BROWN THRASHER

(Toxostoma rufum)

Range: Breeds from the gulf states to southern Canada and west to Colorado, Wyoming and Montana; winters in the southern half of the eastern United States.

Habits and economic status: The brown thrasher is more retiring than either the mocking bird or catbird, but like them is a splendid singer. Not infrequently, indeed, its song is taken for that of its more famed cousin, the mocking bird. It is partial to thickets and gets much of its food from the ground. Its search for this is usually accompanied by much scratching and scattering of leaves; whence its common name. Its call note is a sharp sound like the smacking of lips, which is useful in identifying this long-tailed, thicket-haunting bird, which does not much relish close scrutiny. The brown thrasher is not so fond of fruit as the catbird and mocker, but devours a much larger percentage of animal food. Beetles form one-half of the animal food, grasshoppers and crickets one-fifth, caterpillars, including cutworms, somewhat less than one-fifth, and bugs, spiders, and millipeds comprise most of the remainder. The brown thrasher feeds on such coleopterous pests as wireworms, May beetles, rice weevils, rose beetles, and fligeaters. By its destruction of these and other insects, which constitute more than 60 per cent of its food, the thrasher much more than compensates for that portion (about one-tenth) of its diet derived from cultivated crops.

COMPANY M STILL NEEDS 20 MORE MEN

Men With Good Feet and Good Teeth are Needed to Fill the Ranks to War Strength Before the Company Leaves---Only One Applicant in Three Has Proved Aceeptable.

Company M needs at least 20 more men to bring it up to war strength and it should have them NOW, before it leaves town, so that it may reach camp with full ranks.

The Busy Street Liar has circulated rumors that no more men are needed, citing in proof that men are being turned away.

The men turned away are those who fail to pass the physical examination, and less than one in three applicants passes.

Teeth and feet seem to be the stumbling blocks to acceptance, the examining surgeons say. A surprising number of flat-footed men are found among applicants.

Another reason for rejection is lack of parental consent. Most of the applicants are under the age of 21 years and the consent of parent or guardian must be given before a minor can be sworn in. This is often refused.

The Regular Army examination is being made by Captain Cranston, the examining surgeon, and Major Chandler, who is aiding him.

Minimum Physical Requirements.

Here are the minimum physical requirements for enlistment.

Height, five feet four inches.

Chest measurement, 32 inches

Weight, 120 pounds.

Good teeth.

Good feet.

General physical condition good.

When the company is at full war strength any additional men who have been accepted will be added to other companies in Major Chandler's battalion that may need them.

HOT WATER NEEDED IN COUNTY JAIL

Also Prisoners Should Work and Board Should Not be Paid by the Day as at Present, Latest Inspection Report Says.

Ulster County Jail, Kingston. Inspected May 16, 1916, by E. R Cass. Sheriff E. T. Shultis.

Recommendations.

1 Increased bathing facilities and a better hot water supply should be provided This need has undoubtedly been misunderstood by the residents of Ulster county. It matters little whether the men bathe by means of an ordinary bath tub of a shower bath. The point is, that they should be made to bathe at least once a week, in order that the cleanliness of the jail can be preserved and that they themselves can be made to live up to the standards of civilized beings The present equipment consists of two shower baths, which are inadequately supplied with hot water from a 40 or 50 gallon boiler located in the basement Because of the inadequate supply of hot water, prisoners are reluctant to use the shower baths with only cold water There is no reason why they should not decline to do so Warm water is necessary for the cleansing of the skin A hot water heater needs to be located in the basement This will give at very small cost a satisfactory supply of hot water throughout the jail Any equipment which will promote the personal cleanliness of human beings should not be looked upon as an unnecessary luxury

2 The unsatisfactory condition of the bases of the toilet niches should be remedied The members of the board are cautioned against the use of enamel ware toilet equipment A heavy porcelain toilet bowl in one corner of the cell will permanently remedy the unsatisfactory existing condition.

3. A matron should be employed first to insure the protection of female prisoners, and secondly, to protect the manage ent from embarrassing allegations Unless in the company of the jailer's wife female prisoners should always be kept under lock and key so that male persons cannot have easy access to the female quarters.

4. The system of paying the sheriff twenty-five cents per diem for the board of each inmate should be discontinued This undesirable system has been discontinued in practically every county in this state and a more satisfactory system has replaced it The following system is recommended The food supplied should be purchased by the sheriff or a committee appointed by the board of supervisors, and the bills for the foodstuffs should be submitted for ratification to a committee appointed by the board, and then paid by the county treasurer.

5. The prisoners should be regularly exercised in the outside corridors of the jail. This practice will help to work off the surplus energy of men living under unnatural conditions and thus make them less restless and thereby minimize the problem of discipline and order.

Progress Made.

1. A beginning has been made in remedying the unsatisfactory toilet conditions. In our reports these conditions have been always severely criticised.

2. The labor of some of the sentenced prisoners is used to the advantage of the county. Our reports have always advocated the utilization of inmate labor

General Report.

Population, 14
1 woman adult serving sentence
1 adult male for the grand jury.
11 adult males serving sentence
1 adult male awaiting trial

It was extremely gratifying to find all parts of the jail satisfactorily clean At the time of this inspection and the previous one, it was evident that much care is now exercised to have a high standard of cleanliness prevail throughout the jail

The sheriff and the inspector found a key in the door leading to the female section. This key operated the lock and therefore it would have been easy for anyone to go up the stairs There was one woman serving sentence, and access to the section in which she was confined was not obstructed. The sheriff was asked whether the doorway leading to the female section was always unlocked or had the key in it and he said "No" However the inspector recalls that at the time of his inspection on February 24, 1916 the key was in the door but there were no females committed to the jail

The unsatisfactory condition of the toilet niches still remains, but it was encouraging to find that in one of the toilet niches in the basement an enameled ware base has been installed for trial The attention of the board of supervisors is called to the fact that enamel ware chips and after chipping a rough iron surface is exposed, which easily rusts and thereby repeats the previous unsatisfactory condition In Cattaraugus county the authorities have abolished the niche type of toilet and are installing in one corner of each cell a heavy porcelain bowl While the porcelain bowls cost more money in the beginning, they give much better service than any other form of toilet equipment now in use

There is no established form of employment for the prisoners The sheriff has been using them in grading some of the county grounds adjacent to the jail The number of prisoners serving sentence usually averages between 10 and 15, thus making a small working unit However, many of these prisoners are sentenced for long periods, and therefore an extreme hardship is imposed upon them when they must spend days and months within the close confinement of the jail without an opportunity for physical exercise. Other counties throughout the state have satisfactorily employed their prisoners on highways and on county jail farms If Ulster county does not see its way clear to follow the example set by these counties, it should not be willing to confine long term prisoners in its jail under abnormal conditions. It would be preferable of course to establish some form of employment but if this cannot be done, prisoners serving long periods should be sent to the penitentiary.

CONSIDER HOME SOLDIERS FIRST

There was a very largely attended meeting of the Circles of Mercy held this morning at the Y M C A and the meeting was as enthusiastic as it was large Mrs George Hutton, chairman of the organization, called the meeting to order and stated that the questions to be considered as of most importance were whether or no the Circles of Mercy, representing all who had been helping in any way in the making of the surgical dressings, should get supplies to the allies across the water, or keep them for home use if necessary The other question was as to the advisability of continuing the meetings at the Y. M. C. A during the month of July.

After full and careful discussion, it was voted to hold, for at least a month, not only those surgical dressings which have been kept in reserve for possible need at home, but such as shall be made in the intervening time. If, as all hoped, there was then no need of such home aid, the original plan of sending the dressings abroad would be carried out. It was also decided to continue the meetings on the Thursday mornings during July at the same hour, 10 o'clock and at the same place, the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs Chandler's appeal for aid for the families of soldiers of Company M, should such need arise, was next considered and it was unanimously voted that the Circles of Mercy hold themselves in readiness to co-operate with Mrs Chandler in such and whenever necessary

During the forenoon, Major Chandler visited the meeting and showed the women present just what style of dressings would be most needed in case of actual warfare in Mexico. In order to at once make up such a supply of dressings, three things are greatly needed Old counterpanes, washed well and old quilts, also washed, and money for the purchasing of surgical gauze of a specified quality, etc., all to be used in making pads and rest pillows of larger sizes. Of course, all clean old cotton cloth is useful but the special need just now is for the quilts, counterpanes and money

From now on, more helpers will be needed each Thursday morning, and every woman who can do so is urged to assist in this work. It is not necessary to belong to the Circles of Mercy to help.

Any married woman who can remember back that far will tell you that the first time she distributed the calling cards of some man who belonged to her was the day she truly felt her importance."—New York Sun.

"If she's been happy with you, sir, hasn't she?" the young man asked.

"I think so, my boy—I think so," replied his girl's papa. "I certainly think so. I think so certainly. I'm certain I think so."

"Well," chimed in the young man sweetly, "if she's been happy with you I certainly think I can make her happy. I think so. I think so certainly. I'm certain I think so."

The Agitation of David Mawes

His Ambition to Serve is Given the Right Course

By EDWARD BOLTWOOD

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

When the address was finished David Mawes did not join in the perfunctory handclapping, but remained motionless on a rear seat in the hall, staring blankly at the speechmaker of the evening.

David's meek face was paler even than usual, and he kept rubbing in a dazed sort of fashion a shabbily gloved finger across his unobtrusive chin. The officers of the Civic Betterment club were talking on the platform steps with the speaker, a tall, lean man, gray at the temples. David did not know him.

Dr. Kellogg, the treasurer of the club, waddled along the aisle and touched David's shoulder.

"Anything wrong with you, Mawes?" he asked, with a professional glance.

"Thanks—nothing—nothing at all!" hesitated David, rising stiffly. "Who is that man on the platform, doctor? I was too late to hear the introduction. Is that Mr. Scott?"

"No, Scott couldn't come, so he sent that man as a substitute at the last minute." The doctor frowned and twirled the heavy watch chain on his capacious waistcoat. "We are greatly disappointed," continued Kellogg "That man's name is John Tyack. I believe he runs a mission in the slums down in New York. We have got to put him up tonight at the hotel."

"So Mr. Tyack will be here tomorrow morning, will he, doctor?" David asked.

"Guess so," grumbled the doctor "But the sooner we ship him out of the village the better, I say. Why, the fellow's an agitator—a rank agitator! We don't want such troublesome folks here in Shornhill."

"That's right—an agitator," assented David thickly

The cool night air somewhat revived Mawes. He gazed wistfully for a moment in the direction of the hotel Soon, however, he shook his head. His craving to meet and talk with John Tyack was almost a physical need, but David decided to try to wait until the morning, when he might find Tyack disengaged.

Although the quiet village street was empty, David's fevered imagination peopled it as he walked along the sidewalk He was like one who after a lifetime's blindness suddenly and miraculously sees. To David's disordered vision the roadway was thronged with gaunt men, bent by labor; with weary, patient women; with joyless children born to poverty. John Tyack had said that these plodders must be helped, and every flaming word he had spoken seemed calculated to fire the sensitive soul of David Mawes

"Whose life," groaned David, "has been so useless as mine to mankind? Whose life so narrow? What good have I ever done?" He paused with a hand on the latch of his gate. "And who is more free than I," he added, "to serve among the helpers under John Tyack? I'll do it! He has made me understand at last! I'll do it!"

SHE GAVE TYACK THE ROSE FROM HER BREAST.

David scowled thoughtfully at the two storied wooden house beyond the gate. The house lacked repainting, but around it a flowering garden made a brave show in the summer. David Mawes and his sister Angela had inherited this little property from their grandfather, and they lived there together. Neither of them had ever married.

In the morning when David came down to breakfast after a sleepless night he looked soberly out of the open window at Angela in the garden.

"I'm ready, Angela!" he called, rather unsteadily, for since the kindling of his great resolve he had not seen her until now.

"Yes, yes, dear; I'm coming!"

Angela's voice was always bright, although her sweet face was grave and placid as a nun's. She was only a year younger than David, who was forty. Nevertheless, her figure was still girlish and slender in her simple lavender gown.

"And how was the meeting, Davie?" questioned Angela, pouring the coffee. "Was the famous Mr. Scott as interesting as his books?"

"Well, Scott didn't turn up. But he sent a substitute—a marvelous speaker." David nervously crinkled the tablecloth. "His name was Tyack—a marvelous man!"

"Tyack!"

"Yes; Mr. Tyack, the most marvelous"—

"Why!" broke in Angela, with gentle confusion. "How strange! I once knew a family of that name. It was in the south, when I was teaching school there."

"Oh, yes—when you were teaching school," he repeated absently.

She gave him a brief smile and fingered the single rose at her breast.

"You are wretchedly pale, Davie. You mustn't worry so. Don't forget that we'll have not the slightest cause to worry in a little while when the mortgage is paid. We're certain to pay it in a little while; I can actually count the months. And everything will be easy for us then, here together, until we die."

"I suppose that's true," muttered David, pushing back his chair.

"You'd better order our winter coal today," said Angela briskly. "It's cheapest just now, you know."

He glanced down at her with abrupt apprehension, wondering if he ought to accept this excellent chance of telling her that next winter they would need no coal at all in the old house; that he would be in the New York slums, and that she—but David faltered. So he kissed Angela, according to their custom, and walked out.

The landlord advised him that Mr. Tyack was not in the hotel at present.

"He's gone for a tramp, David. Yes, sir, this Mr. Tyack, he said that he didn't get to the country often and that he wanted to make the most of it. He reckons to take the 4 o'clock express."

David scribbled a short note, begging for an interview at noon. Then he climbed the stairs to Tibbard's office and unlocked the door, for the last time, as he hoped.

He leaned back in his chair and his thoughts flew again to Tyack and Tyack's noble crusade.

Would the leader enlist him in the ranks? Why not? He was ready to follow the banner of such a hero, even on hands and knees. David scrutinized the clock eagerly. His mood was approaching the hysterical.

His eyes happened to fall on a memorandum slip which was nearly hidden by the blotting pad. The memorandum referred to a document which David, jumping up with a start, recollected that he had left on his dressing table. Horrified by this carelessness, he snatched his hat and locked the office door

Noontime was only half an hour away. David, in his agitation over the imminence of the interview at the hotel, did not wish to encounter Angela. He glided like a ghost up the front stairs of the Mawes house and perceived the document on the table by his bedroom window. But when he reached the window David staggered and grabbed the flimsy curtain, aghast and staring.

John Tyack was sitting beside Angela on a bench in the garden.

In spite of his amazement, David was able to note that his sister had rarely seemed so charming. The garden bench was backed by a vine covered trellis, and against the deep green of the vines Angela's tenderly smiling face blushed like a radiant flower. David believed that he had never seen such color in her face

Tyack bent close to her as if talking softly and earnestly Once she raised her hand with a pretty gesture of yielding protest, a minute afterward she gave Tyack the rose from her breast.

Mawes tremulously supported himself against the window frame. He recalled Angela's confusion when he mentioned Tyack's name at breakfast. A wild, overpowering suspicion dizzied him.

The notion that Angela could ever have a love affair was practically new to David. He had not dreamed of such a thing since her girlhood. Her later life always had appeared to be contentedly rooted and complete—in the care of the old house and the garden, in her tranquil village activities, in her profound affection for her brother But now David felt, with desperate certainty, that he could not mistake the meaning of the picture beneath the window.

"Confound him!" moaned David. "And he has a persuasive tongue, too! I remember that. Somehow I remember that!"

He remembered it very indistinctly. A hot spasm of jealousy had scorched his mind quite bare of everything except a sickening dread of losing Angela forever

David turned from the window and went hesitantly down the stairs toward a side door which opened on the garden. His better nature began to assert itself. He tried to think only of his sister's happiness

"At the cost of my own happiness hers must be made sure," he tried to think, but as he crossed the parlor he imagined the cozy room without the overflowing workbasket and the little rocking chair, and his heart failed.

"Ah, here's Davie!" pleasantly exclaimed Angela. "Come, Davie, and know John Tyack. You see, he is one of my Charleston Tyacks, after all"

David shook hands, mumbled something, and seated himself on a camp stool.

"Miss Angela and I, sir, were good friends in the south—I dare not tell how long ago," said Tyack. "You can't fancy my delight when I met her in the street just now, and when I saw that time has so courteously passed her by."

"Oh, dear me!" laughed Angela. "These southerners! He has already given me the most outrageous flattery, Davie, and I have nothing to pay him for it with except a rose."

Tyack smiled expectantly at David, as if waiting for a word from him. David inwardly condemned his own surliness, but said nothing.

"I shall let you judge, sir, whether it was flattery," offered Tyack. "I'll repeat for your benefit the account of my morning. I started for a walk and happened to find your cottage hospital. Such things appeal to me, and one can always learn a trick or two, you understand. So I introduced myself.

"The matron had once been a district nurse on our east side, and she was kind enough to say that she had heard of me. She showed me around. Isn't it a cheery, homelike place, Mr. Mawes?"

"I've never seen it," responded David lamely. "I don't know much about it."

"Well, it is quite unique in my experience of charitable hospitals," went on Mr. Tyack, "because of the countless bright touches which make it cheery and homelike. I complimented the matron for them.

"'Oh, those are all due to Miss Angela!' she said; and that is how I discovered that your sister was living in Shornhill.

"I'M GOING TO TELEPHONE AN ORDER FOR THE WINTER COAL," SAID DAVID.

"But the matron didn't stop there. She told me"—

"Please, please!" interposed Angela, flushing.

"The matron told me more," Tyack pursued. "Told me of the inspiration of Miss Angela's daily presence in the place; told me how, for her, poor men and women whisper awkward, humble blessings from their pillows.

"'And it is not only in the hospital that the poor bless Miss Angela,' said the matron to me. 'Go to almost any house where there is poverty and illness in the village and you will find that Miss Angela has been ahead of you in her quiet fashion—sensible, efficient and kind.'"

"I'm afraid that Miss Holleston is a flatterer, too," murmured Angela.

"Well, Miss Holleston was unaware that I was your friend," retorted Tyack, "and she's a seasoned expert in charity work, mind you, not given to enthusiasms Perhaps an outsider, like Miss Holleston, can estimate what is going on here more justly than any one else."

"Yes, you're right," said David "I, for instance, didn't appreciate—didn't quite guess"—

His voice thinned away to a distressed silence. He reasoned sadly that it must have been this very trait of Angela's which had revived John Tyack's love for her

Angela examined her watch

"John is lunching with us, Davie," she announced. "Therefore I'm off to the kitchen."

"And I to the hotel for ten minutes," said Tyack, putting on his hat. "I have to send a telegram. I'll arrive late in New York tonight, and my wife will be anxious"

"Your what?" gasped David inaudibly.

For a moment David was almost stunned by his deliverance. When he raised his head he saw that Mr. Tyack was at the garden gate alone David, happy and voluble, moved along the path

"Mr. Tyack, wait!" he entreated.

The visitor halted

"I want to—to thank you," avowed David, stammering with relief, "for—for what you said about Angela, that is It was something that I hardly realized. I'm so tied down by work that I hardly"—

"That's quite natural," remarked Tyack. "You do well to work for such a woman, Mr. Mawes, if you'll allow me to say so. Were it not for you would all Shornhill be helped by her in this fine way? I think not. It is your privilege to set the pearl By working for Miss Angela you are nobly serving your kind. I believe, with reverence, that you are serving God." And then, as if ashamed of his earnestness, Tyack hurried off.

David's eyes filled. He stumbled across the lawn. On the piazza steps he turned to look with gratitude at Tyack's retreating figure.

"Why, I clean forgot my note at the hotel!" he mused suddenly. "Lucky that Mr. Tyack can never guess—will never know—what it meant."

The telephone hung under the front stairs, and he went toward it. But he stopped at the parlor, and his hand caressed lovingly the back of the little rocking chair

"What are you doing, Davie, dear?" called Angela in the distance.

"I'm going to telephone an order for the winter coal," said David.

Political Secrets.

Lord Morley tells a story of how a great political secret was kept by three poor Irish journalists. During the preparation of the home rule bill of 1886 Parnell asked Lord Morley for a draft of its main provisions for submission to half a dozen of his confidential colleagues. The draft was given, duly returned, and not a word leaked out. "Three of the men to whom I showed the draft were newspaper men," said Parnell, "and they were poor men, and any newspaper would have given them £1,000 for it. No wonderful virtue you may say. But how many of your house of commons would believe it?"—London Answers.

YELLOWSTONE PARK.

Early Stories of Its Amazing Sights Were Not Believed.

The first recorded visit to Yellowstone park was made by John Colter in 1810 He was a trapper and adventurer who took refuge there from hostile Indians. His story of its wonders was discredited. The next recorded visit was by a trapper named Joseph Meek in 1829, who described it as "a country smoking with vapor from boiling springs and burning with gases issuing from small craters." From some of these craters, he said, "issued blue flame and molten brimstone," which, of course, was not true, though doubtless Meek fully believed it to be the truth.

Between 1830 and 1840 Warren Angus Ferris, a clerk in the American Fur company, wrote the first description of the Firehole Geyser basin, but it was not until 1852 that the geyser district was actually defined and the geysers precisely located. This was done by Father de Smet, the famous Jesuit missionary.

It remained for a government expedition, sent out in 1859 under command of Captain W. F. Reynolds, to first really explore and chart the region. Several private explorers followed, but so great was public incredulity as to the marvels they described that they did not dare tell their experiences before any general audiences.

The large exploring expedition under Governor Henry D. Washburn, surveyor general of Montana, in 1870 finally established the facts to the public belief and led to the creation of the Yellowstone National park.

In "Glimpses of East Africa" Mrs Ethel Younghusband tells an amusing story of a venerable Parsee who was on board a big liner going to England. Some one wishing to make himself agreeable went up to him and said, "I hope, sir, you are a good sailor."

TIGER WRECKING CREW

Harry Heilman Quits Editor's Desk to Join Detroits.

Preferred Writing Sporting News to Playing Baseball Until He Made Hit on Coast—Now Glad He Made the Change.

Almost every red-blooded American kid would jump at the chance to join Detroit's wrecking crew and rub elbows with Tyrus Raymond Cobb, yet one of the present members of the Bengal slugging combine had other ambitions until four years ago, writes Harold Johnson in Chicago Evening Post.

Harry Heilman preferred the commonplace career of a sporting editor, and, what's more, he had a paper of his own until one day after a sand-lot game in which he participated he spied his name in the headlines describing a ball game. Then he weakened.

Harry was a member of the United Amateur Press association around San Francisco, made up of amateur editors whose papers are official organs of some sort of organization. He could see nothing greater in all the world than his name on the sporting page as an author of an article.

He ran his publication, called Pacifico, in Frisco and played amateur ball. Then he was grabbed by the Coast league, and when he saw his name in big type in the papers he decided it was better than for him to put someone else's name where he now was appearing. So he dropped his first ambition and decided to stick to the national pastime.

Harry Heilman.

Heilman was drafted by Detroit, later returned to Frisco and was recalled this spring. His work has been a feature of the Tiger playing, and the wrecking crew now consists of Cobb, Crawford, Veach, and Heilman.

Big Brickyard Barn Wiped Out by Flames—Thought to Have Been Set on Fire by a Boy.

The big brickyard barn of the Hutton Company on North street was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon and but for the quick work of the firemen several of the houses occupied by laborers on the yard would have been wiped out by the flames. From what could be learned it is thought that a boy playing around the barn set fire to it. The barn was an old wooden structure and burned like tinder. At least one horse was destroyed by fire. It is thought the other horses were all out on yard at work. It was said that the oss is covered by insurance.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM.

Cavities Holding Pus, It Is Claimed, Breed the Dread Ailment.

In the American Magazine is an article on rheumatism by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, who says:

"The cause of rheumatism is pus formed and imprisoned in some part of the body. It gets into the circulation and is carried by it to the region affected. These pus places may be in spots more or less closed up, so they are not easily drained. They may be located about the teeth, at the end of the roots of dead or diseased teeth, in the crypts of the tonsils, in some of the sequestered places in the nostrils, in the bony sinuses of the head. They may be in the bladder, the kidney, the gall ducts or other places. The pus producing spot may be as small or smaller than a pea or it may be larger. Its existence is frequently unknown to the patient, especially if it be hidden in soft tissue like the tonsil. It may even exist in the bony socket of a tooth without giving pain.

"Several different organisms produce pus, and any or all may produce rheumatism when transferred to the joints or the heart.

"The physician today seeks for the pus cavity when he meets a patient with rheumatism, and he endeavors to clean it up. Rheumatic pains have been stopped with magical promptness by simply extracting the offending tooth. It is not always easy to find the pus places in the hidden parts of the body. The X ray shadowgraph is essential in locating the trouble. It shows definitely and accurately all trouble about the roots of the teeth, and its use is therefore of the first importance in ferreting out the pus in the deep structures."

Duncan Smoked In Church.

Sir Walter Scott in his "Heart of Midlothian" refers to one Duncan of Knockdunder, an important personage, who smoked during the whole of the sermon from an iron pipe tobacco borrowed from other worshipers. We are told that at the end of the discourse he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, replaced it in his sporran, returned the tobacco pouch to its owner and joined in the prayer with decency and attention.

Argentina.

If the country has the same average potentiality for producing food as land similarly situated in North America or Europe, it would seem that Argentina can support 100,000,000 people easily, as only small parts of it lie outside the temperate zone.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 332.

AN ACT to amend the tax law, in relation to collector's returns of unpaid taxes.

Became a law April 27, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section eighty-one of chapter sixty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to taxation, constituting chapter sixty of the consolidated laws," as amended by chapter two hundred and forty of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, is hereby amended to read as follows.

§ 81. Fees of collector. On all taxes paid within thirty days from the date of notice that he has received the roll, the collector shall be entitled to receive, if the aggregate amount shall not exceed two thousand dollars, two per centum, and otherwise one per centum, in addition thereto. On all taxes collected after the expiration of such period of thirty days, the collector shall be entitled to receive five per centum in addition thereto. The collector shall be entitled to receive from the county treasurer two per centum as fees for all taxes returned to the county treasury as unpaid. In Suffolk county no fees shall be paid by the county treasurer on returned taxes.

§ 2. Section eighty-two of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 82. Return by collector of unpaid taxes. Each collector shall immediately upon the expiration of his warrant make and deliver to the county treasurer an account of unpaid taxes, upon the tax-roll annexed to his warrant, which he shall not have been able to collect, verified by his affidavit, that the sums mentioned therein remain unpaid, and that he has not, upon diligent inquiry, been able to discover any personal property out of which the same could be collected by levy and sale, and upon the verification of the said account by the county treasurer he shall be credited by the county treasurer with the amount of such account. In making such return of unpaid taxes, the collector shall add thereto five per centum of the amount thereof. In case such tax is uncollected upon lands assessed to a resident he shall also state the reason why the same was not collected. In the county of Suffolk such return shall consist of the tax-roll and warrant together with the affidavit of the collector known also as the receiver of taxes that the taxes therein appearing, not marked paid, remain unpaid and that he has not upon diligent inquiry been able to discover any personal property out of which the same could be collected by levy and sale, together with a statement of the total amount of such unpaid taxes, and that he has in an appropriate column in said tax-roll, opposite the tax levied upon each separate parcel, or person therein named or described, inserted five per centum of the amount of the unpaid tax, and no separate copy or account of such unpaid taxes shall be made or required or any collector who has heretofore failed in making such return, whether his term of office has expired or not, verified by his affidavit, to the county treasurer any time within eight years after such failure and before the lands against which said taxes are assessed are advertised for sale pursuant to this chapter, and in case any collector shall heretofore or hereafter fail to add said five per centum the county treasurer shall add the same. Such return shall be indorsed upon or attached to said roll, and shall, subject to the provisions of this section, be in the form to be prescribed by the state board of tax commissioners. Such tax and percentage may be paid to the county treasurer at any time before a return is made to the comptroller, or in the county of Suffolk such tax, percentage and interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum computed from the first day of February after the same was levied may be paid to the county treasurer at any time before the first day of August succeeding the date of the warrant and thereafter at any time before the sale of the land for such unpaid tax upon the payment of such tax, percentage and interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum, computed from the first day of February after the same was levied and the cost of advertising the land for sale for such unpaid taxes as apportioned by the county treasurer among the several parcels liable to be sold. The county treasurer in counties in which lands are sold by him for the nonpayment of taxes, is hereby authorized to incur and pay for such expenses as he may deem necessary for the examination of collector's returns and descriptions of property to be sold pursuant to this chapter, and the procurement of proper collector's returns and the examinations and procurement of matters and facts as he may deem necessary to make a valid tax sale hereunder, but such expense shall not exceed the amount of the five per centum added as aforesaid.

§ 3. Section eighty-nine of such chapter, as amended by chapter six hundred and sixty-six of the laws of nineteen hundred and thirteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 89. Unpaid taxes on resident real property to be reassessed. When the tax on any real property, not assessed as nonresident, is returned as unpaid and so remains, the county treasurer shall, unless such tax shall have been rejected as provided by section eighty-eight-a, immediately deliver a transcript thereof to the supervisor of the tax district in which such tax is assessed. Such supervisor shall, if in his power, within thirty days thereafter, cause an accurate description of such real property to be made and returned to said treasurer, with the correct amount of taxes thereon, each kind of tax being stated separately, and if necessary, he may cause a survey and map of any of said real property to be made, and the expense of such survey and map on or for each lot or parcel shall be returned to said treasurer, and be a legal charge upon such real property and be collected with the taxes thereon. The amount of such tax shall bear interest at the rate of ten per centum per annum from the first day of February until paid, or until the sale of such property to satisfy such tax by the county treasurer, or if the property is located in a county embracing a portion of the forest preserve, until the return of such unpaid tax to the comptroller. And such real property and the tax thereon shall be regarded for all purposes of assessment, collection and sale as nonresident, and subject to all the provisions of the tax law in relation to nonresident real property and nonresident taxes.

§ 4. Section one hundred and fifty-two of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 152. Redemption. The owner, occupant or any other person having an interest in any real estate sold for taxes as aforesaid may redeem the same at any time within one year after the last day of such sale, by paying to the county treasurer of the county, for the use of the purchaser, the sum mentioned in his certificate, together with interest thereon at the rate of ten per centum per annum, to be computed from the date of such certificate, and any tax which the holder of said certificate shall have paid between the days of sale and redemption, provided such purchaser shall have notified the county treasurer thereof immediately upon the payment of such tax, together with the share of the expense of the publication of notices to redeem the real estate sold in such county for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the county treasurer to the real estate so redeemed, which expense shall be in the first instance a county charge and shall be at the same rate as that provided for the publication of notices of tax sales. In case any parcel of real estate mentioned in such notice to redeem shall not be redeemed within the one year allowed by law for such redemption then and in that event the share of the expense of the publication of notices to redeem such unredeemed real estate sold in any such county for unpaid taxes, as apportioned by the county treasurer, together with interest thereon for one year at the rate of ten per centum per annum, shall be laid before the board of supervisors of such county for reassessment as are other taxes and shall be by such board of supervisors reassessed upon the assessment roll of the current year against such real estate and shall be a lien thereon.

§5. This act shall take effect immediately.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

LAWS OF NEW YORK—By Authority.

CHAP. 333.

AN ACT to amend the tax law, in relation to the franchise tax on corporations.

Became a law April 27, 1916, with the approval of the Governor. Passed, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows.

Section 1. Section one hundred and eighty-two of chapter sixty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to taxation, constituting chapter sixty of the consolidated laws," as amended by chapter three hundred and seventeen of the laws of nineteen hundred and fifteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 182. Franchise tax on corporations. For the privilege of exercising its corporate franchises in this state every domestic corporation, joint stock company or association, and for the purpose of doing business in this state, every foreign corporation, joint stock company or association, shall pay to the state treasurer annually, in advance, an annual tax to be computed upon the basis of the amount of its capital stock, employed during the preceding year within this state, and upon each dollar of such amount. The measure of the amount of capital stock employed in this state shall be such a portion of the issued capital stock as the gross assets employed in any business within this state bear to the gross assets wherever employed in business. For purposes of taxation, the capital of a corporation invested in the stock of another corporation shall be deemed to be assets located where the physical property represented by such stock is located. If the dividends upon the capital stock amount to six, or more than six per centum upon the par value of the capital stock, during any year ending with the thirty-first day of October, the tax shall be at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per centum of value of the capital stock, and

(1) The assets do not exceed the liabilities, exclusive of capital stock, or

(2) The average price at which such stock sold during said year did not equal or exceed its par value, or

(3) If no dividend was declared,

Then each dollar of the amount of capital stock employed in this state, determined as hereinbefore provided, shall be taxed at the rate of three-fourths of one mill. If such dividend or dividends amount to less than six per centum on the par value of the capital stock, and

(1) The assets exceed the liabilities, exclusive of capital stock, by an amount equal to or greater than the par value of the capital stock, or

(2) The average price at which such stock sold during said year is equal to or greater than the par value.

Then the amount of capital stock, determined as hereinbefore provided to be employed in this state, shall be taxed at the rate of one and one-half mills on each dollar of the valuation of the capital stock employed in this state, but such valuation shall not be less than

(1) The par value of such stock.

(2) The difference between the assets and liabilities, exclusive of capital stock.

(3) The average price at which such stock sold during said year.

If such corporation, joint stock company or association shall have more than one kind of capital stock, and upon one of such kinds of stock a dividend or dividends amounting to six or more than six per centum upon the par value thereon, has been made or declared, and upon the other no dividend has been made or declared, or the dividend or dividends made or declared thereon amount to less than six per centum upon the par value thereof, then the tax shall be at the rate of one-quarter of a mill for each one per centum of dividends made or declared upon the capital stock the par value of which the dividend or dividends made or declared amount to six or more than six per centum, and in addition thereto a tax shall be charged upon the capital stock

(1) Upon which no dividend was made or declared, or

(2) Upon which the dividend or dividends made or declared did not amount to six per centum upon the par value.

At the rate as hereinbefore provided for the taxation of capital stock upon which no dividend was made or declared, or upon which the dividend or dividends made or declared did not amount to six per centum on the par value.

All corporations not taxable under the preceding paragraphs of this section shall be taxed in an amount not less than would be produced by an assessment of one and one-half mills on each one dollar of the actual value of its capital stock, determined to be employed in this state as hereinbefore provided, or one and one-half mills upon each dollar of such capital stock at the average price at which said stock sold during the said year.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

In such a case the summons must be served upon the attorney-general who must appear in behalf of the people, but where the people of the state of New York are made a party defendant, as herein provided, the complaint shall set forth, in addition to the other matters required to be set forth by [illegible] code of civil procedure detailed facts [illegible] the nature and extent of the interest of or lien on the said real property of the people of the state of New York and the reason for making the people a party. The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section forty-three of chapter sixty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act in relation to taxation, constituting chapter sixty of the consolidated laws," as amended by chapter two hundred and seventy-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, chapters seven and four hundred and fifty-eight of the laws of nineteen hundred and ten and chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 2. Section forty-four of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 44. Special franchise report to tax commission. Every person, copartnership, association or corporation subject to taxation on a special franchise, shall, within thirty days after such special franchise is acquired, make a written report to the tax commission containing a full description of every special franchise possessed or enjoyed by such person, copartnership, association or corporation, a copy of the special law, grant, ordinance or contract under which the same is held, or if possessed or enjoyed under a general law, a reference to such law, a statement of any condition, obligation or burden imposed upon such special franchise, or under which the same is enjoyed, together with any other information relating to the value of such special franchise, required by the tax commission. The tax commission may require an annual report and from time to time a further or supplemental report from any such person, copartnership, association or corporation containing information and data upon such matters as it may specify. Every report required by this section shall have annexed thereto the affidavit of the president, vice-president, secretary of treasurer of the association or corporation, or one of the persons or one of the members of the copartnership making the same, to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. Such commission may prepare blanks to be used in making the reports required by this section. Every person, copartnership, association or corporation failing to make the report required by this section, or failing to make any special report required by the tax commission within a reasonable time specified by it, shall forfeit to the people of the state the sum of one hundred dollars for every such failure and the additional sum of ten dollars for each day that such failure continues, and shall not be entitled to review the assessment by certiorari, as provided by section forty-six of this chapter. Acknowledgment of receipt of blank reports which contain the penalty provisions of this section shall be deemed sufficient notice of such penalties.

§ 3. Section forty-five of such chapter, as amended by chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 4. Such chapter is hereby amended by inserting therein a new section to be section forty-five, to read as follows:

§ 45. Special franchise; full valuation and equalization by tax commission. The tax commission shall annually fix and determine the full and actual valuation of each special franchise subject to assessment in each city, town or village; shall inquire into and ascertain as near as may be the percentage of the full and actual value at which other real property in the city, town or village for which full valuation has been made, is being assessed, and by the rate of equalization so established fix and determine the equalized valuation of each special franchise subject to assessment.

§ 5. Section forty-five-a of such chapter, as added by chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 6. Such chapter is hereby amended by inserting therein six new sections, to be sections forty-five-a to forty-five-f, inclusive, to read, respectively, as follows:

§ 45-a. Hearing on special franchise valuations; notice. On determining the full and actual valuation of a special franchise and the rate of equalization thereof the tax commission shall file with the clerk of the city, town or village in which such special franchise is subject to assessment, a written statement duly certified by the secretary of the commission of the valuation of each special franchise assessed therein as finally fixed and equalized. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of each special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. In the city of New York said statement shall be filed with the department of taxes and assessments. Such statement shall be filed with the clerk of the village not later than the first day of October and with the clerk of the city, or the department of taxes and assessments in the city of New York, not later than thirty days before the final completion, verification and filing of the assessment-roll. The statement of special franchise valuations in towns shall be made in duplicate, one copy to be filed with the town clerk not later than August first, and the other copy with the clerk of the board of supervisors of the county not later than September first.

Each city clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of the equalized valuations of a special franchise as fixed by the tax commission, deliver a copy of such statement certified by him to the assessors or other officers charged with the duty of making local assessments in said city. Each town clerk shall, within five days after the receipt by him of the statement of equalized valuations, deliver copies of such statement certified by him to the supervisor of the town, and to the assessors of the town for which the assessments have been made.

The final equalized valuation of every special franchise in a city, town or village as so fixed and determined by the tax commission shall be entered by the assessors or other officers thereof in the proper part of the assessment-roll before the final revision and certification of such roll by them and become a part thereof with the same force and effect as if such assessment had been originally made by such assessors.

§ 45-b. Special franchise; certification of final valuations to owners. The tax commission, on filing said statement of the final equalized valuation of a special franchise, shall give to the person, copartnership, association or corporation affected written notice thereof, which notice shall contain a statement of the full and actual value of such special franchise as finally fixed and determined and the amount to which it has been equalized. In a town said statement shall specify the total amount of the assessment of each special franchise, and the amount thereof in any village or villages therein. Such notice may be served on a copartnership, association or corporation affected by mailing a copy thereof to it at its principal office or place of business, and on a person either personally or by mailing it to him at his place of business or last known place of residence.

§ 45-c. Special franchise assessments subject to all taxes. The final equalized valuation of every special franchise as fixed and determined by the tax commission shall be the assessed valuation on which all taxes, based on such special franchise for state, county, city, town, village, school, highway or other district purposes shall be levied for the ensuing year.

§ 45-f. Information by local assessors. The assessors or other taxing officers, or other local officers in any city, town or village or district, or any state or county officer, shall on demand furnish to the tax commission any information required by them for the purpose of determining the full and equalized value of a special franchise.

§ 7. Section forty-six of such chapter, as amended by chapter eight hundred and four of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 46. Certiorari to review assessment. An assessment of a special franchise by the tax commission may be reviewed in the manner prescribed by article thirteen of this chapter, and that article applies so far as practicable to such an assessment, in the same manner and with the same force and effect as if the assessment had been made by local assessors; a petition for a writ of certiorari to review the assessment in a city or village must be presented within fifteen days after the final completion and filing of the assessment-roll, and the first posting or publication of the notice thereof as required by law, and in towns within thirty days after the final revision of the roll by the county board of supervisors and the annexation of their warrant thereto. Such writ must run to and be answered by said tax commission and no writ of certiorari to review any assessment of a special franchise shall run to any other board or officer unless otherwise directed by the court or judge granting the writ. In cities a copy of said writ and the petition for same shall be furnished to the corporation counsel or other law officer. An adjudication made in the proceeding instituted by such writ of certiorari shall be binding upon the local assessors and any ministerial officer who performs any duty in the collection of the taxes levied upon said assessment in the same manner as though said local assessors or officers had been parties to the proceeding.

§ 8. Section forty-six-a of such chapter, as added by chapter eight hundred and seventy-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, is hereby repealed.

§ 9. Section forty-seven of such chapter, as amended by chapter four hundred and eleven and chapter one hundred and thirty-four of the laws of nineteen hundred and thirteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 47. Tax commission to appear by counsel; employment of experts. In any proceeding for the review of an assessment of a special franchise made by the state board of tax commissioners or the tax commission, said tax commission is authorized to appear by counsel to be designated by the attorney-general. The attorney-general or such counsel may employ experts and the compensation of such counsel and experts and their necessary and proper expenses and disbursements, incurred or made in such proceeding, and upon any appeal therein, shall when audited and allowed as are other charges against such tax district, be a charge upon the tax district upon whose rolls appears the assessment sought to be reviewed. Where, in one proceeding, there is reviewed the assessment of a special franchise in more than one tax district, separate accounts shall be rendered for said costs, expenses and disbursements to the proper officer of each of said tax districts and audited and allowed by him as aforesaid. For the purposes of this section, the city of New York shall be deemed one tax district. If provision shall not have been made for the payment of such expense in any year, then the officers who are empowered by law to make such provisions in any county, city, town or other political subdivision of the state, are hereby authorized and directed to raise money to such an amount as may be necessary, in any manner provided by law for meeting expenses in anticipation of the collection of taxes and to pay such expense therefrom. The amount so raised shall be included in the amount to be raised by tax in the ensuing year.

§ 10. Section forty-nine of such chapter is hereby amended to read as follows:

§ 49. Tax on special franchise not to affect other taxes. The imposition or payment of a tax on a special franchise as provided in this chapter shall not relieve any association, copartnership or corporation from the payment of any organization tax or franchise tax or any other tax otherwise imposed by article nine of this chapter, or by any other provision of law; but tangible property situated in, upon, under or above any street, highway, public place or public waters, subject to tax as special franchise as described in subdivision six of section two, shall not be taxable except upon the assessment made as herein provided by the tax commission.

§ 11. Apportionments in the year nineteen hundred and seventeen of special franchise assessments by local assessors under section forty of this chapter shall be based on the final equalized valuations certified in said year by the state tax commission, or if none shall have been so certified, upon the equalized valuations of the preceding year.

§ 12. This act shall take effect January first, nineteen hundred and seventeen.

State of New York, Office of the Secretary of State, ss:

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original law.

FRANCIS M. HUGO,

KINGSTON TO SEE SOLDIERS PARADE

Rondout is to have a look at Company M in full strength tonight when, in response to the request of residents, Captain Meagher will march his men down Broadway from the armory to Ferry street, around the block made by Hasbrouck avenue and the Strand back to Broadway to the armory. This will be at 7:30 o'clock. With the company will march the new men for whom arms have not yet been secured.

Owing to the fact that the band is at the firemen's convention in Poughkeepsie, there will be no music tonight but Friday night the business men of the uptown section will, it is understood, furnish music to accompany the guardsmen as they parade from the Armory up Broadway, around the uptown section from Albany and Clinton avenues to North Front and Wall streets, to Main and thence to Clinton and Albany avenues back to Broadway.

As the march will be made each evening, alternatng for each section of the city, it has been suggested that residents so inclined decorate their homes or place of business as an exhibition of patriotism.

On Sunday afternoon on the Athletic Field there will be a brief ceremoney at 4:30 o'clock when evening parade will be held including the escort to the colors. Setting up exercises may precede this ceremony. There will be no parade around the city.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

William Miller, of Miller's Taxi and Cab Service, has recently purchased two new touring cars, one a five-passenger Ford, the other a handsome seven-passenger car from the factory of one of the largest manufacturers in the country. The larger car is a veritable beauty, commodious and apointed with every new convenience, while its body lines are sure to delight the eye of every auto enthusiast. Mr. Miller now has six fine cars in his service, all of which are busy night and day. The acquisition of the two new machines speaks well for the growth of Mr. Miller's business.

Not as He Imagined It.

"When you bought your motor car I dare say you thought it would give you a great deal of pleasure?" "Oh, yes," replied the unhappy motorist. "I was deceived by a smooth-tongued salesman. I have since discovered that it forces me to contribute generously to the incomes of a large number of people for whom I have no affection whatever."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Giant's Staircase.

One of the most widely known geological curiosities in the vicinity of Cork is a series of knobs or knots projecting from the face of a cliff. There are sixteen of these huge projections altogether, all regularly set in the face of the cliff, one above the other, forming a series of such uniformity as to give it the general appearance of a stairway. Since time out of memory this queer ascent and its projecting "steps" have been known as the Giant's staircase.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 22.—The news of the clash between American and Mexican troops published this morning induced general selling from many quarters at the opening of the stock market today. Losses of a point or more were numerous in the first few minutes, with the sharpest declines in stocks which are not directly influenced by the Mexican developments. In fact, Mexican Petroleum, after declining ¼ to 96¾, rose to 97¼. American Smelting yielded only ¼ to 92¾ and Southern Pacific ½ to 96¼. Greene Cananea was exceptionally weak and declined 1½ to 40½. The war order stocks were in free supply at concessions, Baldwin Locomotive dropping 1⅜ to 83½, and Crucible Steel 1⅜ to 79. Butte and Superior lost 2 points to 76. American Zinc was steady, advancing ½ to 43½, but lost this gain in the next few minutes. Steel Common was in good demand and although some large lots changed hands, it declined only ¼ to 83½. Marine Preferred receded 1⅞ to 90½. At the end of the first 15 minutes the market showed pronounced improvement and recoveries were then in progress.

Many stocks were in urgent demand at advancing prices in the late forenoon, while others were offered freely at moderate concessions. Most attention was attached to the trading in New Haven, which rose over 2 points to 63½. Third Avenue was active and strong and rose 1¼ to 66. Maxwell Motor, after selling down to 83½, advanced to 85. Rock Island declined a point to 23⅜, while Steel Common advanced to 83⅞. The coppers showed a rallying tendency, Anaconda advancing from 81¼ to 82⅜ and Inspiration from 48¼ to 48¾. The zinc issues were heavy, Butte and Superior declining 3¼ to 65¾, followed by a rally to 67, and American Zinc, after selling at 42½, advanced to 43. Money loaning at 3 per cent.

Strength was shown in many issues in the late afternoon, with most interest attached to the buying of Union Pacific and several other railway stocks. Union Pacific advanced to 137, a gain of 1⅝ points in all for the day. A strong tone was also shown in Reading, Lehigh Valley and New York Central. Third Avenue was in good demand, reflecting accumulation, and advanced to 68.

The closing tone was weak. Industrial Alcohol was the feature of the last hour, falling six points to 146½. Other issues generally dropped from fractions to around a point. Third Avenue reacted to 67¾, after touching 68¼. Baldwin Locomotive fell 3 points to 80. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

In the Days of Superstition.

The earliest record of a witch being burned to death is dated 1275, the witch confessing that she fed her offspring the flesh of babies. At Toulouse, in 1335, 63 persons were accused of being witches, eight of whom were burned and the others imprisoned for life. In 1324 Petronilla de Midia was burned at Kilkenny, Ireland, by orders of the bishop of Ossory. Some 75 years later there were wholesale witch prosecutions at Berne, Switzerland.

Johnny Evers, the peppery little shortstop of the Boston Braves, is playing in hard luck again. His throwing arm is causing him considerable pain every time he uses it, and he may not be able to play again for a couple of weeks. Evers has been in hard luck for several years. He has twice been laid up with a broken leg, also sustaining other painful injuries which have kept him on the hospital list. A year ago last winter he got over a severe attack of pneumonia. He was in excellent shape when the present season opened but for some unknown reason he found that he couldn't bat with the usual success Evers's lame arms is the last straw.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, June 22.—Lee Magee's failure with the bludgeon so far this season has added to the surprise list. In 1915 he was a demon with the mace among the Feds; he was a clubber without a weakness. High or low, wide or close, curving or straight, Magee could plunk the offerings—and plunk them to the far corners of the lot. But this season he is having an awful lot of trouble trying to keep his average above the .200 mark.

Magee's flivvering, in our opinion, does not mean that he has gone back or that he doesn't measure up to the American League standard. Lee sizes up as one of the greatest ball players in the game. He is fast, brainy, a wonderful fielder, a grand wing man, and a real hitter—when not handicapped. But he has been handicapped doubly so far.

One of the reasons for Magee's fizzling so far has been that the breaks are against him. A dozen times he has whanged the ball for a distance that seemed certain to result in a double or a triple but in practically every instance he has been robbed by some sensational catch. Rival outfielders seem to wait until Magee comes around before they pull off amazing grabs. Furthermore, Lee has been called out on infield hits at least a dozen times when it seemed to the folks in the stands that he had beaten the heave.

Over-Anxiety Handicaps.

"I'd saw off a leg if it would please Captain Huston and Colonel Ruppert," Magee often has told us. "They paid a big hunch of money to get me and they are paying me a big salary. They are princes to work for, and I want to make good just to show them that their confidence in me has not been misplaced. But things don't seem to break right for me."

Magee's statement above explains his second handicap. So anxious is he to please his employers that it has developed into over-anxiety—and that always is a detriment to a ball player. It somewhat warps his better judgment. He reaches for pitchers which, in his calmer moments, he would permit to float past.

But Magee's slump, although it has lasted for two months, is temporary only. Sooner or later he will begin to hit. He may not climb above the .300 mark this year, because of his poor start, but he surely will climb. He can hit—and hard and often. He has a fine judgment, and he's fast.

And when Magee starts the upward movement there will be a chorus of hurrahs from all sections of the land because Lee Magee is one of the finest fellows in the game, with thousands of well wishers in every town that ever has heard his praises sung.

Dave Robertson Starring.

Gothamites are touting Dave Robertson as the season's right fielder in the game. After glancing over the 1916 showing of the southerner it would seem that no one justly can dispute the claim. Dave is fielding in magnificent style, he is a wonderful thrower, as fast on the bases as any man in the National League—and gosh, how he is hitting.

Robertson was a pitcher once upon a time. He came to the Giants some years ago for a twirling tryout. He failed and was shooed off to the bushes. There he hurt his pitching wing. He had about decided to quit baseball, when his manager, realizing that he had great batting skill, influenced him to linger and to try for an outfield berth.

Robertson came back to the Giants last season as a gardener. He was given repeated trials and showed flashes of brilliancy. But McGraw became discouraged because Dave didn't seem to throw his heart into his work. His parents are wealthy and he has enough money of his own to enable him to loaf for the rest of his days. But he likes to play the game, yet he used to play it more in the spirit of fun than in the serious way necessary for big leaguers.

"Dave Robertson is as good a ball player as he wants to be," McGraw said last year. "He will be a star of the first magnitude at any time he really makes up his mind to throw himself into the work."

During the winter Robertson busted some bone in the neighborhood of his hip. Every one immediately declared that he was through forever and ever amen as a big leaguer. Dave remained in dry dock until late in the spring. Then he reported to the Giants.

In the meantime, McGraw bought Eddie Rousch to play right field for the Giants. When Robertson turned up McGraw told him that he didn't think he would be able to use him in any other but utility roles. That pained Mr. Robertson.

"That bone fracture is all mended," he told McGraw. "And I'm ready to play. Put me in that game now and I'll play baseball like I never played it before."

Eventually Robertson got his chance. The rest is history too recent to need repeating.

The Swedish Almanac.

The Swedish name almanac differs from English almanacs in giving, besides the usual information, a Christian name for each sex for every day of the year. The names set forth have to receive the approval of the king. The object aimed at is to secure a greater choice of names for parents and to avoid the endless repetition of a dozen or so names. A similar name almanac is issued under royal authority in one of the German states.—London Graphic.

(By Frank G. Menke).

The battle for first place is on today. Cleveland and Detroit are tied for the lead. The Phillies are four points behind the Dodgers. These teams play against each other. Washington, in third place is only five points behind in the American.

George Foster is a new king in the hall of fame. He retired the Yankees without a hit. And Home Run Baker was in the line-up too.

Fielder Jones had his Browns going at top speed against the White Sox. The colorless hosiery brigade lost a double header.

The old extra inning bugaboo is still the Giants' jinx. The Braves turned the trick this time.

The Reds jumped ahead of the Cubs when they walloped them in both games of the double header.

The Senators were lucky yesterday. With the score 3 to 1 in favor of the Athletics, rain stopped the battle in the third.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, June 21.—The strawberry and ice cream festival of All Saints' Church will be held on Thursday evening, June 22 and not on Tuesday, June 20, as last week's paper stated. Everybody come out and enjoy an evening of pleasure and also have home made ice cream and home grown strawberries.

Miss Frances V. Vosburgh of Woodstock, a recent graduate from a conservatory of music, has secured several pupils in this village. She will spend one day every week giving the pupils lessons.

Mr and Mrs. William Douglass of Poughkeepsie were visitors at Philip Driscoll's the past week.

The many friends of Mrs. A. B. DuBois in this village were shocked to hear of her death on Saturday last. Before moving to New Paltz she was a resident of this village for a number of years.

Mrs. Charles Kuecke is on an extended stay with friends in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Russell Freer spent Tuesday in New Paltz with her daughter, Mrs. Alvah Minard.

The closing exercises of St. Peter's school will be held on Sunday afternoon, June 25 at 3 o'clock in St. Peter's Hall.

Otto Houst and family of Poughkeepsie are visiting in this village.

CURIOUS CORDOBA.

This Spanish Town Is So Compact It Looks Like One Building.

Cordoba is scheduled on the European itinerary as a half day stand. Those who go from Seville to Granada and those who go from Granada to Seville take Cordoba on their way. Fifteen minutes for the cathedral, five for the alcazar, an hour for luncheon and on to further discoveries—that is the Cordoba program. The hotels of Cordoba are, in consequence, unpalatial, a circumstance in itself which endears the little town to the judicious. I do not believe there is a lift in all Cordoba, and if your wife wishes for any reason to buy a new hat she must go out of the hotel for it, and then it will be three years old.

At night all the tourists are gone to Seville or Granada, and you and the Cordobans and the stars share the amenities of Cordoba's one boulevard, of which everybody is very proud, because it is much superior to anything that Paris or even Madrid can show. It was a lucky chance which caused them to build Cordoba so handily between Seville and Granada. It has provided a still little backwater for the traveler's repose, a spot where he may forget that American bars exist, eat his meals untroubled by the squeaking of a tango band and adventure himself among the mysteries of a bill of fare jelly printed in blue and illegible Spanish.

You could put your hat over Cordoba, and very little would protrude. It is the compactest little town. From the tower of the cathedral it all looks like one building. You can hardly perceive the streets, so closely do they wriggle among the houses. The roofs are yellow, brown, gray, red; the walls and their shadows every color in the world. Among the buildings the green of palms, orange trees, lemon trees, chestnuts, soothe the glare struck eye. The Guadalquivir snakes through its rich plains from the faraway flat hills (red, gray brown, yellow), and over all are the great sky of the south and the huge sun of the south, which imposes silence on the world till night shall set the guitars a-buzzing.—William Cabe in Century.

Her Next Move.

"Let me see," mused the young wife as she picked up the cookbook. "I have mixed the batter for the angel cake. Now what do I do next?"

"Telephone for the doctor," answered the heartless husband, who happened along in time to overhear her.

Varied Views of Marriage.

Marriage is a lottery to the bachelor, an urgent necessity in the opinion of the widower, a delightful temptation to the widow, a habit with a good many.—Louisville Courier-Journal.
